REGINA WILL DEFY OTTAWA ORDER TO AID JOBLESS ARMY

Her Tired Smile Given To Sweden

Maxie Baer Playful Pug, Takes Bride

WASHINGTON, June 29. — Max Baer, pugilism's playful former heavyweight champion, will be married here today to Mary Ellen Sullivan of Ithaca, N.Y.

The name of the bride-to-be, which the bridegroom had sought to conceal until after the ceremony, was revealed on the marriage license issued this morning by the clerk of the District of Columbia.

She gave her age as 32.

Miss Sullivan is the manager of the Willard hotel coffee shop, where friends said Baer has been a frequent patron on previous visits to Washington.

SOUTH AFRICANS DISMISSED FOR 228 RUNS, TEST

LONDON, June 29.—England got away to a fair start in the second cricket test match at Lord's today scoring 75 runs for two wickets before stumps were drawn and after the South Africans had been dismissed for a first innings total of 228 runs.

LONDON, June 29.—Again failing to make headway against a virile England attack, South Africa was dismissed for 228 runs in the second cricket test match started today at historic Lord's cricket ground. The score was eight runs more than the total obtained by the Springboks in the first match at Nottingham two weeks ago.

The opening encounter, first of five tests between the two countries, was drawn, England being well ahead when rain prevented play on the third day of the match.

JAPANESE IRK RUSSIA AGAIN

MOSCOW, June 29. — Japanese and Manchukuan forces were accused of three new "provocative" invasions of Soviet territory today in official news agency dispatches.

A dispatch from Glagoveschensk, on the Amur river, said the latest incursion took place Thursday when two Japanese-Manchukuan gunboats, the Sungteng and the Yangming, entered a branch of the river in Soviet territory despite signals from Soviet frontier cutters to keep out.

When the gunboats passed the cutters, their crews were training guns on the Soviet vessels, the dispatches said, and also took photographs of them. The Soviet vessels, the dispatches added, wishing to avoid a clash, allowed the trespassers to proceed.

CITIZENS GROUP SUPPORTS TREK OF UNEMPLOYED

REGINA, June 29.—The Citizens' Emergency Committee supporting the relief camp strikers' trek to Ottawa, went into another session today to study what aid could be given the strikers. Plans for a mass meeting in Market Square Sunday night to protest "police persecution" were under way. The strikers were still idling in the city after spending the night at the Stadium in the exhibition grounds.

CAMP RETURN IS DENIED BY 2,000 JOBLESS

Denials Made of Break in Ranks as Police Keep Vigil

REGINA, June 29.—Denials of breaks in their ranks came today from headquarters of 2,000 striking relief camp workers as Royal Canadian Mounted Police maintained their vigilance to prevent any person giving aid to the strikers.

Five men arrested when the first truck load of strikers attempted to break through the police blockade of highways to resume their trek to Ottawa were still in custody, charged with being members of an unlawful association under section 98 of the criminal code.

Referring to announcement of C. P. Burgess, director of federal relief here, that 150 men were in the temporary camp for the strikers at Lumsden, 30 miles north of here, a strikers' bulletin declared that statement was "a deliberate attempt to demoralize the strikers and undermine our public support."

"Strikers are determined not to return to the camps and are confident that with assured support of the Regina citizens, the federal government will be forced to grant concessions on our just demands," the bulletin said.

COAL STRIKE IN U. S. LOOMING

The joint wage conference recessed subject to the call of the chairman.

NINE KILLED IN OLD SOL HEAT

ROME, July 29.—Nine deaths from sunstroke during the preceding 24 hours were reported today from northern regions of Italy with an oppressive heat wave continuing.

Beer Parlors In Regina Approved

REGINA, June 29.—Sixty Saskatchewan municipalities went to the polls yesterday to vote on beer parlors and today counting of the votes showed 49 voted for establishment of the beer parlors, 10 rejected beer parlors and one resulted in a tie. The tie vote was reported from Central Butte.

Due to observance of Dominion Day, there will be no issue of the Bulletin on Monday.

BAN PLACED ON EXTENDING RELIEFERS AID

New Emergency Regulation Prohibits Help to Trekkers

WINNIPEG, June 29.—Police ban against helping any of western Canada's thousands of relief camp strikers in their plans to march on Ottawa went out Friday. Almost at the same time the order went forth to Manitoba's 1,500 relief camp strikers to be ready to start for Ottawa Sunday night.

These were the most significant developments in the tense situation which gripped the west from the pulp camps of the head of the lakes to Regina.

While his 500 men held in check a battalion of 2,000 relief camp strikers at Regina, Col. S. T. Wood, assistant commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police there, said any farmers offering to assist strikers with clothing, food, shelter

FLOODS SURGE JAPAN HOMES

TOKYO, June 29—Rainstorms, floods and wind spread death and destruction over a wide area of central and western Japan today, including the cities of Osaka, Kyoto and southeastern Korea. The list of 15 known dead is expected to increase when communication is restored. Scores are missing and injured.

It is estimated more than 30,000 homes are inundated, with inhabitants driven to the roofs.

At Kyoto, the famous Gojo bridge over the river Kamo was swept away, forty houses also being torn from their bases and carried away. Today's storms followed torrential rains yesterday in southeastern Japan.

Tennis Star Now Deprived Rapiers Use

JEAN BOROTRA

Challenged to a duel by Didier Pouplain, Paris tennis writer, Jean Borotra, famous French tennis star, playing at Wimbledon, announced he would accept. Pouplain criticized Borotra for not playing singles on Fsench Davis Cup team.

Duel? Non! Tennis Ace Life Spared

WIMBLEDON, England, June 29.—The threatened duel between Jean Borotra, France's veteran tennis ace, and Didier Poulain, Parisian sports writer, has been called off, Borotra revealed today.

The two were to have met on the field of honor because of an exchange of acerbities in the Paris newspaper L'Auto over Borotra's decision not to play in the Davis Cup singles this year, although he entered the All-English tournament at Wimbledon.

"Everything has been settled to my satisfaction," the bounding Basque said, "and I have been assured Poulain never meant I was a poor sport."

STARVING MAN KILLS HIMSELF

HILL CITY, S.D., June 29—Joe McCarville, 69, shot and killed himself last night to avoid what he deemed certain starvation. He left a note which read:

"I have existed 11 days today on part of a loaf of bread and four potatoes. So I think I will end this suffering with a six-shooter."

THREE KILLED BY FATAL GAS DISUSED WELL

Two Follow Aged Man To Death in Futile Rescue Attempt

CONSORT, June 29.—Death, lurking in a gas-filled well used as a cesspool in the Sedalia district south of here, struck with fatal suddenness for three residents of the district Friday evening. All were overcome by the fumes and toppled into the pool to drown before help arrived.

The dead:

JOHN DAHL, 70.
JOHN DURKSEN, 35.

Norris Dahl and Durksen met their deaths as a result of rescue efforts. Young Dahl had rushed to the well to aid his father, first to be overcome by the fumes. Rushing down a ladder inside the well, the young man toppled to his doom after being overcome.

Durksen, accompanied by another resident of the district, followed in the footsteps of the two other men to meet a similar fate. He had just commenced to clamber down the ladder when he shot off the side of the wall to his destruction.

Horror-stricken bystanders who rushed to the scene after Durksen's doom realized the lurking danger and finally brought up the bodies with grappling hooks and chains. Artificial respiration efforts were of no avail, combination of gas and water proving fatal to all the victims.

Survived by a wife and four small children, Mr. Durksen was highly respected in the district. A pioneer of the district, John Dahl is survived by four sons and two daughters.

EDEN'S ACTION AROUSES IRE

LONDON, June 29.—Some quarters of the British press attacked the government today for its action sending Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, to Rome as a peacemaker in the Ethiopian dispute.

The Daily Express on its front page printed a letter from Lord Beaverbrook, in which he described the British government's offer to hand over a strip of British Somaliland to Ethiopia as a "monstrous, detestable proceeding."

Saying the offer was made to compensate Ethiopia for territory which she would give the Italians, Lord Beaverbrook declared it would involve "the handing over of free British subjects to a land where slavery exists."

Break All Records

When Fred, left, and Al Key touch their feet to the ground again they will be holders of the "to-and-fro" championship of the air. The brothers are shown just before their take-off at Meridian, Miss., in the "Ole Miss" on June 4. A refueling endurance record fell as the ship roared onward hour after hour. They are still up.

New Mystery Airplane to Be Tested Monday

LONDON, June 29.—The new British mystery airplane "Fairey Fantome," claimed to be the heaviest armed air fighter in the world, will be brought from its closely guarded hangar at Hendon Monday to roar over the heads of experts in a display for the society of British Air Craft Constructors.

The ship carries four machine guns, one on each lower wing and two atop the fuselage, and also a quick-firing gun which throws 20-millimeter shells.

The magazine of this gun carries 60 shells, fired through the propellor hub instead of through synchronized spaces of the whirling blades.

This new machine, expected to reach a speed of 250 miles per hour, has been secretly constructed at a British factory to compete in the international fighting plane competition to be held in Belgium in July.

PORTUGAL HIT BY TORNADOES

LISBON, Portugal, June 29.—Tornadoes and cloudbursts swept almost all of Portugal today leaving an undetermined number of dead and injured and causing widespread property damage.

Oporto was plunged into darkness this afternoon when a tornado and torrential rain struck the city causing panic among the populace. Moncorbo was flooded and several children were reported missing.

The Rising Tide of Journalism—An Editorial from The Vancouver Sun

In three more months Canada's reign of stagnation will be over and her present troubles ended.

Yesterday's New Brunswick election which utterly swept away the Conservative government and elected 43 Liberals to a Legislature of 48 was no mere provincial issue.

It was an overwhelming uprising of the people against Premier Bennett and his policies. Against the man who calls Canadians welchers when they can't pay their debts, and derelicts when they can't find a job. Against the man who tells the young people of Canada to go back to the days of their forefathers, and back to the living standards of the early pioneers.

The story told in New Brunswick is the story that will be told in three months in Canada.

Removal of Premier Bennett will end the tension that has gripped Canada with the resultant pitting of one element against another and will swing Canada back into the forward movements of Liberal policies that will sell our wheat and lumber and livestock.

The rising tide of Liberalism in Canada—and indeed throughout the world—has been so marked that even an engulfment of this magnitude ceases to surprise us.

It becomes merely further and quite unnecessary evidence of the complete turn to Liberal thinking in this country. There has been a multitude of reformers who have offered this and that panacea for the public ills.

Unfortunately most of them have begun and ended their systems of social philosophy with the proposition that certain abuses have to be ended. A political creed or an economic formula for any country must look beyond the firing squad.

No one can bring prosperity to any nation whose sole idea of government is to lop off heads either of practices or of individuals. There must be some constructive basis, some program of progress at which the public can look and upon which leaders can act.

The wheels of trade must be made to move more freely again. We must trade with those who desire to trade with us. Some effort must be made to absorb those thousands of men who have been displaced in the process of technology.

The people of Canada have faith that these things can be accomplished through the principles of Liberalism.

The present natural phenomenon in New Brunswick shows it clearly.

It seems to be obvious now that a constructive Liberal policy that aims at something more than temporary reforms will have pretty close to ten million Canadians behind it. And the hope is beginning to be justified that in three months with the sick-minded policy of reaction and inertia behind us, our troubles in Canada may at long last be over.

AIRPLANE TEST NEARS TRAGEDY

MERIDIAN, Miss., June 29.—A fire aboard the "Ole Miss," record-holding airplane, today almost abruptly ended the flight of Fred and Al Key as they continued in the air almost two days past the new endurance flight record state. The blaze, about the battery, was extinguished without consequence.

The silver monoplane had just taken on a load of gasoline and the refuelling plane was alongside the "Ole Miss" when the battery burst into flames without warning.

Al Key, at the controls, immediately cut off the plane's motor. He then snatched the fire extinguisher and within a few seconds put out the blaze.

MINIMUM FOR WHEAT IS SURE

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, June 29. — New grain board bill will include provision for the farmer getting the minimum price for his wheat but otherwise will be reported to the house unchanged, though with the Liberal minority report respecting some of the compulsory features of the bill. The Liberals hold that the present machinery should not be scrapped, but the government will go through with its original proposals.

SPAIN FACING MARTIAL LAW

MADRID, June 29—Premier Alejandro Lerroux' cabinet, in extraordinary session, last night declared martial law in the city and province of Barcelona in an effort to halt increasing terrorism. Ordinary police methods have been futile against the wave of bombings, shootings, robberies and acts of sabotage, it was stated.

The ministers of war and interior will go to Barcelona by airplane today, Lerroux said, personally to direct the start of the greatest cleanup of crime ever launched in Spain. All known gangsters, terrorists and hoodlums will be rounded up and be given long prison terms, Lerroux added.

Radium Refinery To Work Full Time

TORONTO, June 29—The Port Hope refinery operated by the Eldorado Gold Mines Ltd. in the production of radium will be running at full capacity by September of this year, handling concentrates at the rate of about 30 tons monthly, president Charles Labine announced today at the annual meeting of the Eldorado shareholders.

SIR JAMES PUTS LID ON TIGHT

OTTAWA, June 29. — "All strikers holding membership in any of the strike organizations are to be considered as Communists," it was officially stated at R. C. M. P. headquarters this morning. Under this ruling section 98 is being invoked and any striker trying to trek from one province to another is considered a Communist and liable to arrest as such.

Furthermore, any person giving aid or comfort to any such is also liable to prosecution.

R.C.M.P. senior officers pointed out today that relief camp workers' associations and similar bodies are affiliated with the Workers' Unity League, which is linked up with the Communist party. The leaders are declared to be known Communists and members of the relief camp strikers' organizations are to be considered also as Communists.

"Sufficient police forces are now stationed at Regina, Winnipeg and Nipigon to prevent any further movement of strikers eastward," Sir James MacBrien stated to the Bulletin this morning. "They will prevent any movement of camp strikers, Communists or unemployed led by Communists towards the east."

R.C.M.P. headquarters were silent about the secret order-in-council passed by the government on Wednesday, giving them further powers.

Attempts to obtain copies of the order-in-council met with refusal at the privy council office, and the department of justice professed ignorance of any such order.

U. S. to Bury Its Gold Store In Fort Vault

WASHINGTON, June 29. — United States government gold valued at many million dollars will be buried in the middle of Fort Knox, Ky., where 1,300 soldiers are on duty.

Treasury draftsmen, it was disclosed today, have been ordered to rush construction of a huge underground vault at the army post as part of the government's policy of removing monetary stocks from vulnerable coast cities.

Much gold now stored in New York and Philadelphia will be transferred to Fort Knox. Not long ago nearly $3,300,000,000 were sent from San Francisco to Denver. The Rocky Mountains and the Appalachians thus will guard the precious bullion from any possible enemy invasion or mobs.

The government's gold stocks total more than $9,000,000,000.

3 DIE, 2 HURT IN CAR CRASH

REED CITY, Mich., June 29.—Three persons were killed and two others seriously injured today when their automobile crashed into the side of a freight train near here.

The dead:

LAHN WOLFF, 19.

MISS FLORENCE BERGER, 25, a newspaper reporter.

JACK A. COOPER, 23, managing editor of the Osceola County Herald, who was engaged to be married to Miss Berger, suffered a possible skull fracture, as did Jack Hannon, 23. All of the dead and injured lived here.

Youth's Body Found Slain In Swim Tank

GREENWICH, Conn., June 29.—The body of Arthur M. Collens, Jr., 22-year-old son of Arthur M. Collens, Hartford insurance executive, was found today in a newly constructed swimming pool near the Blythewood Sanitarium, from which he vanished earlier this week. Alex Heim, an attendant at the sanitarium, who found the body, said the hands and feet had been bound tightly with clothesline.

MORE ROMAN LEGIONS POURING INTO ETHIOPIA

Five Ships Carrying 3,000 Leave Rome — Whose Inhabitants Generally Favors War.

ROME, June 29—The army Italy is massing in Eritrea and Somaliland for possible action against Ethiopia, passed the 100,000 mark last night.

Five ships sailed from Italian ports Friday with about 3,000 men aboard, pushing the total number of soldiers, officers, technical experts and skilled workmen concentrating in this nation's African colonies nearly half-way to the goal of 25,000 men expected to be reached by the end of September.

The 100,000 figure does not include thousands dispatched quietly before formal mobilization orders were issued. Neither does it include the thousands that have gone out in small units on regular ships. It represents only the total of official communiques announcing sailings.

GUARD IDLE FUNDS: STOP CREDIT BOOM

United States Treasury Gold Climbs to New High

WASHINGTON, June 29—Idle bank funds in the United States touched a towering all-time peak last night, surrounded by a bitter dispute over methods of preventing their possible transition into a runaway credit boom.

Closely allied, the treasury's vast gold hoard climbed again to a new high, due, some economists thought, to the receipt of the last shipments of that metal acquired in the government's recent sally to the defence of the French franc.

Capital for which the member banks of the federal reserve system could find no acceptible borrowers stood at a point officially estimated at a little more than $2,500,000,000. All reserves on deposit at the Reserve Banks totalled $5,029,000,000. The gold stocks aggregated $9,109,000,000. Both figures showed big increases for the past week.

Meanwhile the Omnibus Banking Bill, by which the Roosevelt administration hopes to provide a strongly centralized control over the process of turning the $2,500,000,000 excess reserves into bank loans, finally was approved by a senate banking sub-committee and neared a parliamentary battle royal on the senate floor.

AIDING ANY MARCHER NOW AN OFFENCE

or transportation would be liable to arrest.

March of Manitoba's contingent of unemployed relief camp workers will get under way Sunday night, T. McCarthy, chairman of the relief camp workers supporting conference strike committee announced at Winnipeg last night. Time and method of transport for the more than 1,500 men quartered here was not divulged.

Decision to move on to the federal capital without 2,000 of their number held back by police at Regina was made known in an appeal issued last night for funds to enable the strikers to reach their objective.

TRUCKS IMPOUNDED

It was not known how the leaders planned to move their small army. Passenger travel by truck in Manitoba, governed by the highways act, is punishable by fine and imprisonment. Hon. W. J. Major, attorney-general, announced Thursday trucks would also be impounded.

Strong police guards are on duty at strategic points adjacent to the city's vast network of railway yards and little possibility was seen by authorities of strikers in any number eluding vigilant police. First stop on the scheduled trek was said to be Fort William where another unit was believed to be waiting.

PORT ARTHUR ARMY

The Industrial Lumber Workers' Union at Port Arthur meanwhile claimed 1,000 men in the pulpwood camps of the Lakehead and Nipigon districts had quit work in answer to a general strike call. They demand increased wages.

U.S. Communists Threaten Bennett

OTTAWA, June 29.—Preparations have been made by the Dominion government to exert every effort that lies within its powers to maintain peace and order at Regina and any other points where relief camp strikers have congregated, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett declared Friday.

He had received numerous messages, Mr. Bennett said, to assure him that the law-abiding people of the Dominion would support him in restraining those who would defy authority.

A message of a different nature was received from a Communistic organization in the United States demanding that he yield to the requests of the strikers and threatening "the United States" would hold him responsible.

Sir James Thinks Police Force Adequate

OTTAWA, Jun 29.—"It is considered there are adequate police forces now at Regina, Winnipeg and Nipigon to prevent illegal movement eastward of camp strikers, Communists or unemployed under the control of Communists." This announcement was made by Commissioner of Royal Canadian Mounted Police Sir James McBrien today.

"These reserves," he said, "have been concentrated without weakening the force in eastern Canada where certain reserves are still on hand."

"Also the normal work of the force is being carried on in almost every part of Canada," the Commissioner concluded.

Montreal Has 77 Fire Horses: Nothing To Do

MONTREAL, June 29—Montreal's fire department is to become 100 per cent motorized and the city administration has before it the task of getting rid of 77 horses still answering the fire gong.

B.C. Capitulates On Strike Relief

VICTORIA, June 29—British Columbia will not grant relief to strikers but where municipal authorities decide to grant relief the province will contribute its share, Hon. G. S. Pearson, minister of labor, Friday informed a delegation of striking longshoremen from Vancouver who asked relief for the strikers.

Annuity Business Costing $450,000

OTTAWA, June 29. — Annuity business of the department of labor is costing the Dominion treasury around $450,000 a year, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance, told the House Friday. The rates were below actuarial figures and he believed it would be wise at another session to go carefully into them.

HULL, England, June 29—Stated by doctors to be extremely rare cases here two men recently died from anthrax of origin unknown.

Sign For Peace

LONDON, June 29.—Nine million people have already signed the "national peace ballot" being circulated by peace societies throughout the United Kingdom.

BRITAIN AT ROME MADE CONCESSIONS

Offered to Cede Somaliland Zone in Interests of Peace

LONDON, June 29.—Confronted with determination of Premier Benito Mussolini to carry out aggressive plans in Ethiopia and suspicions of France regarding the Anglo-German naval treaty, British statesmen cast about Friday for new approaches to the problem of building up a peace and security system in Europe.

Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, spent the morning reporting to Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, on the results of his conversations with Mussolini and Premier Pierre Laval of France.

Sir Samuel told George Lansbury, Labor opposition leader, he would make a statement in the House of Commons Monday on the situation.

SEVERE CHECK

On the 21st anniversary of the shot at Sarajevo that set off the Great War, it was obvious Capt. Ede had met a severe check at Rome. Mussolini turned down all offers.

Britain went so far, it is reported, as to offer to cede part of British Somaliland to Ethiopia in compensation for Ethiopian concessions to Italy. This would give Ethiopia a corridor to the sea, something she has long been anxious to get. But Il Duce did not consider the concessions adequate.

SECURITY MENACED

"The bleak fact stands out," says the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in a dispatch from Paris, "that the whole collective security system is menaced by seemingly certain destruction within the space of a few months."

MINE GUARDS HELD HOSTAGES IN RIFLE FIRE

Besieged Men Unable to Return Volleys of Attackers

GALENA, Kas., June 29.—National guardsmen poured into the plant of the Eagle-Picher Mining and Smelting Co. here this morning to rescue 28 strike besieged guards whose attacker had fled under cover of darkness.

GALENA, Kas., June 29.—Twelve guards were besieged in the Eagle Picher Mining and Smelting Co. office near here last night as strike sympathizers poured regular volleys of rifle and pistol fire into the wooden building.

The guards were reported unable to return the fire for fear of shooting motorists passing behind the gunners' position. The gunners were lying behind an abandoned mine car.

TALK BY PHONE

One of the besieged guards, who did not give his name, talked to newspapermen by telephone and said none had been injured. He said they could not see or locate the snipers to return the fire.

He said he did not consider himself or his 11 fellows to be in danger as "they won't rush us. They know we're ready for them."

TROOP UNITS ENROUTE

"We're all right," he said. "The soldiers will be here in an hour or two and no one's coming any closer to this building tonight."

Two units of the Kansas National Guard were en route to Galena after a day of violence in the lead and zinc mine strike situation.

U.S. Is Now Facing Staggering Debt

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The United States government neared the end of its fiscal year today with a gross debt of almost $28,700,000,000.

In the face of this figures gleaned from a statement prepared for a congressional committee by Marriner S. Eccles, Federal Reserve Board Governer, indicated the per capita debt for all public bodies in the United States was $370 compared to $991 in Britain.

Meanwhile bill-drafting experts were busy preparing legislation to whittle the federal indebtedness down a bit with the tax-the-rich program President Roosevelt has advocated.

Prince Receives Sir Edward Beatty

LONDON, June 29—Sir Edward Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was received Friday by the Prince of Wales at St. James Palace.

Breaks Record

MERIDIAN, Miss., June 28.—The airplane "Ole Miss," piloted by two grimy but hilariously happy brothers, Fred and Al Key, set a new world's endurance flight record at 3:13½ p.m. Thursday, after 24 days in the air.

Eyes shining as she gazed again on a world she had not seen for 12 years, Clara Phillips, once named in flaming headlines as the "tiger woman," now mild and near middle age, is pictured as she walked free from prison in Tehachapi, Calif. The woman who slew with a hammer a rival for her husband's love went to her mother's home in Mesa, Calif., to begin life anew.

AUSSIE STAR DEFEATED BY SYDNEY WOOD

Reach Quarter-Finals in Men's Singles At Wimbledon

LONDON, June 29.—Sydney B. Wood, blond New Yorker smashed his way into the quarter-final round of the All-England tennis championships today with a 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 triumph over Harry Hopman, top-flight Australian.

Mme. Rene Mathieu of France, fifth seeded player, defeated Miss F. K. Scott of Great Britain, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, in the third round.

Wood's opponent in the quarter-finals will be Jack Crawford, top-ranking Australian, who eliminated George Patrick Hughes of Great Britain, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

HELEN WINS

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, former British and American champion, won in straight sets from Miss Susan Noel of England, 6-1, 6-3, shortly after Helen Jacobs, present American titleholder, had defeated another English girl, Nancy Lyle, 7-5, 6-1.

Also moving into the quarter-finals in men's singles was Roderich Menzel, big Czech, who defeated Enrique Maier, Spanish internationalist, 6-3, 6-0, 0-6, 6-3.

TO MEET CRAWFORD

Wood will play Crawford in the quarter-finals, with Menzel facing Fred Perry, the defending champion; and McGrath facing Baron Gottfried von Cramm, the German ace.

Completing the quarter-finalists in men's singles, H. W. (Bunny) Austin, skillful Briton, trounced E. D. Andrews of New Zealand, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-0, gaining the right to play Budge in the round of eight.

Austria Buying Hungarian Wheat

BUDAPEST, June 29.—Austria was committed to purchase 2,200,000 quintals (approximately 8,075,000 bushels) of Hungarian wheat during the economic year of 1935-36 by the commercial representatives of the two countries meeting here to improve Austro-Hungarian trade relations. The maximum price fixed by the agreement was 20 Austrian schillings (about $4.78) per quintal.

UP BOBS OLD HORSE-HEAD SEA MONSTER

The Steamship La Brea Vouches for Relative of Original Amy

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—The Pacific coast's horse-headed sea serpent, or one of its relatives, has bobbed up again—this time off Cape Mendocino.

It reared its huge head 10 feet out of water, D. J. La Doux, second officer of the steamship La Brea, declared in a letter received by the navy hydrographic office here Friday.

La Doux declared the serpent, which he described as "dirty greenish gray" in color, was clearly visible from the bridge of the La Brea as the ship passed within 200 feet of it.

"It was not a sea elephant, of which I have seen a great many," the ship's officer asserted.

La Doux said he saw the neck of the strange creature sticking four feet out of water. Then, as he watched, it reared upward 10 feet and turned its ridged eyes towards the steamer Arizona which was going into a fog bank two miles away.

After about four minutes, La Doux's letter stated, the monster sank beneath the water. La Doux said the Serpent's long neck tapered down to a body that was almost square.

The serpent, or serpents, had previously been reported seen all the way from British Columbia to the southern California coast.

Former Police Chief Wounded In Paris Duel

PARIS, June 25. — Jean Chiappe, fiery Corsican and former prefect of Paris police, shot and wounded Pierre Godin, Chiappe's predecessor as president of the Paris municipal council, in an early morning pistol duel today.

The adversaries exchanged four shots. Chiappe's last bullet struck Godin just above the right thigh, causing what physicians said later was a superficial wound.

Godin had criticized Chiappe's former administration of the police department. Chiappe, as president of the municipal council is unofficial "mayor" of Paris and one of its best known politicians.

Artist Lives After 100th Suicide Try

BUDAPEST, June 29. — Marika Nagy, a young and pretty artist, can claim to be called the most determined suicide. But she has still to succeed in her efforts at self-destruction.

After being rescued from the Danube, into which she had jumped, she confessed that this was her 100th attempt to commit suicide.

According to the police, Marika Nagy declared that she had:

Tried to starve herself fourteen times.

Various other methods were adopted for the remaining nineteen attempts.

Olds Nominates Grisdale, U.F.A.

OLDS, Alta., June 29—Hon. F. S. Grisdale, minister of agriculture, Friday was named United Farmers of Alberta candidate for Olds riding in the coming provincial elections.

Staphylococci Of Food Poison Found

LOS ANGELES, June 29—The staphylococci of food poisoning has been isolated by Dr. R. V. Stone, chief of Los Angeles county's health laboratories, who disclosed he has separated from 70-odd known disease-causing bacteria, the noxious food poisoning germ.

Troops Enter Gates of Peiping

PEIPING, June 29.—Chinese troops rebellious at Japanese—dictated orders for the evacuation of Hopei Province, fought their way to the very gates of this "Forbidden City" Friday, only to be beaten back by Loyal troops after an all-night battle. Martial law was declared in Peiping, and all 16 gates closed. Two were reopened Friday afternoon, however. A curfew law requiring all persons to be off the streets after 8 p.m. was issued.

MUTINEERS IN PEIPING DESERT

PEIPING, China, June 29—Additional reinforcements of the Chinese army arrived today as Peiping returned to normal with a rebellion of troops apparently definitely smashed by loyal soldiers.

The mutineers have disappeared and gates of the historic walls surrounding Peiping were opened once again. Police maintained strict patrols and at night-time nobody was allowed on the streets.

Vernacular newspapers said government troops had encountered 30 mutineers in the vicinity of Fengtai and killed five of them and captured three, the remainder escaping.

SLOT MACHINES PREVENT CHANGE IN BIG NICKLE

OTTAWA, June 29. — If there weren't so many slot machines in Canada, finance minister E. N. Rhodes would change the design and size of the Canadian nickle.

Pressed by Hon. W. D. Euler (Lib., North Waterloo) in the house tonight to make the nickles smaller, Mr. Rhodes said they were in his opinion "one of the most hideous coins we have."

Because of the number of slot machines, telephones, for instance, he could not change the design and he hoped in the future it could be done making the coins "more in keeping with artistic tastes."

Big Pile-Driver Sold For Scrap

VANCOUVER, June 29. — Second largest pile-driver in the world, the Tarzan II, owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway company, has been sold to the Canadian Junk Company to be broken up.

The pile-driver was used in construction of a concrete pile dock at Halifax. When work was begun on Pier B.C. in Vancouver, it was shipped across Canada piece by piece and reassembled here. It was capable of driving piles 95 feet long and 24 inches in diameter.

Total weight of hammer, follower and casting on the Tarzan was about 13½ tons. Actual striking parts weighed two tons and the stroke was 36 inches. Sixty blows a minute were delivered, and a crew of 13 men and a foreman was required to operate the huge vessel.

Sculpture Is Aged

Painters Of Peter

BELGRADE, June 29.—More than 40 artists are competing in a contest for the best portrait of 11-year-old King Peter of Yugoslavia, son of the assassinated King Alexander.

Probe Postponed

OTTAWA, June 29. — Argument of counsel in Judge E. J. Daly's probe into Miss Agnes MacPhail's charges that Inspector J. D. Dawson of the penitentiaries branch made abusive references to her in conversation with A. G. Hall, former convict, was postponed today until next Friday.

Jungle Kings' Toll

RANCHI, India, June 29.—Wild animals killed 137 persons in Bihar and Orissa districts in one year, tigers alone taking 44 lives. Leopards, bears, elephants and snakes accounted for the rest.

Women Threaten

LYALLPUR, India, June 29—Forty Sikh women have made a pact to fast to death unless certain warring factions of the community do not come to an understanding.

PORT ACTIVITY NORMAL NOW IN VANCOUVER

Some 680 Members of Canadian Union Work 14 Ships

VANCOUVER, June 29.—Some 680 members of the Canadian Waterfront Workers' Association are working 14 of 15 deep sea ships in port and by today port activity has returned to normal, J. E. Hall, president of the British Columbia Shipping Federation, said.

The E. D. Kingsley Navigation Company's coastal fleet arrived in port last night and the men, members of the Seafarers' Industrial Union of Canada, announced they would vote today whether to walk out in sympathy with striking Vancouver longshoremen or continue on the shift.

Members of the Vancouver and District Waterfront Workers' Association, who walked out June 6, are maintaining peaceful picketing on the waterfront. A canteen has been set up on Powell street where 200 pickets are given two meals a day. The canteen is run by stewards and cooks of coast-wise vessels who walked out in sympathy with the longshoremen.

No Communications Department Now

OTTAWA, June 29—Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie told the House of Commons last night the government will not proceed with its intention of establishing a department of communications. The new department was forecast in the throne speech at the opening of the session.

R. J. GILLIS CELEBRATES LONG SERVICE

Official of Public Works Arrived Here 44 Years Ago

Resident of this city almost continually from 1891, R. J. Gillis of the provincial public works department on Saturday will celebrate the 44th anniversary of his arrival here and his 34th anniversary in public service.

Speaking of early days here, Mr. Gillis on Saturday recalled that he first saw Edmonton when, as a member of the crew that built the last mile of the Calgary and Edmonton railway, he arrived at the then Strathcona, after coming with the steel from Blackfalds, Wetaskiwin and Leduc.

He said his gang camped near the site where the King Edward school now stands.

OLD FAIR GROUNDS

The day after his arrival there was held—as there is now on July 1—a grand sports day here. At that time it was at the exhibition grounds, which were located on the Hudson's Bay company reserve north of the company's present store and stretching over to the site now occupied by the King Edward hotel. Many railroad men came in from outside points to enjoy the occasion.

CLUB PRESIDENT

He first came west in 1883. "We saw real hard times then," he said. "But we had to fight them through with little assistance. While times are hard today, we will, with the spirit of the pioneers, forge ahead. We not only require optimism, but along with it, vision. Let us, therefore, in the light of past experience, strive to make our province and Dominion a better place to live in."

Mr. Gillis is president of the "Quarter of a Century Club," of the Alberta Civil Service, open to members who have served 25 years or more.

Although a sea lion can consistently eat 20 pounds of fish a day, it can also endure long fasts, living entirely on its reserve fat.

LAVAL TAKES DEFENCE POWERS FROM DEPUTIES

WITHDRAWS BILL FOR $328,965,000 AS HOUSE QUITS

Will Exercise Spending by Decree, Claiming Germany is Vast War Factory.

PARIS, June 29.—Premier Pierre Laval, hurrying parliament home until October, startled the Chamber of Deputies last night by withdrawing the military appropriations bill with the intention of strengthening France's defences by decree.

The bill totalled 5,061,000,000 francs (about $328,965,000). Of the total, 1,106,000,000 francs was for the army, and 1,800,000,000 francs for the air force.

VAST WAR FACTORY

Laval's indications that he would promulgate the military appropriations by decree were expected to reinforce the intention of the left wing parties to keep a "vigilance committee" watching in Paris for any derogations of parliament's privileges, with enough signatures assured for a petition calling the chamber back if that were thought necessary.

GRANTS PASSED

Just before Laval withdrew the military appropriations bill, the chamber passed a measure authorizing 265,000,000 francs for naval defence. Other appropriations were 19,000,000 francs for the construction of the liner Normandie, and 60,000,000 francs to apply on the budget.

Parliament adjourned at dawn.

War Neutrality Measures Are Urged In U.S.

WASHINGTON, June 29—Saying that "the prospect for war abroad is far more ominous and imminent than it appeared at this season in 1914," Senator Clark (D., Mo.) appealed Friday in an address for public support for three neutrality resolutions introduced in the United States senate.

Clark, a member of the senate munitions investigating committee, outlined the powers of the resolutions, as follows:

A complete embargo (in event of foreign war) on the shipment of all arms, ammunition and other war materials.

A similar automatic embargo on all loans and credits to belligerents for the purchase of war materials.

A law forbidding the granting of passports to American citizens travelling in war zones or on belligerent ships.

Nazis Parade War Tank Fleet Treaty Banned

LONDON, June 29—The Daily Express said today that Germany now possesses a fleet of war tanks, despite the fact they are specifically forbidden under the treaty of Versailles.

The paper said the first review of the tank squadron was carried out secretly yesterday before officers of the Reichswehr in the outskirts of the capital.

No details as to the construction of the tanks were available, but the express said it "understands" Germany's possession of the fighting weapon will soon be revealed officially.

Win Damages In Car Crash Suit

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., June 29.—Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie in court here Friday ordered Chris Egger to pay Mrs. Anna Lyon $2,000 general damages and her husband, Alvin Lyon of Nobleford, Alta., $408 special and $500 general damages. Mr. and Mrs. Lyon had sued the Noble Farms, Ltd., Harold Clifton and Egger for $15,000 damages.

Mrs. Lyon was a passenger in Egger's automobile in April, 1934, when it collided with a light truck owned by Noble Farms, Ltd., and driven by Clifton. Mr. Justice Tweedie dismissed the action against Noble Farms, Ltd., and Clifton but held Egger responsible for the accident.

King Planning Busy Weeks

LONDON, June 29.—The King, looking bronzed and well, returned Friday by train from Sandringham House to London. He had rested there, recuperating from a slight attack of bronchial catarrh.

His Majesty will leave Buckingham Palace again Tuesday for Newmarket where he will remain at the royal pavilion until Saturday for the summer race meeting.

From Newmarket he will drive to Mildenhall in Suffolk for a review of the Royal Air Force. One week later, on July 13, 20,000 troops in the Aldershot command will be reviewed at Rushmoor.

On July 17 His Majesty will go to sea with the fleet, after reviewing it at Spithead the previous day. Various tactical manoeuvres will be executed.

C.P.R. Treasurer At 'Peg Retired

MONTREAL, June 29—H. W. Sweeny after 49 years of loyal and efficient service to the Canadian Pacific Railway, during the latter 27 of which he filled the responsible position of local treasurer at Winnipeg, will retire under the company's pension rules on June 29. Mr. Sweeny plans to live in Great Britain, and will take with him the hearty good wishes of a host of friends from coast to coast in this country. His retirement was announced today by L. B. Unwin vice-president and treasurer.

H. G. Byrne at present local treasurer at Vancouver, has been promoted to the post of local treasurer Winnipeg, succeeding Mr. Sweeny.

Mukden Arsenal Being Extended

MUKDEN, Manchukuo, June 29.—An extensive program of extension of activities at the Mukden arsenal will be completed by the end of June at a total cost of $1,500,000. Machine shops, bridge steel works, rolling stock plant, and a steel casting plant are the new additions to the arsenal, which employs about 12,000 men.

Ashton Takes Over As Militia Chief

OTTAWA, June 29—Succeeding Major General A. G. L. McNaughton as chief of the general staff, Major General E. C. Ashton, C.B., assumed those duties here Friday. General Ashton was appointed following some years as officer commanding military district No. 11 at Victoria.

Killed In Dive

VANCOUVER June 20. — Adam Jack, 31, who suffered a broken neck yesterday when he struck submerged object after a dive from a log boom in Burrard Inlet, died today. He was pulled from the water after the accident by other swimmers.

BUSINESS GOOD: WORKERS GET SALARY BONUS

STRATFORD, June 29.—Bonus cheques were given Friday to 67 employees of G. L. Griffith and Sons, Ltd., and their subsidiary, Federal Rubber Products. Employees with service of a year or over received a week's salary. Those with service of from six months to a year received a bonus of half a week's salary. Increased business was given as the reason for the bonus.

PROSPECT NOW FOR GOLD WITHIN MINT

OTTAWA, June 29.—The Canadian government is going on a hunt for gold. It won't be in the far north, along fast-running streams or deep in rock-bound soil. It will be held right in the government's own mint.

Finance minister E. N. Rhodes told the House of Commons tonight a machine costing $110,000 was being established in the mint to wash cases which were suspected of carrying away 1,000 ounces of gold each year. The washing machine was expected to pay for itself in three years at the rate of $35,000 a year.

Leaping Stunters Caught In Air By Airplanes

LOS ANGELES, June 29—Two daredevils, with small balloons attached to their bodies jumped from one airplane Friday and were "picked up" by planes which had dived beneath them.

The two stuntmen, H. H. Hedley and Charles Weaver, performed the trick high above San Fernando valley.

Twenty-two-inch balloons, covered with cheese cloth to prevent breakage, were strapped to the chests and the arms of the daredevils.

National Assn. of Manufacturers To Lose Its Leaders

WASHINGTON, June 29—Robert L. Lund, chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers, was reported authoritatively last night to be resigning from the federal business advisory council.

The report followed resignation of three other business leaders, disclosed Thursday. Officials still denied this indicated a break-up of the council, whose 44 business leader members advise the Roosevelt administration on the business viewpoint.

Leith-Ross Will Go To China

LONDON, June 29—Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British government financial expert, will leave for China August 10 to discuss financial and economic problems with the Nanking government. It has been suggested Sir Frederick may go by way of Washington in order to discuss Chinese financial problems with United States officials.

Murder Charge Fails

SASKATOON, June 29—A charge of murder of Anna May Benson, 10, laid against John Welch, of Carnduff, Sask., will be withdrawn when on Saturday morning at ten o'clock he will appear in R.C.M.P. court at Prince Albert, according to official information received this morning.

WOULD FORESTALL ANTAGONISM OF JAPANESE EMPIRE

LONDON, June 29.—A strong plea that Great Britain and the United States should co-operate diplomatically with Japan to maintain peace in the Far East, but should not assume an attitude which might force the Nipponese into a militaristic regime, was expressed here Friday by E. H. Pickering, Liberal member of parliament, addressing the conference for peace.

Referring to Japan Mr. Pickering declared:

"If Great Britain and the United States draw more closely together in a definitely anti-Japanese policy," he predicted, "then the militarists will triumph and Japan will become the champion of the east in ruthless antagonism to the west."

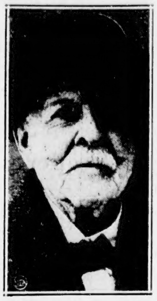
Rare Chickens: Six-Foot Tails

VANCOUVER, June 29.—A rare and expensive species of barnyard fowl has made its first appearance in Canada with the arrival here of two pair of "Chobekai," or Japanese long-tailed chickens.

Shoichi Ito, Japanese proprietor of a small store here, made a special trip to his native country to get the birds. The males have tails six feet long, but otherwise resemble ordinary chickens found on any Canadian poultry farm. One of them is multi-colored with brown predominating, and the other pure white. The hens could easily be mistaken for ordinary chickens, being without the plumage of the male.

The tails are soft and pliable and not easily broken, but nevertheless great care is taken with them. When they are exercised the tails are coiled up and placed in paper cases for protection. In Japan the cocks are kept on high perches.

Old Grad. He Quit College Back in 1863



For the seventy-fifth consecutive year, Major-General Amasa J. Parker (above) of Albany, N.Y., attended commencement exercises of Union College, Schenectady, from which he was graduated in 1863.

Stormed Assembly

EDINBURGH, June 29—Described by an ex-Moderator as "such audacity, such flaunting of a reverend court," a vigorous, personal appeal to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland for recognition as a minister, was unsuccessful.

SPECIAL RADIO BROADCAST ON DOMINION DAY

OTTAWA, June 29—Messages from Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales will be heard throughout Canada as part of a special Dominion Day broadcast arranged by the Canadian Radio Commission in association with the British Broadcasting Corporation and the National Broadcasting Company.

Starting at 5:30 p.m., C.S.T., with the music of the carillon at Ottawa, the program will continue with a message from G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian high commissioner to Great Britain speaking from Broadcasting House, London. This will be followed by messages from other parts of the British Isles.

A program in connection with the opening of the link joining Fort William with Winnipeg as part of the trans-Canada highway, will be heard. Speakers will include Premier M. F. Hepburn, Hon. R. J. Manion, Hon. Peter Heenan, and Hon. F. R. Clubb.

Farmers Leave To Dump Spud Load Overboard

PAINTER, Va., June 29.—More than 50 embattled eastern shore farmers left here last night for Deep Creek, Va., vowing to dump overboard potatoes reported being loaded on a large boat there.

This development came at the end of a day in which producers surrounded an automobile being loaded at Parksley and forced the vendor to store his potatoes at home.

The disciplined farmer said he was unaware of a ruling not to load either trucks or automobiles in the embargo enforced since Wednesday by growers protesting against low prices.

Old Sol Beaming Down As Citizens Are Holiday - Bound

Enthused by the prospect of fine weather, Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen and Masters and the Misses Citizen on Saturday started in on the long Dominion Day week-end with the object of enjoying it to the fullest extent. Given fair weather there will be plenty to do and to keep one and all amused and busy.

Railway companies and bus lines reported that a heavy exodus commenced from the city to watering places, mountain resorts and other summer spots on Friday. And to counter the exodus, they also reported a decided influx of people from ruritania bent on participating in the civic celebrations.

Many residents were known to have hied themselves hence by motor car and many cars from other provincial points as well as other provinces were noted on city streets.

BELATED WEEK-END

The same procedure held good on Saturday. Many fled from the round of city life to the quieter spots in the hinterland. Trips to the beaches have been infrequent this year owing to the superfluity of moisture. Now there is a desire to catch up on the week-ends.

For those who remain in or visit the city, there will be pleasant entertainment and diversion.

SPORTS A-PLENTY

On Saturday the finals of the Alberta seniors golf championships will be played at the Mayfair Golf and Country Club. At the Highlands club, also, during Saturday, will be played opening rounds of the city amateur golf competition.

On Sunday the Highlands club will see a continuation of the city amateur golf tourney, with the third and fourth rounds scheduled.

Starting at 3 p.m. there will be an exhibition till between Vegreville and Edmonton Bushers. Starting at 1.30 p.m. the junior baseball league will play a double-header at Boyle street.

Sunday will witness observance of Dominion Day with special sermons and appropriate music in the churches.

On Monday there will be general rejoicing and celebrations. The annual sports day will be held at the South Side athletic grounds with harness races, running races, track and field events and a variety of other attractions.

GOLF FINALS

At the Highlands club will be played the finals of the city amateur golf tourney. Baseball will hold sway at various parks, while bowling and tennis tournaments will be held at many clubs.

Theatres have made provision for holiday bills and those who desire their entertainment on the silver screen, will find their desires well met.

No doubt many gardens will be weeded and generally put in shape and lawns will be cut.

The lake resorts, such as at Cooking, Pigeon, Sylvan and elsewhere are catering to an anticipated large attendance.

The first legal execution by electricity is said to have been that of William Kemmler at Sing Sing prison, Aug. 6, 1890.

CURRIE GRANT DEBATE CAUSE

OTTAWA, June 29.—A vote of $50,000 to the family of Sir Arthur Currie, former commander of the Canadian corps, passed through the House of Commons last night amid praise from Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie, Liberal Leader Mackenzie King, and protests from J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader.

The grant to the Currie estate was "rather late in being made but greatly merited," Mr. King said.

Mr. Woodsworth said there were hundreds of men who did as great service in their spheres overseas as General Currie, who had done well during and after the war. "I think of the large numbers of the rank and file who have had no such tribute paid to them although they are greatly in need," he added.

The C. C. F. leader said until all returned soldiers were in good shape financially, and the young men of the country, "I think it is quite improper to make a large grant of this kind."

There were times when recognition of an individual reflected recognition of an army, and this was one of them, Mr. King said. The grant, he insisted, would take nothing away from any returned man or dependents.

Tourist Summer Cottage Fixings Are Duty Free

OTTAWA, June 29—A further development is seen in the policy of the Dominion government to encourage tourist traffic and summer residents in Canada. In amended regulations now being issued, Hon. R. C. Matthews, Minister of National Revenue, is providing for the free admission of furniture and household effects when brought in on the first arrival by non-residents of this country for use in furnishing summer cottages. This is conditioned on such effects having been owned by them for at least six months prior to first arrival.

WHAT IT COULD DO

Officials of the wheat pools have been at Ottawa urging the creation of a compulsory wheat board with power to take complete charge of all the grain grown in the western provinces and hold or market it as they see fit.

The officials seem unanimous in the opinion that the grain exchange is a den of iniquity and that the grain dealers are gamblers. What they did not show is that a board could have been any more successful in selling wheat to the Government than Mr. McFarland has been, or that a board could have sold wheat abroad at any better price than Mr. McFarland was offered and refused to take.

Since the idea behind the grain board scheme is to hold wheat for a price, it is up to somebody to show that Mr. McFarland has not been doing that well enough. With 200,000,000 million bushels on hand he may reasonably claim he doesn't need any board to tell him how to buy wheat on Government account, or hold it after he has bought.

The one thing a compulsory board could do that Mr. McFarland could not do is raise the price to the home consumer and make the Canadian flour-eater pay for "fire sales" of wheat abroad. Since they have not advanced any other explanation that bears on the subject, that probably is the unspoken thought in the minds of the advocates of a compulsory grain board.

THE DOMINION

This Dominion of ours is passing through troubled times. Economic conditions are bad, and have not fulfilled the hopes, promises and predictions of substantial improvement.

Canadians are not wholly sentimental. They have a wholesome regard to material considerations. Blind loyalty to a political structure is not their dominant characteristic. They are asking themselves, now as never before, whether Confederation has made good the promises upon which it was built.

In both the Atlantic provinces and the Pacific province there have been strong and insistent claims that the extremes of the Dominion have not got a fair share of the benefits of the union. In the west there has been talk of secession, more reasoned and therefore more dangerous than ever before.

These feelings of dissatisfaction necessarily color the thought of the public in regard to the Dominion. The shrieking type of loyalty is rather at a discount at present.

What the Canadian people are thinking about just now is how public policies can be re-shaped so as to make Confederation the beneficial measure it was intended to be, and can and should be, for all sections of Canada. They intend that these readjustments shall be made. And in point of fact they must be made.

That, rather than oratory about the greatness of our fore-fathers in devising the plan of union, is the matter of present and very practical importance to the individual citizen and to the nation. The golden age of Canada is in the future, not the past, if we have collective sense in proportion to our opportunities.

"SCHOOL'S OUT"

"School's out"; and Tommy and Mary are chanting the old refrain, "even as you and I" in the years that are gone:

> "No more lessons, no more books,
> No more teacher's cross-eyed looks."

Who wouldn't like to turn back the hands of the clock and be a boy, or girl, again for the next two months? Two solid months to play in, to explore, to stay up late and sleep late in the morning, to do what one may please, perhaps to live for a while at a lake or in the mountains, fancy free and foot loose. Most of the older ones can only dimly recall the time when they had eight whole weeks' holiday. Happy childhood; "If youth but knew."

But there are the older Tommys and Marys, the boys and girls who are leaving the public schools and the high schools, and some of whom recently left the University, for good, to step out into the great world and start the serious business of life. What is to be their fortune?

That is a less pleasant question to contemplate, but it is one that has to be faced, by the boys and girls themselves and by their parents. It should also have been faced during the winter months by the legislatures and by parliament. For the sad fact is their prospect is none too bright at present.

A good many boys who left school and university last year are among the two thousand men who are trying to make their way to Ottawa to ask for a chance to earn a living. And ten times as many are living at home or in relief camps, filled with the same yearning to get going on a job and at the making of a life.

In most cases the older girls can make themselves useful around the house if no suitable employment offers, for the time at least. But what of the great army of boys going out now from the schools not to return? That is one of the tragic problems of the hour.

Two things are suggested at this school-closing time. Whenever Canada takes up seriously the matter of reconstruction we shall have to make an end of the paradox observable everywhere at present: old men and women working to support young men and women in idleness, the former afraid to quit their jobs and the latter fretting because they cannot find jobs.

Then the older folks will be retired on pensions, not pittances; and the young folks will come into their rightful inheritance, a chance to work and earn, and marry, and found homes, and live normal wholesome lives as Canadians have been won't to do.

When that time comes it will be "school's out" for those who have hardly known a real holiday for thirty, forty or fifty years; and the day of opportunity will have come for those who are young and strong and filled with energy and ambition.

These things will come to pass. They must. The machine is here to stay and multiply; and the machine is a blessing, not a curse.

Forty Years Ago

From the Files of The Edmonton Bulletin

Francois Dufresne, who for fifty years was in the Hudson's Bay service, died recently at Onion Lake.

A bill has been introduced in parliament to do away with the useless householder qualification for voters in elections to the Commons in the Territories. The qualification will now be the same in federal as in local elections; residence of a year in the Territories and three months in the district.

J. Kelly has received a letter from Alex. Wilson, who left several weeks ago. He is now at Rossland, the new gold mining town near the boundary in the west Kootenay country. The place is only four months old but is nearly as large as Edmonton and is booming.

H. H. Lawrence and his son Sheridan Lawrence started for their home at Fort Vermilion, Peace River, last week. They take out supplies and machinery, for a small water power grist mill which Mr. Lawrence will run in connection with his farm. He has been farming successfully at Ft. Vermilion for the past ten years.

The ladies of the W.C.T.U. have placed a water barrel at the east side of the Bulletin building for the use of passers-by.

A vote to raise $400 by debentures with which to complete a school was defeated in Mill Creek school district on Monday by a vote of 10 to 8.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Edmonton's big summer exhibition opens tomorrow (Thursday) with a procession of 1000 school children to the grounds.

From July last until the end of May, 89,765 immigrants entered Canada through ocean ports, and 37,160 from the United States.

St. Petersburg: The wave of disorder sweeping over Russia has reached Odessa, on the Black Sea, where a general strike, accompanied by rioting and bloodshed, has occurred.

Stockholm: There was a stormy session of the Riksdag, with strong talk of war with Norway. A peaceful separation of the two countries is unlikely. King Oscar may lose both crowns.

The hospital board has decided to accept the offer made by the Hudson Bay Co. to sell the western half of the unsurveyed portion of the company's lands on Saskatchewan avenue for a hospital site.

The second trial of King, for the murder of Hayward at Lesser Slave Lake, was concluded in supreme court yesterday, the accused being again found guilty and again sentenced to death.

St. Petersburg: Sixty thousand reservists have been called to the colors to suppress the rebellion in Poland.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Ottawa: The investigating commission spent the day looking into drug and bandage contracts handled by the Carleton Drug Co.

Ottawa: Sir Richard McBride, premier of British Columbia, told the Davidson commission the circumstances of his purchase of two submarines from a Seattle firm.

London: The Times demands that the country be told the truth about the war. It says there is no immediate prospect of the enemy being driven out of Belgium, and that Great Britain will have to "set its teeth."

New York: Mr. Bryan, late secretary of state, spoke to an audience that filled Madison Square Gardens, at a pro-German rally.

The department of agriculture is advising farmers to hire harvest hands early, as they may be scarce.

Winnipeg: The commission investigating the parliament buildings contract will also probe the building of the agricultural college.

Poems That Live

SWEET CONTENT

Art thou poor, yet hast thou golden slumbers?
O sweet content!
Art thou rich, yet is thy mind perplexed?
O punishment!
Dost thou laugh to see how fools are vexed
To add to golden numbers golden numbers?

O sweet content!
Swimm'st thou in wealth, yet sink'st in thine own tears?
O punishment!
Then he that patiently want's burden bears,
No burden bears, but is a king, a king!
O sweet content! O sweet, sweet content!
Work apace, apace, apace, apace;

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

On a recent trip through some of the bypaths of the province, the thing that most interested me apart from the immediate purpose of the trip, was the number of men who want to know more about the sea and ships, in this column. Apparently more sailormen than we suspected, have achieved their ambition to buy a farm and quit the sea.

J. S. Cowper

From Nordegg, which I hope to visit shortly, comes an enquiry from Mr. Arch. Cox, M.E., asking if I can tell him where to procure a picture of the New Zealand Shipping Co.'s "Rakaia" on which he sailed from London to New Zealand in 1881, or of the "Cutty Sark."

Mr. Cox tells me he sailed on the old "City of Paris," famous in her day on the New York and Southampton run, and also on the steamers "Moor," "Saxon," "Tartar" and "Norman" of the Union Castle line. He has been round the Horn and the Cape of Good Hope in windjammers.

* * *

The Harbour Commissioners of the port of Saint John, N.B., have issued an interesting book, written by Frederick William Wallace, dealing with the history of that port. It is called "The Romance of a Great Port" and devotes a good deal of space to stories and illustrations of the famous clipper ships that were built in New Brunswick—the Marco Polo, the Beejapore, the Flying Cloud, the Great Australia, the Rock Terrace, the Edith Troop, the Cedar Croft, the Prince Lucien, the Hilaria, the Ben Nevis—first of the famous White Star Line—the White Star, the Mermain, the Shalimar, the Alexander Yeats, the Queen of Beauty, the Sultana, the Guiding Star and a host of others. The book, published as a souvenir for the silver jubilee of His Majesty King George V, is one to be treasured by ship-lovers.

Bliss Carmen, poet of the Maritimes in his poem "The Ships of Saint John" pictures the days when all the skill and artistry of the port was going into the creation of these lovely water-witches. Says he:

> There all day long you could hear the sound
> Of the caulking iron, the ship's bronze bell,
> As the great tides rose and fell.
>
> I can see them still, the sun of their gear,
> The shining streak as their hulls careen,
>
> All the beauty and mystery
> Of life were there, adventure bold,
> Youth, and the glamor of the sea
> And all its sorrows old.

Amid those sorrows were the loss with all hands of the Edith Troop and the Rock Terrace, and the still greater tragedy of the Guiding Star—the largest and finest clipper of the fifties, which was reported "missing" in 1854, while on a voyage from Liverpool to Melbourne with 480 passengers and crew. But even these tragedies were eclipsed by the appalling tolls taken by ship-fever among the immigrants from Ireland and Scotland. Seeking a Land of Promise overseas, away from sterile crops and rack-renting, the miserable fare and the crowded accommodation proved too much for many of the immigrants. The fare was but £7—or £3 if the immigrant provided his own food. During the years 1847 and 1848 it is estimated that 25,000 people, men, women and children, died of the dread disease on immigrant ships bound for Canada. Ten thousand lie buried on Grosse Isle, near Quebec. The bones of over 6000 lie outside Montreal, while over 2000 of them were interred on Partridge Island outside Saint John.

> "If blood be the price of Admiralty,
> Lord God, we ha' paid in full."

* * *

The marvellous exploits of the timber drogher Marco Polo from the time she was dug out of Marsh Creek after an accident at launching, till she came home to die on the reefs of Prince Edward Island after a career of fame and honor, were narrated in this column a year or two ago by Victor Lauriston, Canadian novelist whose new book "Inglorious Milton" is now attracting much interest. Her skipper, the notorious "Bully" Forbes, made good his boast to sail her from Liverpool to Melbourne and back within six months. He did it in five months and 21 days to the marvel of the sailormen of his day, and floated a banner between his fore and main mast bearing the legend, "The Fastest Ship in the World." His grave in a Liverpool cemetery that I saw as a boy bears the inscription, "James Nicol Forbes, master of the Marco Polo."

Other vessels were built to the same plans as Marco Polo but none could attain her speed. The theory is advanced that it was the "hog" or twist she acquired by an accident in launching, that gave her such uncanny speed. There are two reproductions of paintings of the ugly, frigate-type Marco Polo in the book. One shows her leaving the Mersey in 1852 with 930 passengers for Australia. The other, a splendid thing of life by C. R. Patterson, shows her under lower topsails, foresail and jib "running her easting" in the South Indian ocean. It was in these latitudes that Marco Polo made her highest speeds.

White Star was the largest, costliest and handsomest Canadian-built ship in existence when built in 1854. She was 288 feet long, with a tonnage of 2339, and cost £35,000. With 284 feet of deck length, it was said she was the longest merchant ship in the world. How sizes, costs and standards of luxury have altered since then. White Star made some remarkable runs. On her first voyage to Liverpool she reached Holyhead in 14 days, docking in Liverpool on the 15th day. In 1856 she reached Melbourne in 75 days and returned in 76 days, beating the famous Royal Charter, which had auxiliary steam power, by ten days on the homeward run.

Cutty Sark, built at Dumbarton, in 1868 owes something to Saint John. Cutty Sark was one of the first of the composite ships, with iron frames and a wooden hull. The lumber for her planking and decking came from Saint John.

The port of Saint John now has docks over 1100 feet long, and services vessels of ten times the tonnage of White Star. But the romance that incurable sentimentalists love to linger on is the romance of the wooden ships and the iron men who manned them. New Brunswick has reason to be proud of the great part she played in the era of the clipper ship.

The Fingernails

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

The fingernail at present is not as helpful to us as it probably was in the early days of our evolution when it could be used as a claw as well as for grasping objects. Its present use is to decorate the fingertips, and may be used to grasp small objects.

Dr. F. McCoy

The clear, rosy nail with a good color and free from white spots, ridges and discolorations is a fine advertisement of good health. The nails are, however, readily injured by accident or disease so that they lose their natural luster, color and shape and when the tissue about the nail becomes inflamed, the annoyance is often severe.

The nail is a special adaption of the skin and resembles in composition horns, talons, beaks, quills and hoofs. While the nail grows right out of the skin structure, it is much tougher and semi-transparent, being composed principally of a tough substance called keratin.

The nail grows by means of the formation of new nail material, which is pushed out toward the end of the finger.

As this process continues, the nail becomes longer, and we usually cut the end of the nail off to prevent inconvenience, although the nail is capable of attaining a great length as is shown in some of the paintings of the Chinese upper class whose nails often attain the length of six to eighteen inches. This was to advertise the fact that they did not have to do any work for themselves. In this country, however, where work and industry are not considered dishonorable, it is an advantage to have short nails.

The rate of growth of the nails varies with individuals. The average time required for a full nail growth is about four or five months. The fingernails grow about four times as fast as the toenails, or about one-thirtieth of an inch per week.

The most frequent nail disorder is probably eczema, which spreads from adjacent tissues and attacks the nail root itself so that there may be swelling and painful throbbing around the nail. In chronic eczema the nail may record the illness by developing furrows across itself. If eczema is severe, sometimes the entire nail is lost. In other cases, there is a thickening of the nail (both in eczema and psoriasis) and the nail may turn to a yellow brown color.

The white spots commonly seen on the nail are considered to be the result of knocking or bumping the root of the nail against some object. They may also occur from injury during manicuring where the cuticle is pushed down too far, or they may occur in nervous disorders and in cases where the diet is deficient in some of the mineral elements.

Hangnail is an annoying trouble, but not very serious. This occurs when a shred of the nail next to the skin breaks away and sticks into anything that the finger touches.

Hangnails may be prevented by clipping the cuticle with manicure scissors. Howere, if the hangnail becomes infected, it is best to consult a doctor who will judge from the infection whether an incision is necessary to provide better drainage.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

On June 30 you probably will be thrown into close contacts with strangers. Let your personality assert itself, so as to show you possess an individuality of your own. Married and engaged couples, as well as those romantically inclined, should be careful to say nothing during this day which they do not actually mean.

If a woman, and June 30 is your birthday, you are inclined to be almost too deliberate in making up your mind in trivial matters, for your own good. You should make an ideal wife, and through matrimony see many of your fondest expectations become actualities.

The child born on June 30, may, when it reaches its teens, require careful handling to prevent its developing an egotistical streak.

If a man, and June 30 is your natal day, you have all the determination needed to overcome most obstacles in life. Your business judgment is likely to be excellent, if you do not allow indecision to interfere with it.

On July 1 procrastination is an evil not to be indulged in. Tendencies towards carelessness may be noticeable, and if not guarded against, losses are apt to follow any giving in to them. Married and engaged couples; as well as those susceptible to some one particular person's charms, should be careful not to use the bone of contention as a medium of conversation.

If a woman and July 1 is your birthday, you are probably very efficient in either home or office work. Avoid expecting too much from those you are closely associated with.

If a man and July 1 is your natal day, you have the knack of knowing what to do under most conditions and circumstances.

On July 2 will power will possibly be the determining factor in your affairs. Married and engaged couples, as well as those trying to steer a right course on Love's troubled waters, will be wise to be tactful in any personal questions, or answers, they may be prompted to give today.

If a woman and July 2 is your birthday, you will have to refrain from allowing yourself to become too self-satisfied, if you wish to achieve a worth-while position socially or in business. Marriage should be the right step.

If a man and July 2 is your natal day, if you accord those working under or with you, kindly consideration, they probably will be instrumental in helping you reach the top rung of the ladder.

Side Glances—By George Clark

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1864 the finishing touches were being given to the arrangements for the great coalition which brought about confederation. On June 30 of that year Sir E. P. Tache announced the formation of our first Union cabinet, in which George Brown, Oliver Mowat and William McDougall were members, which ended the controversies of the day and paved the way for the Charlottetown and Quebec conferences and so enabled the federation of the British American colonies to become a fact instead of an ideal.

We of the present generation do not give E. P. Tache the importance he deserves in our history. He was but a lad of 17 when the United States declared war in 1812. He at once offered his services for the defence of his native land and for the British connection, the support of which, despite all attempts to weaken his allegiance in the troubled years that followed, marked his whole life. When peace had been won by the inability of the Americans to conquer the Canadian people, then in their infancy, he studied medicine and practiced as a physician until 1841. Like so many others of our public men, Sir Charles Tupper being another striking example, he was better known as Dr. Tache than by the title which was given him by Queen Victoria personally in 1858. He was a leader in politics until 1857 when his health forced his retirement, but when the criis came in 1864 he emerged from his retirement and again consented to head a government.

It was this as premier of the Province of Canada that he presided at the Quebec conference and it was he who, by his eloquence, put the confederation resolutions through the legislative council. Unfortunately he did not live to see the fruition of confederation, he dying July 30, 1865. He was proud of his military record. It was he who coined two phrases which should never be forgotten. One was that the resident of the Province of Quebec was "An Englishman speaking French"; the other: "The last shot fired for British supremacy in America will be fired by a French Canadian." A conciliator, he much resembled Wilfrid Laurier in his desire for national unity of the two great races which created the Canada of today.

APPRECIATION

Editor Bulletin: At a meeting of the Provincial Council of the Boy Scouts Association held last week, a vote of thanks was passed by the meeting to the Press of the Province for the support given to the Scout Movement during the recent Welcome to Baden-Powell Campaign. Particular reference was made to the weekly newspapers which carried notices and articles on the Movement over a period of three months.

The Provincial Council have asked me to pass this vote of thanks on to your paper. We assure you your support is sincerely appreciated.

Yours sincerely,
W. S. BACKMAN,
Executive Secretary.

EXPLANATION LETTER

Editor Bulletin: In order to clarify the situation in St. Albert will you please insert enclosed copy of a letter received by me from W. R. Howson, K.C., Alberta Liberal leader. Thanking you, I am,

OMER ST. GERMAIN, M.L.A.

Edmonton, June 27, 1935.
Omer St. Germain, Esq., M.L.A.,
Morinville, Alberta.

Dear Mr. St. Germain:

Replying to your letter of the 26th inst., I have inquired into the meeting which was held at St. Albert and am informed that the Young Liberals of Edmonton were merely assisting the Young Liberals of St. Albert in forming a Young Liberal Club for the purpose of promoting the Liberal cause in your constituency. The Young Liberals here inform me that so far as they are aware no resolution of any kind was passed supporting any person. I noticed in Tuesday evening's Journal the item to which you refer. The Young Liberals from Edmonton state that they know nothing about any such resolution and that it was not passed while they were present.

So far as I am concerned, I made it perfectly clear at Legal last winter that I would support the Liberal candidate nominated by the Liberal convention in St. Albert constituency. This statement was made in reply to a question put by Mr. Boudreau. You are the candidate of the Liberal party, duly nominated in the St. Albert constituency, and consequently you will receive the support of the Alberta Provincial Liberal executive. I, as leader of the party in the province, heartily congratulate you upon your nomination and wish you every success. Any assistance that I can give you will be gladly given.

Yours sincerely,
W. R. HOWSON.

A UNION GOVERNMENT

Editor, Bulletin: Whereas: The trouble today is not political but lies in the private ownership of the means of production;

And whereas: The capitalist system can no longer function for the good of the great majority of people and is holding back progress;

And whereas: The only useful members of society, those who create all wealth and give services, i.e., the working class, are the only ones who are suffering;

And wheras: The problem is one of unemployment (which cannot be abolished) and of ever degrading conditions of the workers;

And whereas: In all problems the solution lies in the problem itself, so it lies in the working class, viz.—the only solution to the depression;

And whereas: The political state is obsolete except as a means of oppression used by the capitalists;

Therefore be it resolved: That the working class organize politically to abolish the state and use it as a means of agitation and to organize in Industrial Unions, the greatest power the workers have, to bring about a form of government based on Industrial Unions.

The Socialist Labor Party advocate the above as the only possible means of averting a social catastrophe. F. DUNBAR.

Neighbor—Had any offers?

The commercial traveller found himself in a one-eyed village with a single general store. He went in and said to the girl behind the counter, "Excuse me, but do you keep stationery?"

"No fear," said the girl. "I like to move about a bit, I do."

Two Irishmen were having an alcoholic parting.

"And if you forgit my name," said one, as he solemnly shook hands, "just look it up in the tellyphone directory."

"Mummy, I've found a worm."

"Have you, dear? Er—that reminds me; go and tell daddy I want to speak to him."

Muriel Knows What It Takes For Beach Hit

Posed by Muriel Evans this picture shows what a Hollywoodite needs to be a standout in California's beaches. Beautifully proportioned figures like Miss Evans' are not a happy accident. Correct weight, essential as the starting point in the battle for beauty, is the result of exercise and sensible diet.

MAJOR AND MINOR NOTES

Edmonton musicians and music lovers will join in the many wishes being showered upon Sir Ernest MacMillan on his elevation in the King's Birthday Honors list, to knighthood. Sir Ernest is dean of the music faculty of the University of Toronto and principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, an institution that has few equals on the North American continent.

• • •

The tribute is unmistakably one to Canadian music, as Sir Ernest is Canadian-born. In his capacity as dean of the faculty and principal of the T.C.M. he wields a great influence on the musical life of this country, while as conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, he is in the forefront of practical musical achievement.

• • •

The honor was well-placed and richly deserved and will do much toward bringing the rapidly advancing musical art of Canada to the attention of the world.

• • •

Indications are that when Richard Crooks, Metropolitan Opera Association tenor sings here next October, under the banner of the Women's Musical Club, he will be greeted by a capacity audience. Mr. Crooks has won a wide following on the opera stage, on the concert platform and over the air. He is a singer of international repute and possesses one of the outstanding voices at the Metropolitan. Members of the Musical Club report that advance bookings have been unusually heavy.

• • •

At the Capitol Theatre is showing a musical film all will want to see. It is a picturization of Victor Herbert's lovely "Naughty Marietta." Written in 1910 this light opera scored a tremendous success. In the leading roles were Orville Harrold, tenor and Emma Trentini, soprano, two leading operatic stars of the day.

Many critics consider this to be Victor Herbert's finest and most appealing score. When one remembers such masterpieces as "Mlle. Modiste," "The Red Mill," "Rose of Algeria" and others of Herbert's output, it is diffciult to say which is the best. But certainly he penned no more ravishingly beautiful melodies. Such gems as "I'm Falling in Love with Someone," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Italian Street Song," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "'Neath the Southern Moon" and others are for all time.

• • •

JAN KIEPURA STARRING AT RIALTO TODAY

Sensational Tenor Heads Cast of "My Heart Is Calling"

Jan Kiepura, the handsome young tenor now starring, with Sonnie Hale and Marta Eggerth, in the new GB musical comedy romance, "My Heart is Calling," which is the leading attraction at the Rialto theatre, Monday to Wednesday, has captured the attention of screen patrons with a facility similar to that which characterized his successful invasion of the world of song.

That the singing films should have called him is not surprising, but his extraordinary adaptability to the new medium, when he registered such an unqualified success in "Be Mine Tonight," and "My Song for You," was a distinct surprise to the movie fans, who for the first time saw a great vocal artist not only delight them with singing such as they never listened to before, but prove himself dramatically the equal of the best of their favorite actors. It was inevitable that he should return to America in pictures, and his new vehicle, "My Heart is Calling," presents him in a rare combination of song, comedy and romance, which has won universal approbation from the critics who are fond of comparing its star with the immortal Caruso and Gigli.

Showing last times today is Peter Lorre, Nova Pilbean in "The Man Who Knew Too Much," also Ken Maynard in "Old Santa Fe," with Gene Autry, cowboy idol of the air.

Dinnerware will be given free to the ladies with every 35c admission ticket, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

CLAUDETTE IN NEW ROLE AS EMPRESS STAR

Joan Bennett

The film, the first in which Miss Colbert has appeared since she won the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best feminine performance of 1934, is based on the best-selling novel of the same title by Phyllis Bottome. Her supporting cast is headed by Charles Boyer, Joan Bennett, Helen Vinson and Joal McCrea.

"Private Worlds" is the story of a brilliant young woman psychiatrist who is unable to apply to the "private worlds" of her own mind the same skillful understanding that wins her fame in dealing with others. Obsessed with the memory of a sweetheart killed in the war, she is unable to yield to a newer, greater love until a near-catastrophe presents itself.

Boyer, the young French star who is winning laurels in Hollywood, plays opposite her. Closely tied up with the main plot is a three-cornered romance involving McCrea, Miss Bennett and Miss Vinson.

Miss Colbert's role offers her the opportunity to combine the best features of her light-hearted portrayals in "The Gilded Lily" and "It Happened One Night" with the more serious characterizations of some of her previous efforts.

Naughty Marietta

WOODY VAN DYKE WINS ACCLAIM FOR HIS DIRECTION OF MARIETTA

W. S. "Woody" Van Dyke, director of Hollywood's biggest hats has proved himself the most versatile of all the ace megaphoners of the film capital, with his direction of "Naughty Marietta," screen production of the Victor Herbert opus now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Van Dyke has always been depended on by M G M to bring unusual film footage from far away locations, his first outstanding assignment being "White Shadows in the South Seas" to be followed by "Eskimo" the picture which uncovered the new native star Mala. The dean of directors proved himself unusually versatile when he turned out the hit picture "The Thin Man" starring Myrna Loy and William Powell.

Max Baer, Primo Carnera and Myrna Loy went into production with "The Prizefighter and the Lady." Two directors failed to make anything but junk of the film and Van Dyke was called in to the rescue. The result of his work made the picture a sensation at the box office.

Never having tried his hand with a film-musical, Hollywood wise ones lifted an eyebrow when MGM assigned its favorite son to directing "Naughty Marietta," starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy the operatic star. They thought Van Dyke too rough and ready to ever transfer with any notable success to the celluloid the Victor Herbert musical. "Marietta" turned out to be the "rave" of Hollywood, critics and preview audiences went crazy about it; and now those in the film business know that Van Dyke is the miracle man of the California studios.

STRAND OFFERS WARNER BAXTER IN GAUCHO ACT

The evolution of the tango from half a century ago, when it writhed with wild abandon to the tune of "La Cucaracha" in sailors' dives and half-breeds' resorts in the underworld of Buenos Aires, to the present day when it has become the chic dance of de luxe ballrooms the world over, forms a sequence in "Under the Pampas Moon," starring Warner Baxter and Ketti Gallian and now at the Strand theatre.

Ketti Gallian

Natives, South American Indians, first did the swaying, provocative steps in their fiestas on the pampas. The incumbent Europeans found it exhilarating and sensual and it was taken up in the dance halls of the Argentine capital after some of the savagery had been eliminated and the voluptuous and graceful movements stressed.

The blue bloods of Buenos Aires learned to tango and in the pre-war decade of the hobble and the slit skirt the dance flamed forth over the world. It was accepted everywhere and today the tango forms an important part of the entertainment for all classes of society—from college "proms" and church social gatherings to court and high official balls.

King Vidor Starts "So Red The Rose"

After a short delay to put final touches to his script, King Vidor started his first production for Paramount, "So Red the Rose," yesterday. The first two weeks of production will be on location. Margaret Sullivan, Pauline Lord and Randolph Scott head the cast.

HAD HUMBLE START

Frances Langford, radio blues singer, appearing in "Every Night at Eight," received $5 per week for her first professional work on the air as soloist for a Tampa, Fla., cigarmaker's local broadcast.

STAR A STRANGER

Until Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan opera star, arrived in Hollywood to play the leading feminine role in "Rose of the Rancho," she had never seen a motion picture studio.

NELSON EDDY AT CAPITOL IN NEW MUSIC-ROMANCE

Jeanette MacDonald is Featured in "Naughty Marietta"

Choice of "Naughty Marietta," Victor Herbert's classic operetta, which opens an engagement of six days at the Capitol theatre today, as the vehicle for filming the screen's first great musical adventure story, has brought to picture audiences one of the greatest musical works ever composed.

Produced on a spectacular scale, with Jeanette MacDonald, the Sonia of "The Merry Widow" and acknowledged one of the greatest singing stars of the American screen, and Nelson Eddy, American operatic baritone, hailed as a sensational "discovery" among romantic leading men, "Naughty Marietta" was filmed as a thundering drama of the romantic Creole days of St. Louis, a vehicle that gives to the famous Victor Herbert music the importance it merits.

"Naughty Marietta" is acknowledged one of the five greatest comic operas ever composed in America, the others being De Koven's "Robin Hood," and Herbert's "Serenade," "Fortune Teller" and "Mlle. Modiste."

Miss MacDonald plays a princess who masquerades as a casquette girl, and Nelson Eddy a British officer in New Orleans. Their songs are backed by huge symphony orchestras, a chorus of a hundred voices, and many musical novelties fitted into the score by Herbert Stothart, famous American composer and one-time associate of Herbert.

An elaborate cast surrounds the famous singing principals, including Frank Morgan, Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Charles Laughton), Douglas Dumbrille, Joseph Cawthorne, Cecilia Parker, Walter Kingsford, Greta Meyer, Akim Tamiroff, Harold Huber and Edward Brophy.

Leslie Howard Princess Star English Film

Few characters in fiction are more attractive than the Scarlet Pimpernel, that gallant English nobleman who risked his life time and again to save French aristocrats during the revolution and posed as a witless dandy to avoid detection.

With the present cycle of costume pictures sending British and American producers delving into the records of historical fact and fancy, it was natural that Baroness Orczy's novel should strike the scenario writers as excellent movie material.

In addition to securing the screen rights to "The Scarlet Pimpernel" he also lured Leslie Howard over to England to play the apparently witless fop.

Raymond Massey, the Canadian actor, plays the role of the treacherous Chauvelin who is seeking the fearless Scarlet Pimpernel. Merle Oberon, a Korda beauty, is Lady Blakeney. "The Scarlet Pimpernel" is at the Princess theatre today and is too good to be missed.

Frances Langford, radio singing star making her film debut in comedy-drama, "Every Night at Eight," has never had a singing lesson.

Marta, Jan Paired for Filmusical

Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggerth, ace stars of the British film studios, are co-starred in "My Heart Is Calling," a melody romance showing at the Rialto theatre.

Laughton Has Comedy Part, At Dreamland

A stellar Hollywood comedy cast brings Harry Leon Wilson's famous story of the English butler in a western backwoods town to the screen in Paramount's "Ruggles of Red Gap," which comes Monday to the Dreamland theatre.

Heading the cast is Charles Laughton, foremost English actor, in his first full-length comedy role as "Ruggles."

He is supported by Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles as the famous "Frouds," and by Roland Young, ZaSu Pitts, Leila Hyams, Maude Eburne and Lucien Littlefield in supporting roles.

The picture, set in the booming 1900's, shows how Ruggles, won in a poker game in Paris, upsets the little town of Red Gap, U.S.A., when he goes democratic in a big way and becomes a gentleman, instead of a gentleman's gentleman.

Newspaper Portrait Nets Girl Contract

Marsha Hunt, 17-year-old New York girl who has never before appeared on the professional stage or screen, yesterday was signed on a long-term contract after being "discovered" through the medium of a newspaper photograph.

Daughter of Earl R. Hunt, wealthy New York insurance man, Marsha came to Hollywood several weeks ago to visit her uncle, Newton Karr Potter, oil company executive. Then shortly after her arrival, her photograph appeared in a local newspaper and was seen by a talent scout who brought her to the studio for the screen test which won the contract.

Sunday Midnight Preview Screens Capitol Theatre

Doors opening at 11:30 p.m. Sunday, the Capitol Theatre will accommodate ticket holders with seats after that hour for the preview screening of MGM's "No More Ladies." The show will open at 12:02 a.m.

"No More Ladies" is another of the problem pictures in which Joan Crawford does so well. The wide-eyed star is supported by a fine cast including Robert Montgomery, Charlie Ruggles, Franchot Tone and Edna May Oliver. E. H. Griffith directs.

Youth Survived Desert Warfare Too Tough For Foreign Legion

By HOWARD BERRY

LONDON, June 15—Meet Legionnaire James Edward Hopkins, of London, a Briton who was too tough for the toughest army in the world—the French Foreign Legion.

The Foreign Legion, around which hundreds of romantic tales of love, adventure and daring have been woven, is renowned for its cruelty. They tame murderers, bandits, "he-men" and fugitives from all the corners of the globe, but Hopkins beat them at their own game.

He tamed the Legion! They discharged him as "Impossible to control by the Active Army."

For four years they tried to break his spirit, but Hopkins only laughed—and the terrible punishments meted out by the Legion has driven men mad.

Hopkins, short, slim and only 25 years old, his face tanned by the burning desert sun, has returned to England. He is living, out of work and nearly penniless, in a cheap London lodging house, but he is confident he will yet win through.

"Yet," Hopkins said relating his experiences in the French Foreign Legion, "I'm not really tough. But I would die for justice. And they didn't give me justice in the Legion.

"I joined the Legion for adventure. As a boy I was thrilled by stories of the exploits of legionnaires, and, twenty-one and full of enthusiasm, I joined up and was sent to Sidi-Bel-Abbes.

"I was determined to become a good soldier, and the hard training and rigid discipline of the barrack square did not dismay me.

"My first year was creditable. I passed all the examinations, and was actually on the list for promotion to corporal when an incident occurred that was to begin three years of hell.

"I was left in temporary charge of the guard room, but as I was not the senior soldier there I was too shy to enforce my authority.

"Then the colonel came into the barracks accompanied by his staff. Of course, the guard should have turned out, but I did not think it was my duty to order them out.

"The colonel, however, thought differently. I was court-martialed and sentenced to a month's imprisonment for neglect of duty.

"This almost broke my heart. To be punished so severely after I had tried so hard to make good! That month in the cells changed me into a bitter and resentful outlaw. I became insolent. I laughed at their threats to break me.

"'Go on,' I snarled. 'Do what the hell you like.'"

"Perhaps," Hopkins continued, "you think I was foolish, but you have no idea what a Legion prison is like. Let me describe it for you.

"I marched there expecting the worst, but even then I was shocked. The sleeping quarters there were terrible, and the men treated like pigs. After scrambling out of bed we had to dash to the parade ground, where we were given seven minutes to wash at a pump.

"Then we dashed back to parade, where, if our cleanliness did not satisfy the sergeant, we were called all sorts of filthy names. I used to be last on parade. I was struck, and immediately I hit back. For that I was knocked out.

The French Foreign Legion is tough to live in—and just as tough to get away from. Few escape, despite movie scenes to the contrary, but here are two Legionnaires who did. W. G. Crooks, right, of Newcastle, and Stanley Flanagan, Manchester, two English youths, escaped from their detachment, crossed the desert, stowed away on a ship from which they escaped at sea on an improvised raft, and were finally rescued by the S. S. Glenshine and taken to Rotterdam. Below, a Legion company in camp. The officers are in conference in the foreground, while the regiment rifles can be seen stacked in centre of the camp and guarded by sentries.

"The cook-corporal would put the food for breakfast in the middle of a circle formed by marching prisoners. Then he would ask the guard if 'the pigs had eaten today.'

"The guard would reply, 'no, my corporal.'

"'Did the pigs eat yesterday?'

"'A little, my corporal.'

"Upon which the cook would pretend to be in a rage, and would kick the food out of the utensils. The prisoners then had to scramble to get what they could to eat—and the devil take the hindmost.

"If a prisoner became too rebellious he would be led out to the fringe of the desert. He would be told to take one of three alternative routes. One led to the desert, where the prisoner would die of thirst; one to a cemetery, where he would die of starvation, and one which purported to lead to freedom.

"Men who are given this punishment generally end by going mad. I just sat down and told the guard that I would take neither of the roads. Of course the whole thing was a bluff—there was no chance of freedom.

"After leaving prison," Hopkins continued, "I was made a guard on a boat taking civil prisoners to Devil's Island, the French penal settlement. The conditions in the boats are terrible. Most of the guards in the boats are German, and I don't like the Germans, at least the Foreign Legion variety.

"During one of the voyages a German non-commissioned officer disliked me intensely. He bullied me and threatened me with death if I refused to obey him. I laughed at his threats and did my best to be awkward.

"One day he levelled a revolver at me. 'I will kill you, you dog,' he cried. "As I didn't want to die, I shot him in the legs.

"At my trial they tried to establish a motive. But I proved it was done in self-defence, thus saving myself at least five, and possibly 20 years' imprisonment.

"Later I was imprisoned for 10 months for striking an officer. I didn't leave the prison until after I had served 17 months. This was because of my fierce revolt against inhuman treatment.

"Most of the rest of my service I was in the thick of battles. In all, I have fought in 17. Once I was wounded—a bullet through the foot.

"I fought against Emily Parsons, the wife of Sheikh Ahmed Skounte. It was she who led a huge Arab force which defeated four French 'Groupes Mobiles' (16,000 men) at Djebel Badou on August 6, 1933.

"She displayed wonderful courage—but it seemed ironical that I should be fighting against one of my own countrywomen."

"All the time I was fighting," Hopkins concluded, "I was more or less under open arrest, and when the battles were over I had to do all the dirty work. But they didn't break me. In the end I won. They gave up. I was too tough for the Legion, they said."

Lake Resorts Form Camp Settings For Girls', Boys' Groups

Lac la Nonne Camp For Boys Planned by St. Joseph's Cathedral

Hoping to repeat success of last year, officials of St. Joseph's Cathedral are again sponsoring a summer camp for boys at Lac La Nonne, July 14-28. Applications for attendance must be received before July 8.

Held at Lac La Nonne for the first time last year, the cathedral camp provided a holiday for boys from all parts of the city and it is expected that even a larger number will be accommodated this year. Educational activity, athletics, story telling, hiking, boating and fishing, woodcraft and other pleasant pastimes are all included in daily program of the holiday camp.

Father Joseph Malone, who was in charge last summer, is again directing activities.

BOY SCOUT CAMP FOR SYLVAN LAKE

At Camp Woods, Sylvan Lake the provincial headquarters staff will conduct a special camp for Scouts who are not able to camp with their own troop. The dates will be July 15 to 30.

Expert leadership is given in Scouting and swimming and games are carefully supervised. Every precaution is taken to insure health and happiness in the camp. Provided that a sufficient number of boys from Edmonton register, some arrangements will be made for joint transportation. Personal equipment must be supplied by the Scout.

GUIDES LEAVE FOR WHITE SANDS BEACH

Miss Gwen Mullen is camp commandant and is assisted by Nancy Methuen, Mary Mantle, Jean Mullen and Eileen Wood. About 75 Guides are attending, and, in view of the fact that a splendid program has been drawn up, this should prove a highly successful camp.

STRIKING BACK

He came home famished. To his dismay the supper table had not been laid.

"Why isn't supper ready?" he asked.

"Because I've been into town bargain-hunting," she told him. "I couldn't get home in time."

"H'm," he grunted, "looking for something for nothing, I suppose."

"Yes, my dear," she sweetly smiled—"looking for a birthday present for you."

Girls' Work Board Plans Series of Camps at Fallis, Lake Wabamun

Promoted by the Girls' Work Board of the Religious Education Council of Alberta, a series of summer camps for girls in Edmonton and district is being conducted under the auspices of the Canadian Girls in Training. All the camps will be held at the beautiful C.G.I.T. camp site at Fallis on Lake Wabamun.

The senior camp for girls 15, 16 and 17 years, will be held from July 8 to July 17. There will be two intermediate camps for girls 12, 13 and 14 years, the first being from July 20 to 27 and the second from July 29 to August 5. Miss Connie Smith, girls' work secretary, will direct the senior camp, and Miss Winifred McElroy the intermediates.

MANY DIVERSIONS

The adventure of fun with softball, volleyball, group games, hiking, and swimming, and the adventure of new ideas with interest groups, dramatics, recreation, nature lore and handicraft will all go to make these camps first class places for girls to enjoy their holidays, under competent instructors.

A highly featured C.G.I.T. camp is Camp Council, the provincial camp for senior Canadian Girls in Training, being held at Kasota Beach from July 29 to August 8, under the direction of Miss Smith. At least one girl, and more if possible, from each senior C.G.I.T. group in Alberta, should attend this camp. Girls may be selected to represent their groups.

LEADERS' CAMP

The first leadership-graduate camp, for leaders and Sunday school teachers of 'teen-age girls and graduate Canadian Girls in Training of 18 years and over, is being held at Fallis from June 29 to July 6, with Miss Smith as director. The camp is promoted by the Edmonton Girls' Work Board.

25 PROVOST CUBS TAKE THEIR VOWS

PROVOST, June 29. — Taking their oath of allegiance to God, their king, and the Old Wolf, 25 boys here, under the leadership of George Dunaway and George Morrell, became full fledged cubs Monday evening in the Elks' hall. The boys were invested by Mr. Dunaway in front of their parents, the Scout officers and a few scouts, and were presented with metal badges in the form of a wolf's head with the inscription "Boy Scouts" beneath, showing that they are now the younger members of the great Scout movement.

The ceremony opened with the whole pack giving the "grand howl" of their "jungle," and promising to do their best, to do a good turn to somebody every day and to keep the laws of the Wolf Cub pack. Mr. Dunaway then called upon the Sixers to receive their badges first. The Sixer approached the Cubmaster, placing his cap at the feet of the Old Wolf and, saluting, gave the law of the Wolf Cubs. After making his promise, his cap was placed on his head, and he received his Cub badge, shaking hands with the Cubmaster, and saluting the pack.

At the close of the ceremony, S. M. W. B. Holtsbaum was asked to say a few words to the new cubs. Mr. Holtsbaum heartily congratulated the cubs and their leaders for the splendid showing they made and, as proof, he submitted the smiling faces of the parents around him. The cubs, he stated, are well trained, they are smart and tidy, and, he added, some of his own Scouts could benefit by watching them. The Scoutmaster then related two true bear stories from the north which delighted the new cubs. The meeting closed with the grand howl.

Few Like This

Kenneth Mullen of Gananoque, Ontario, claimed that this was the only pure-bred white German shepherd dog in the world. He is Schnee Konig (Snow King), and is a descendant of Strongheart of movie fame. But Mr. Mullen's claim is disputed by A. O. Fidgett, of Trenton, Ont., who says he has a number of such dogs in his possession, one of which recently gave birth to nine pure white puppies. Any more white shepherd dogs in Canada?

Camp Discussion On "Far Horizons"

The theme will be "Far Horizons" when the fourth annual camp of the Edmonton Young People's board is held at McLaurin Beach, Gull Lake, over the Labor Day weekend, August 31 to September 2.

The theme topic will be divided into three phases—moral, social, and economic. Groups will be conducted by capable leaders in each field. This camp is for members of all young people's societies in Edmonton and district and its popularity increases each year. A capacity house is expected on the occasion of this coming fall retreat.

Rev. George D. Young of Rimbey will direct the camp, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thornton will act as host and hostess. Mr. Carl Miller is registrar. Miss Norma Cuthbertson is convening the camp, assisted by Miss Billie Jackson, Miss Ella Huston, Miss Agnes Bradley, Mr. Bill Thornton, Mr. Albert Toller, Mr. Norman Taylor, Mr. Eric Ward and Mr. Carl Miller.

Meetings Held By Edmonton Troops

The Second Edmonton troop held its last meeting of the season Tuesday night which was a happy event, when a number of badges were given out.

The 14th Edmonton troop held its regular meeting Tuesday night under the leadership of Scoutmaster Ronald Spence, who was formerly with the 14th Regina Troop. Scoutmaster Spence is taking a keen interest in the Riverside boys, and they are urging him to continue as Scoutmaster.

Under his leadership the troop bids fair to achieve an eminent position among Edmonton troops, as he had an excellent record of service with the Regina Scouts. The Riverside troop is assuming the appearance of a real Scout troop as most of the boys have their hats, neckerchiefs and Scout shirts.

SEEK EMPLOYMENT AID

Asking co-operation of the business men of the city in getting young men and women graduates of the Commercial High schools positions, a letter has been solicited from the office of the Edmonton Separate School Board. Besides providing training based on standards set out by the department of education, the separate schools commercial department emphasizes character development, the letter says.

SIX IN ONE

He pondered over the menu for quite a long time. At last he looked up.

"I see you have six of my favorite dishes on the menu today, waiter," he said. "Which do you specially recommend?"

The waiter, whose position in the restaurant expired at the end of the week, sniffed.

"Well, sir," he said in a hoarse whisper, "if I were you I'd take the stew and have the whole lot!"

BADGES GIVEN SCOUTS, CUBS AT GATHERING

Final Meeting of 1st Troop And Pack Featured By Presentations

At their final meetings of the season, Wednesday, in the lecture hall of the First Presbyterian church, the First Edmonton Boy Scout troop and Wolf Cub pack held investitures and presentation of badges. Several parents and supporters of the troop and pack were present.

Two King's Scouts were invested with the highest order in the brotherhood. Patrol Leaders Englisby Gourlay and Ted Wilson, who also received their Grade A cords. Both these also received their First Class badges.

The Tenderfoot investiture was received by seven Scouts, who took the oath of allegiance, Charles Holdsworth, Kenneth Gibson, Bob Brooks, Mike Gulowaty, Billy MacKenzie, Hector Paton and Joe Wynne.

Proficiency badges were awarded as follows: swimmer, Don Wilson; basket worker, E. Gourley; fireman, L. Kabesh, T. Wilson, I. Cavanaugh and A. Zurian; handyman, L. Ferguson, T. Lefroy, Leon Ferguson, E. Gourlay, A. Zurian and L. Kabesh; carpenter and electrician, Tony Lefroy, Lawrence and Leon Ferguson; ambulance, Ian Cavanaugh and Leon Ferguson; laundryman, T. Wilson, L. Kabesh; bookbinder and pathfinder, E. Gourlay.

Supporters' badges were given to Dr. J. Hislop, president of the Parents' association and C. Woods, secretary-treasurer.

The troop chaplain's badge was presented to Rev. Mekeel, who has shown great interest in the Boy Scout movement.

Leaping Wolf badges were awarded to Reggie Paul, Billy Murphy, Billy McKenzie, Kenny Gibson, Charlie Holdsworth, Hector Paton, Tony Lefroy and George Shroffel.

Scoutmaster Bill Dalzell also invested Dr. Hislop and Assistant Scoutmaster S. Goto with Indian names as a reward for continued valuable service to the troop.

The patrol efficiency cup was won for the first time by Lawrence Ferguson's newly-formed Bulldog patrol, from the Blue Herons.

The Cub pack held a grand feed, at which presentation ceremonies took place, the six pennant being recaptured by the Light Blues from the Maroons. They also received the monthly treat.

Badges were awarded as follows: first aid, Morris and Eli Shector; team player, J. Jurian, Morris Shector and Charlie Hillas; homecraft, Charlie Hillas and Keith Ham; swimmer, Frank Holdsworth; house orderly, Keith Ham, Charlie Hillas, Eli Shector, Jerry Jurian; collector, Hillas and Shector.

First stars were presented to Jack Thompson and Benny Dlin; second stars to Rutherford Burgoyne and Bernard Cavanaugh; service stars to Charlie Hillas, Wallace Batter and Tetsuji Goto.

OUR OLD COUNTRY LETTER — By J. Edward Norcross

LONDON, Eng. —(By Mail)—We are getting ready for war over here. Not to go to war, but in case war comes to us.

We have begun to practice the measures to be taken should a flight of German air-bombers come out of the east some dark night.

The first large scale experiment was made the other evening when a hundred square miles of country was "blacked out," the theory being that the three dockside towns up the Medway with their great dockyards were to be attacked by air raiders.

The authorities and the public had been warned beforehand, of course, so, when sirens and rockets gave notice, lights went out everywhere. Railway stations were darkened and the lights of trains and signal cabins were dimmed. On the roads motorists brought their cars to a standstill and turned off their lamps. Householders curtained their windows.

Hundreds of special constables patrolled the streets of Rochester, Chatham and Gillingham to obtain complete observance of the request—for it was not a mandate—and a man who lit a pipe in Rochester high street was severely reprimanded.

It was very like the real thing during the half-hour that it lasted. Too like it, perhaps, for many people in Gillingham and Chatham where the enemy dropped aerial torpedos in September, 1917.

One, they remember, fell on the gymnasium of the Royal Naval barracks killing a large number of young recruits who were sleeping there. They lie in a common grave in Gillingham cemetery for the mangled bodies could not be identified separately.

A private house, also, was demolished, the mother of the family occupying it being killed.

* * *

BUT it was not a mandate. There was no penalty for keeping one's lights ablaze had one so chosen. Motor cars might have continued to flash up and down the great London-Dover road had their drivers declined to co-operate with the authorities.

No dragooning was required, however, even had it been possible. The public played the game—a game that in the area devoted to it was peculiarly grim.

It was Air Force vs. Admiralty. The Air Force tried to reach the government dockyards in the darkness, the Admiralty wanted to know whether or not it could do so if all possible precautions were taken.

J. E. Norcross.

Both sides express themselves satisfied with the "great success" of the experiment, but while it is admitted that the "blacking out" was very thorough it is not stated how far the precautions were a real hindrance to the "attacking force." There is some reason to believe that the exercise was designed more for the training of the civil population than for finding out what aeroplanes could do on a perfectly dark night.

* * *

THE government announced some little time ago that it had decided to appoint a special sub-committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence to go into the whole question of further defence measures against aerial bombing.

This committee is sending official communications to local authorities and is calling into consultation the heads of hospitals, fire brigades, ambulance and first-aid organizations, scientific bodies and chemical research establishments.

Machinery is being set up for the organization of local services for the safeguarding of the civilian population and general instructions are to be issued to the public about the precautions to be taken in the case of air raids.

* * *

THE work is to be carried out under the guidance of a new department for which offices have already been taken in Westminster.

Much has already been done in a quiet way. Nurses, police and others in the public service are being taught the use of gas-masks, as witness the numerous pictures in the newspapers of people wearing these hideous contrivances.

"Blacking out," too, is to be attempted in a number of places, the Chatham area being only the first on the program, apparently to make the population of the country air-raid conscious and therefore willing to co-operate in the irksome measures necessary for its safety. Portsmouth and Manchester are said to be well up the list.

The government, in fact, is taking Germany's new fleet of bombing aeroplanes very seriously. Obviously, it realizes that a British fleet of airplanes, however large, cannot guarantee immunity from a sudden attack that might lay waste tracts of closely-built up towns and cities.

And so we are to learn to defend our individual selves by putting on our gas masks and retreating to bomb-proof cellars when the alarm sounds.

Well might Mr. Baldwin tell the House of Commons that his soul had sickened in revolt "against the assumption that in this year of Christian grace, the indiscriminate massacre of young and old, of women and children, was henceforth to be accepted as the normal incident of war."

* * *

SWEET are the uses of advertisement—as Shakespeare did not say.

Government departments are usually regarded as dull and unimaginative, but when it comes to advertising the Post Office has little to learn from even the best commercial professors of the art.

Lately it was decided that the sixpenny telegram, the old "tannergram" of pre-war days, should be re-introduced.

Did the Post Office content itself with mere official announcement that on and after a certain date nine-word telegrams could be despatched for the equivalent of twelve cents?

It did not. It boomed the concession like a department store service or something of that sort.

It got out "literature." It rapturously proclaimed that "the sixpenny telegram adds a new grace to social life."

It persuaded the Prince of Wales to send the first sixpenny wire and 550 mayors and leading citizens all over the country to transmit greetings to the Prince simultaneously. It took His Royal Highness three-quarters of an hour to reply to them.

The telegraph department has done a tremendous business in sixpenny telegrams ever since, the traffic increasing fifty or more per cent.

Aberdeen, which distinguished itself by blocking the wires with traffic when the cheap long-distance telephone calls were instituted last year, was again to the fore, scoring the highest percentage increase of "sixpennies" on the first day.

* * *

THEN there is the search for the "golden voice" which, considered as an advertising device, might well be the envy of publicity experts everywhere.

As was stated in this column some time ago, the Post Office proposes to put in automatic apparatus for announcing the time of day to inquiring subscribers.

Had such a machine been introduced in the old days, before Sir Kingsley Wood, the postmaster-general, shook up the institution, one would probably have heard some numerals repeated mechanically.

But that is not good enough for Sir Kingsley. The records for the talking clocks that are to tell the time are to be made by the telephone girl with the sweetest voice and competitions are going on in all parts of the country preparatory to a grand final one in London.

Thousands of the young ladies in the "centrals" of Great Britain have been called upon to repeat the Shakespearean lines:

"'Tis but an hour ago since it was nine,
And after one hour more 'twill
be eleven;
And so, from hour to hour, we ripe and ripe,
And then from hour to hour,
we rot and rot;
And thereby hangs a tale."

The competitors sit behind a screen, the judges sitting on the other side.

* * *

We are trying to find the operator with the perfect voice, why not seek also the perfect subscriber, he asked himself.

So now ballots are being held in all the larger exchanges to find the perfect telephone subscriber.

"In order to make the ballot more exacting nominations will be restricted to members of the same sex as that of the operators," explains the Post Office, "the attitude of a male subscriber to a female telephonist not being always due to telephonic considerations."

When found the winner will be invited to become one of the five judges in the final of the "golden voice" competition to be held in London, fare and expenses being paid by the Post Office.

* * *

ONE way and another, as will be seen, Sir Kingsley Wood has obtained a good deal of free newspaper advertising for two important departments of the Post Office.

And, than newspaper advertising, there is none better.

That, at least, is the opinion the Mayor of Wallasey, who is also chairman of the Corporation Publicity committee, expressed when he was discussing the relative merits of poster advertising.

A famous northern seaside resort, New Brighton, at the mouth of the Mersey and opposite Liverpool, is within the Wallasey jurisdiction and the mayor was gratified when a bathing girl poster, got out at the instance of his committee, won the chief award at a recent exhibiton against entries from other places all over the country.

"Pictorial posters," he said, "are very pleasing today, but press publicity pulls and pays.

"Newspapers circulate in millions of homes, and have a strong appeal with the reading public.

* * *

TWO leading Socialists, Major Attlee, deputy leader of the Labor opposition in the House of Commons, and Charles Edwards, the Labor chief whip, figure in the Birthday Honors list, the first becoming a "Right Honorable" as member of the Privy Council and the other a knight.

As the Labor party, it is understood, made no recommendations—in this country the opposition has the privilege of suggesting names—Major Attlee and his colleague presumably owe their inclusion to the government.

That two ardent Socialists should accept honors from the King has occasioned some comment. It appears, however, that while the Socialists did not offer any names, they had agreed not to refuse non-hereditary honors.

In short, the days when Socialists talked of "abolishing the monarchy, sweeping away anachronistic and effete institutions, and substituting a free and unfettered system of Republicism" has passed.

They now recognize that "the King stands with all classes and sections united to preserve freedom and political thought and liberty above part and party considerations," said an Independent Labor Party stalwart who had once girded at royalty and its trappings from many a "soap-box."

"To have refused honors would have been to flout a great gentleman and to have shown ourselves unmindful of and ungrateful for the part the crown has played against anti-democratic influences," he added.

We are not likely to have "Socialism in our time" in this country but we shall have a very large measure of Socialism sooner or later. And we shall continue to sing "God save the King" just the same.

* * *

LORD RUNCIMAN, chairman of the new company which recently assumed control of the Anchor Line, does not approve of the competition for the blue ribbon of the Atlantic.

"The ribbon is no good to anybody, a waste of capital," he said at a luncheon on board the Tuscania, then in the Clyde. "It breeds unemployment.

"First, you have to pay too much for it, and it is not long before you see it lying in tatters."

They did not want a Queen Mary, he said. Had three ships, instead of one, been built with the money, more would be gained, to begin with, in the matter of construction, far more than 50 times in profit in sailing them.

All of which is true enough. Nevertheless it may well be that Lord Runciman overlooks the cash value to Great Britain of the prestige that will accrue when once more a British ship carries the blue ribbon across the western ocean.

* * *

THE Queen Mary may be a splendid folly but, from a shipping standpoint, the beet sugar subsidy is rank stupidity.

According to a statement issued by the Mercantile Marine Service Association the subsidy is "nothing more than a glorified dole" at the rate of more than fifty dollars a month per person which, at a cost to the taxpayers of $235,000,000, has reduced at least 14 ships to permanent idleness and added greatly to the sum-total of unemployment in Liverpool.

It may be added that the British West Indies, to the extent that they are now unable to sell their sugar in Great Britain to buy British manufactures.

IT was a noteworthy coincidence that on the very day when the House of Commons brought its prolonged labors on the India bill to a conclusion the Aga Khan, a great Indian prince, should lead in the winner of the Derby at Epsom.

When John Bright attained the age of 70 he said he was then "inducted into the order of old men." Men do not consider themselves old at 70 nowadays, however, and the King, at all events, does not belong to the "order," for no really old man could have ridden a horse for nearly two hours as he did, clad in the heavy dress uniform of the Guards with its enormous bearskin.

The third reading of the India bill was passed by 386 votes to 122, the minority being made up of two diametrically opposed parties, the Socialists, who had moved its rejection on the ground that it made no provision for the attainment of full dominion status, and the "diehards" who fought it at every stage because it conceded so much freedom to India.

Mr. Winston Churchill, who has been told by the London Times that his views on India are those of a cavalry subaltern, made his last protest in a speech which occupied an hour.

He prophesied woe for India and said, in conclusion, "In the cheers that will hail your victory we hope and pray there may not mingle the death-knell of the British Empire."

The impish Mr. Avery rose to the occasion and completely spoiled the effect of Mr. Churchill's peroration.

"Here endeth the last chapter of the lamentations of the prophet Jeremiah," he said, and the house rocked with laughter.

THE B.B.C. is bringing the Empire together to celebrate Canada's Dominion day. A program, called "Looking Westward" is to be presented at 11:45 p.m. (G.M.T.), July 1, which will include messages spoken from Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales.

On July 2 at 3 a.m. (receivable in the evening of July 1 in western Canada) the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, the Canadian high commissioner, will broadcast a Dominion day message.

Other broadcasts on Transmission 6, all at 3 a.m., G.M.T., designed for listeners in western Canada on the evening before, are the royal review of the Royal Air Force at Mildenhall, July 7; reception of the representatives of the legislatures of the Empire at Westminster Hall, London, July 5; a talk on "Speed Records" by Sir Malcolm Campbell, July 4; Mr. Baldwin's address at the Empire parliamentary inaugural luncheon, July 5, and the Leslie Bridgewater harp quintet, July 6.

Catholics Seek Place In Senate

Mrs. J. Coffey, of Montreal, was re-elected national president. It was the second term for Mrs. Coffey.

Delegates voted nine $200 scholarships of two years duration to young women with the highest senior matriculation, one for each province. The league had previously endowed a single national scholarship.

Other officers elected were: Vice-presidents, Florence Boland, Toronto; Amelia Haley, Saint John, N.B.; Mrs. T. Hay, Regina; Mrs. C. J. Brennan, Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. M. F. Ronan, Antigonish, N.S.; hon. secretary, Mrs. J. A. MacCabe, Ottawa; and hon. treasurer, Miss C. McGrath, Edmonton.

OTTAWA, June 29.—The National Convention of the Catholic Women's League Friday passed a resolution calling on the Dominion government to place an embargo on importations from Mexico, "in view of religious persecution carried on in that country."

The league also passed a resolution to the government requesting, "In view of possible appointments to the senate that a Catholic woman be considered." The Catholic population was 42 per cent, it was emphasized in the resolution.

Another resolution asked for strict censorship on the importation of salacious literature particularly magazines. "Fairly strict censorship operated on Canadian publications," the resolution read, "but importations were acting to the detriment of youth."

TEACHER IS HONORED BY FORMER PUPILS

Mr. John McVicar of Red Deer, who taught school for many years at Melbourne, Ontario, was honored by many of his former students when he visited there recently, en route to attend the General Assembly at Montreal. Mr. McVicar taught in the Melbourne school in 1886, and his influence among the students was extensive.

There were about 175 guests at the reception held for him on the school campus. Refreshments were served and a program of music and sports arranged. An address of welcome was given by Rev. John Fletcher, who also presented to Mr. McVicar an autograph album containing the autographs of his former pupils and of his many friends. Mr. McVicar spoke in reply, telling of the many changes that he has observed in teaching and methods through the years.

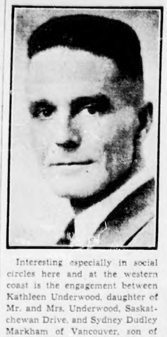
Member of Press Betrothed



Interesting especially in social circles here and at the western coast is the engagement between Kathleen Underwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Underwood, Saskatchewan Drive, and Sydney Dudley Markham of Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Markham of Newmarket, Ontario, and formerly of Devonshire, England. Miss Underwood, whose interests are many, is a member of the Junior Hospital League, of Glenora Skating Club and the Edmonton Golf and Country club. She was born in Letchworth, Herfordshire, England and coming to Canada with her parents, was educated in the Couvent du Sacre Coeur, Point Grey, Vancouver. She specialized in the study of music and holds degrees from the Royal Academy of Music, London, England, and the Toronto Conservatory. Of recent years she has been associated in press work in Edmonton.

Her fiance was born in Southwick, Sussex, and coming to Canada in 1914 returned overseas shortly after with the Fort Garry Horse, military division of Winnipeg. He has been associated with the staff of the Bank of Toronto since 1914, and at present is chief inspector of the coastal division of British Columbia. He was formerly associated with the banking staff in Edmonton where he is widely known.

Professional Women Will Study Outlook

CALGARY, June 29.—Representatives of the 23 branches of the Federation of Canadian Women's Business and Professional Clubs will meet in Calgary next week in annual convention to discuss problems of office and state.

Opening July 3, leaders in the Federation will bring before the delegates many present day problems of economics, international relations, world conditions and matters of immigration and naturalization.

Many social events have been planned in honor of the delegates including a civic reception, luncheons, visits to the Prince of Wales' ranch, near High River; the Turner Valley oil fields and the mountain resorts of Banff and Lake Louise.

REPORTS FROM MANY

The fifth convention of the Federation, which will be in session here until July 6, will open with a meeting of the board of directors to be followed by a general session when reports will be presented by Miss Nancy Hodges, Vancouver; Miss Della Jones, Calgary; Miss Hilda Hesson of Winnipeg; Miss Edna Schultis, Saskatoon; Miss Laura Hyatt, Niagara Falls, Ont., and Miss Gertrude Sparrow, Montreal. The reports will deal with activities in each of the provinces represented.

Later there will be a round-table discussion on "the economic outlook for women," led by Dr. M. E. Douglas of Winnipeg. Miss S. S. Shannon of St. Catharines, and Miss Kathie Campbell of Vancouver.

Mrs. Paul Smith, M.L.A. of Vancouver, at a session open to the public, will address the convention on "Training for leadership" on the second night of the conference.

Dolly McLeod To Wed In Arizona

Miss Helen Margaret "Dolly" McLeod, formerly of Edmonton, and now of Vancouver, whose engagement to Mr. Garnet Green Morris of Prescott, Arizona is announced today. Miss McLeod, who is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLeod of Vancouver, also former residents of Edmonton where Mr. McLeod was known as one of the city's pioneers, is a graduate of Ontario Ladies' College, at Whitby, and attended the University of Alberta. Her fiancee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnett G. Morris of Prescott and formerly of Edmonton, and the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morris of Edmonton. He is a graduate of the University of Washington in engineering and a member of Chi Phi, international fraternity. Miss McLeod will accompany her parents to Arizona toward the latter part of July, sailing in the S.S. H. F. Alexander from Vancouver to Los Angeles and completing the trip by motor. Their wedding is arranged for July 29 and they will make their home in Arizona.

Just as education is no longer the privilege of the few, but now the great gift to the many, so it is being extended still further, and the British Institute of Adult Education has recently revealed that there are more than 14,000 prisoners among its class students. The prisoners pursue their studies in jail, and even sit for Society of Arts certificates.

This being so, it is less amazing to hear, from the Institute's secretary, that before long we may have prisoners matriculating and even graduating whilst serving their sentences. Scores of applications have been sent to the Institute from prisoners in various jails, asking for facilities to take the London matriculation exam, and also a London science of art degree. Only London University could afford such facilities, because it alone grants external degrees.

No doubt such an idea would have given any of Mr. Gladstone's Home Secretaries a fit, but study seems a very suitable and satisfactory occupation for convicts. We have fewer people in jail nowadays, but their educational standard is notably higher.

Dr. and Mrs. Tuttle were married in Nova Scotia. Dr. Tuttle has been a resident of Edmonton for about thirty years.

PUPILS PLAY SELECTIONS AT MUSICALE

Piano pupils of Mrs. J. R. Carruthers were presented in a thoroughly delightful music recital at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers, the west end, on Friday evening. Classical numbers were played and the works of modern composers cleverly handled, showed also the ability and understanding of the young students. Sympathetic interpretation of music, good expression and artistic playing made the recital most enjoyable to the many guests who included parents and friends of the pupils, and duets, played by two sisters, also added interest to the program. Mrs. A. W. Smillie assisted Mrs. Carruthers by singing several delightful solos, accompanied by her neice, Miss Jean Riley.

To Mrs. Carruthers a beautiful bouquet of flowers was presented by little Margaret Campbell on behalf of the pupils.

AN INHERENT SQUEEZE

An inherent squeeze is one possible to make against any defence. Sometimes the squeezing process is made possible by the character of the opening lead, and sometimes no opening lead can avert the squeeze, which is the case with the hand shown today. The hand came from Toronto, and is a very pretty one.

The opening lead was a winning spade, followed by three more of that suit. It looks as if West should also be able to win either a heart or diamond trick. His fifth lead was a heart, which went to declarer's K. There were in sight of the declarer 2 heart tricks, 1 diamond trick and 5 club tricks, only a single trick short of game. West had doubled on the strength of probable ability to win the setting trick in one or the other red suit, which South knew. The declarer ran off five club tricks, discarding from dummy a diamond on the last club trick. East could not win a trick, possibly. His hand looks as if it had been picked to render him hopeless. West was in trouble on his third discard; he let go his two lowest diamonds for the first two discards, but at the fifth club trick West either had to unguard his hearts or his diamonds. In the first even dummy would be able to win two heart tricks, just giving declarer game. If West bared his K of diamonds two tricks could be picked up in that suit by laying down declarer's ace. West was squeezed and the double contract was made.

It appears to a casual observer as if another opening lead than a spade might defeat the contract, but South has at his command the same strength which enabled him to go game against the spade opening. Suppose the Q of hearts is led, instead of a winning spade. Win with declarer's K. Run off five club tricks. West must let go three cards from his hand. He will give South the remaining heart tricks unless both hearts are held. West can let go two diamonds, but he will give South two tricks in that suit if he bares his K of diamonds. Discarding a good spade certainly will cost a defensive trick. An opening lead of hearts cannot defeat the bame contract. An opening diamond lead will give South two tricks in that suit and assure game. An opening lead of clubs will be playing the declarer's game.

Camp Council To Be Held At Kasota Beach

Camp Council is the provincial camp for Canadian Girls in Training, representing senior groups. Kasota Beach, five miles northwest of Sylvan Lake town, is an ideal site—one of Alberta's most beautiful lakes, safe for swimming and diving — acres of sunshine and open space, winding roads for hiking, and crystal clear air that sets the blood bounding with health.

Miss C. Smith, Director

Here's the program for a day at Camp Council: Action, "to cherish health." Swimming, boating, hiking, folk-dancing, soft-ball, volley ball. Beauty, "To seek truth." Music, stories, dramatics, handicrafts. Friendship, "To know God and serve others." Morning watch, camp fire, Bible study, evening vespers.

Miss Connie Smith, girls' work secretary, director. Dr. Dora Newson of Edmonton will be responsible for the health of the campers. Miss Betty Buckley of Calgary is in charge of sports and swimming. Miss Dorothy McBain of Edmonton will lead an interest group on "Vocations for Girls," and Miss Mary Jamieson on "The Art of Photography." Miss Kuni Kochi, a Japanese student on her return to Japan from Toronto, where she has been at the United Church Training School, will be a guest of the camp.

Who may go to Camp Council? Every group of senior Canadian Girls in Training should appoint at least one girl as their representative. Senior girls who cannot attend Camp Council are urged to attend their district camp. Dates are July 29th to August 8th, 1935.

Weddings

SUTHERLAND — SNYDER

Solemnized at the Buelah Tabernacle early Thursday evening was the marriage of Marion Viola Snyder, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Snyder of Edmonton and Mr. John Wheeler Sutherland, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sutherland, also of Edmonton, which was one of the prettiest of June weddings. Rev. G. A. Skitch read the marriage service before the altar banked with summer bloom, while roses tied with white ribbons marked the guest pews.

In her floor length gown of white triple sheer, graceful fan-shaped train falling from a bandeau of orange blossoms, and carrying an armful of ophelia roses and lily of the valley, the bride, who was given away by her father, was very lovely.

Miss Alta Snyder was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a charming frock of pastel green georgette, and carrying carnations and sweet peas. Mr. William Gutierrez attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Mr. Sydney Falconer and Mr. John Cupples.

At the reception held at the family residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland received with the bridal party. Mrs. Snyder was smart in figured crepe of soft shades of brown and wore roses and Mrs. Sutherland was in pale grey also wearing a corsage of roses. There were about 40 guests present.

The four tiered wedding cake centred the table and flowers and pink and white streamers were used for decoration.

AMY GARTRELL IS A BRIDE OF EARLY SUMMER

Performed before a bower of mauve lilacs and fern, the wedding ceremony which united in marriage, Amy Gartrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Gartrell of Edmonton, and Donald Macalister at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Leonard Toby on Thursday evening, had a beautiful summertime setting. Early summer flowers, poppies and tulips arranged throughout the drawing room were very lovely. Rev. J. Fraser Smith read the marriage lines and Professor A. T. Barnard pronounced the bridal benediction.

The bride is well known in Edmonton and Mr. Macalister, the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Macalister of the mountain town in British Columbia which bears their name is associated with the administration staff of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Institute for the Blind.

The wedding march was played by Mr. Frank Barnard and during the signing of the register Miss Audrey Stutchbury sang, "I Love You Truly."

In a frock of frilled egg shell georgette and carrying an armful of mauve and rose sweet peas with sprays of valley lily, the bride was charming. She was given in marriage by her father Mr. T. Gartrell. Mrs. Leonard Toby, only attendant of the bride, was matron of honor wearing a gown of powder blue satin with over dress of silk net, and she carried pink sweet peas and fern.

Mr. John Sibbald attended the bridegroom.

Receiving with the bridal party at the reception which followed were Mr. and Mrs. Gartrell and Mrs. Macalister of British Columbia. Mrs. Gartrell wore a black satin gown with a corsage of mauve sweet peas, while Mrs. Macalister was in dark crepe de chine with touches of white and her flowers were white.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Howard Stutchbury and the bridegroom replied.

Mr. and Mrs. Macalister left on the midnight train for Calgary and Banff, where a short honeymoon will be spent. On their return they will reside in Edmonton.

BEVERLY RESIDENT FETED

The Beverly Women's Social Club held a delightful surprise party at the home of Mrs. R. Hedges, Wednesday evening, to bid her farewell as she is leaving Beverly to reside at Ladner, B.C. Mrs. Hedges received many presents from the club, of which she has been a member for many years. The evening was spent in playing whist, prize winners being Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Beauchamp and Mrs. Minns. Supper was served by Misses Catherine and Ruth Hedges, assisted by members of the club.

Why His Headaches Ceased

Wife Put Kruschen in His Coffee

He could not understand why the headaches he had been subject to suddenly ceased. His wife told him, and he at once sat down and wrote the following letter:—

"I am 62 years of age, and ever since I was a boy of ten years, I was subject to very bad headaches. But two years ago the headaches stopped—for what reason I did not know. I was surprised when one day my wife told me I had been using Kruschen Salts in my coffee for over two years. I am still using them, as I know of nothing finer for the system."—J. T.

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen Salts aid Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

Huge trees in Brazilian forests are felled by beetles, which dig a furrow around the trunk, going deeper and deeper until the tree falls. These insects destroy much valuable timber each year.

Wins Highest Place At School

Evelyn Barry, clever eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Barry of the Barry Sheet Metal Co., Ltd., has passed her fourth year with honors and also set a new record for St. Anthony's school by having come first the entire school season with a final exams average of 86.28%. Evelyn's teacher is Sister Gabriel.

In final city-wide examinations for representatives of all Separate schools, Miss Barry was awarded recognition.

Your Children - By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

It appears that he is a right good-natured chap at home, but away he is forever punching somebody on the jaw. Then somebody's mother goes to the teacher, and thus far she has had about six notes from the principal telling her it won't do at all.

O. R. Barton

She says she has investigated and in almost every case she felt that her Reginald was entitled to a biff or two. Jim threw his cap over a fence or Bill tripped him or Dick ran off with his books. And I have a sneaking notion I agree with her.

PERHAPS WAS BATTLING BABY

But we can't have children or grown-ups either, going about committing mayhem just to relieve their feelings. It just doesn't do. And children who become habitual scrappers have to learn to take it.

As for Reginald, I'll put up a penny that, in spite of what his mother says about his sweet temper at home, he kicked his nurse and batted his mother when he was still being wheeled around in his buggy.

It is strange, however, about quick-tempered people. Whether they strike out with their fists or their tongues, they are usually the most obliging and kind people on earth. They seldom hold a grudge and never sulk. What happens is that the mind demanding quick relief—rage is relief—gets it. Then it's gone. No ugly little worm of hate left prowling around to eat holes in dispositions.

Now I suppose that ethically I should suggest trying to train Reggie to turn the other cheek, to tell him about soft words and how they save caps, books and puddle-stamping. But I cannot honestly write it. I can't even recommend him counting ten or sleeping on a decision. He would not do it, anyway.

REGGIE THE FIGHTER

His mother might talk to him this way: "Reginald, there is something far more potent than muscle, and that is wit. When these boys tease you, I happen to have an idea you would not mind their capers if they hadn't teased you first about your name.

"You are trying to prove you aren't a sissy. It's a good name and belonged to one of the most bloodthirsty warriors who ever lived. Not good on that account, but because there have always been Reginalds in our family and all were fine men. Not a sissy among them. I think I shall get out the book and ask the teacher to read that story, without mentioning you, some Friday.

"Then if the boys still pester you, don't hit them but give as good as you get. If a boy throws your cap away, throw his. If he trips you, trip him. And so on. Maybe they are just hurling the gauntlet so they can have a good scrap. Boys are funny that way. But don't you start it. Take your part when you have to, but that's all."

Now this may not fit the case at all, but it shows two things. Try to get at the real root of the trouble. Boys are too sensitive to own up to the bitter truth sometimes. And show them that fists are the resource of the ignorant. Fighting for fun is another matter. All boys do that.

EMPIRE JUBILEE ISSUES

The complete sets of Jubilee stamps were offered by many dealers, on advance orders, at approximately $25.00. At the present time, the price has advanced about 75 per cent. It will be an accomplishment to round up the complete series in USED condition.

SOME RARITIES

One of the thrills of stamp collecting is the possibility of unearthing some rare old stamps, when least expected, which will add such treasures to a collection or bring the finder many hundreds or thousands of dollars when offered on the market.

Old stamps are not the only rarities, as an error in printing may at any time create a rarity in a current issue. One who is aware of this and has the luck to discover an error will profit by his or her knowledge.

Not many years ago a collector in Washington, D.C., went to the post office to buy a sheet of the new 24c airmail stamps. He noticed that the airplane had been printed upside down and, after inquiry, it was found this was the only sheet to have slipped out of the government printing office. It was fortunate it met with someone with philatelic knowledge. This collector paid $24.00 for the sheet and soon afterward sold the entire sheet to a dealer in Philadelphia for $15,000. This dealer immediately sold the sheet to Colonel E. H. R. Green for $20,000, who kept 20 of the stamps and sold the remaining 80 for big prices. These "inverted centre" airplane stamps are worth $3,000 each today and the sheet that cost the collector $24.00 is now worth $300,000.00.

Such discoveries are taking place, in a smaller or larger way, all the time. Even the lesser "finds" bring a treasure hunter's thrill of discovery. The re-entry on the 1c orange, and 1c green stamps of Canada's 1930 issue must have thrilled a few collectors when the discovery was made.

A Philadelphia bank, moving to new quarters, called in a junk dealer and sold him an accumulation of aged and, apparently, worthless papers for $15.00. Among these, the junk dealer found used postage stamps valued at $75,000. Lawsuits were threatened but the junk dealer had kept his receipt for fifteen dollars and the stamps could not be taken away from him.

The price of everything is determined by the simple factors: supply and demand, which determines the great prices paid for postage stamps as well as rare paintings, jewels, etc.

Foster Mother Makes Woeful Mistake Here

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—The other day I told my dearly beloved adopted son, who is 17, of his adoption when an infant. My rehearsal of most of the facts that I felt he could bear to hear were made with the greatest consideration and love. He listened quietly, then with a flush on his beautiful face he asked: "Why did you tell me this? I am very sorry. I have been a very happy boy as your son."

If it were possible for me to take back my information to him, I would give everything I have on earth, for I have given a splendid boy a terrible jolt, an inferiority complex, a loss of birth and family background. I have cheated him and myself. I cannot speak of my own parents with pride because my boy drops his head and tears come into his eyes. I cannot sleep nights, and pray that in some miraculous way he will forget what I have told him and that we will be placed on the same footing again, and that he will feel that in very truth he is our own son. My boy suffers and I feel as if I were a murderer of his self-respect, his love of family and hope for the future. What can you offer me? A TRUE MOTHER.

Dorothy Dix

Answer:

I can only offer you the assurance that you have done the right thing, because it is not humanely possible that your boy could have gone through life ignorant of the fact that he is an adopted child. Somebody—relatives, friends, acquaintances, neighbors, possibly even an enemy—would be bound to tell him some time, and the later he found it out, the more disastrous would be the result to him.

Your mistake has been in not telling the boy that he was an adopted child while he was still so young that the knowledge would have had no meaning to him. He should have been familiarized with the fact while he was a mere babe, and taught that your love had a peculiar tenderness in it for him because you wanted him so much that you had picked him out from all other children for your own.

I realize that it is not easy to tell a little child that he is not yours except through love, nor to answer its questions about where is its own mother, and why did she give him away, but it has to be done and the longer you put it off the more disastrous are the consequences of your revelation.

I have many letters from boys and girls who tell me that they have found out through some accident, when they were almost grown, that they were adopted children, and the knowledge seems to produce in them a shock that profoundly unsettles them. You must have read recently in the papers of the case of a man of 45, very successful and highly honored, who killed himself upon learning that the father and mother he adored were his adopted parents.

You have my earnest sympathy in your dilemma, but, believe me, you have done the only honest thing, and if you have hurt your boy now you have saved him from a worse hurt that was bound to come to him. Teach him that the matter of his birth does not matter. That you have taken out of it whatever sting was in it. That you have thrown over him the mantle of your own name and family, and that what counts is for him to make a place in the world for himself. Ambition is the salve for his hurts.

Who was it who said: "I am my own ancestor?" But every mother who has an adopted child is laying up sorrow for herself and the child by not telling it the truth while it is so young that the revelation will not shock it. DOROTHY DIX.

Keeping Hands White Is Hostess' Problem

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

The average housewife is faced with two chief hand problems. The first problem that confronts her is how to keep her hands white and free from stains. And the second is how to keep her hands soft and smooth. Of course, the average housewife has to use water a great deal in the course of her day's work. That always tends to roughen and coarsen the hands, but there is no need for her to allow her hands to come into contact with the water.

Before making any use of water at all, the housewife should smooth a quantity of camphor ice on her hands, and massage it into the skin. Then she should don a pair of rubber gloves and proceed with her work. The rubber gloves won't interfere at all with her efficiency if she procures the thin, well-fitting variety. When her tasks include dusting and cleaning, she may wear loose cotton gloves, instead of the rubber ones.

After completing her work, she should remove her gloves and cleanse her hands well with a pure, bland soap and tepid water. And after the cleansing, she should massage a good bleaching and lubricating hand lotion into the skin of her hands. In addition, the housewife should lubricate her hands every night before retiring with a rich, nourishing hand cream. This procedure will counteract any chapping or roughening, and will keep her hands soft and smooth despite the wear and tear of strenuous household tasks.

HOW TO BLEACH

Of course, the average housewife's hands need bleaching treatments, too, in order to keep them appropriately white and free from vegetable stains and discolorations. And a good bleaching soap is excellent for this. To make such a soap, place a wine glass pull of eau-de-cologne and one of fresh, strained lemon juice in a small pan. Add to them a pound of pure, white castile soap that has been scraped into very fine shavings. Then mix the ingredients over a very slow fire. When the soap is all in liquid form, pour the mixture into a mold and allow it to harden. And whenever your paddies need cleansing, use this soap. You'll find that it will not only cleanse your hands well, but will have a bleaching effect on them at the same time.

Brown Spots

Barbara: To eradicate brown spots, so-called "liver spots," try applying a solution of hyposulphate of soda and water, using one part of the chemical to eight parts of water.

Figure

Teresa: The reducing course outlined in my "New Figure" booklet has indeed been proved a healthful and effective one. This course takes off about 8 to 10 pounds in 2 weeks, and includes reduction of the bust, waist, hips, abdomen, buttocks and thighs.

Good Taste

By Francine Markel

I'm always disappointed in the appearance of my table when setting it for five places. Can you give me suggestions?

Three, five or seven places can be symmetrically arranged by putting the centre runner at one end of the table for the bowl of flowers or fruit and candles. No candles for luncheon, of course. The hostess is usually seated at the opposite end and either one, two or three guests are seated along each side. The seating of four persons need not always follow the usual way of one at each side. Try placing the centre runner along one side of the table, two guests on the opposite side and the remaining guest and yourself at the ends. It's smart and unusual.

New Home Recipes For Iced Drinks Healthful

By MARY E. DAGUE

Would you think of combining pineapple and coffee for one of those cooling hot-weather drinks? You'll like it.

And, moreover, beverages made with charged or carbonated water are healthful drinks. Also, they are of some food value due to the sugar used in their making, while the fruit juices, acids, extracts and other flavors from aromatic herbs and roots, as well as the carbon dioxide gas in them, act as a tonic and mild astringent. So that ought to settle any worry about putting them on the family menu.

Sister Mary

The excess juice left from canning can be used to advantage in the making of summer drinks—have you found that out? Lemon and lime juices are pleasant additions to fruit punches. Also grated rinds of oranges and lemons.

BLEND RIND WITH SUGAR SYRUP

Add the grated rind to the sugar syrup while it is hot for the best results. Make a simple syrup as usual and when it is cooked, add the grated rind of two lemons or one orange for every cup of sugar and let stand until cool. Strain and bottle as usual.

Beware of making the summertime drink too sweet, for a tart drink quenches thirst and refreshes more than a syrupy one, and a sweet drink is more heating, since it has a higher food value.

If you keep your refrigerator stocked with bottles of sugar syrup, various fruit juices and ginger ale, you can serve a delicious drink at a minute's notice. When you want a fruit punch for a certain time, it's a good idea to mix the juices and the syrup several hours beforehand. Thus the flavors blend and the drink is better. Any charged water that is used should be added the last thing before serving.

ICED PINEAPPLE COFFEE

Three-eighths cup sugar, three-quarters cup water, one scant teaspoon grated orange rind, three cups cold coffee, three-quarter cup pineapple juice, three-eighths cup cream.

Boil sugar, water and orange rind together for ten minutes. Strain, cool and add cold coffee. When ready to serve combine with pineapple juice and cream. Serve in tall glasses filled with cracked ice.

VANILLA WAFERS

Three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons lard or other shortening, one cup granulated sugar, one egg, four tablespoons milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons vanilla.

Cream shortening, beat in sugar, stirring until creamy. Add egg well beaten with milk and vanilla. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and add to first mixture. Chill for an hour before rolling. Bake on a buttered and floured cookie sheet in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for ten minutes.

Monday's Menu

Minute Make-Ups

By V. V.

Those who are over 40—that age where life is said to begin—should be most careful not to use too much make-up. Eye shadow should be dispensed with and an eye cream used to give a luminous effect, rather than a hard line of color.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

Soon Mrs. Rip Van Winkle said, "Now these tots should be put to bed. I guess I've spanked them hard enough to make them both behave.

"The spanking really hurt me, too, and I am glad that I am through. No more will they play tricks on Rip and make the poor man rave."

"Oh, that's just what we want to do," one tot exclaimed. "Much thanks to you." And then they started running, and it made the Tinies smile.

Soon Rip's wife said, "Let's have some lunch, and every Tiny in the bunch went with her to the kitchen, where they were for quite a while.

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"You bet we won't," one tot replied. And then the other quickly cried, "Oh, please do not put us to bed. From now on we'll be good.

"All of our tricks are just in fun, but some of them should not be done. We promise that we'll try to do naught but what should be done."

* * *

"That's fair enough," said Goldy. "Gee, the two tots quite appeal to me. It's my suggestion that we let them run right out of sight.

"Who knows but what they'll change their ways and be all right, in future days. If they run off, right now, they may reach their own home by night."

All of a sudden Scouty said, "I think we should hike on, instead of wearing out our welcome. Let's wake Rip and say goodbye.

"He's sleeping on the couch, right now, but we will get him up, somehow." They shook him till he stirred a bit and heaved a real long sigh.

Wee Dotty shouted in his ear, "So long, Rip! We are leaving here." The old man sat right up and said, "Well lots of luck to you!

"Where'er you travel, may you find a lot of people who are kind." And then the Tinies started off to look for something new.

What's What

Question — Will you please tell your readers what sort of mourning a man should wear in summer? How long is he supposed to stay in mourning? WIDOWER.

Answer—A man wears all-black at the funeral of his wife, his own or his wife's parents, brothers or sisters, uncles and aunts. Mourning is greatly simplified nowadays in the United States nd Canada—especially for men. During the hot months, he may wear any type of summer clothes; in the autumn and winter he wears a gray, blue or brown suit in daytime. In all these, mourning is indicated only by the sleeveband, hat band and black tie. The band, stitched on the left sleeve of the coat, is four inches wide, of silk crepe in summer, of fine woolen cloth in colder weather. The mourning hat band is two inches wide. The black tie may be four-in-hand, Windsor or other bow, according to the season. A widower or a bereaved father or son wears mourning for a year; the period for a brother, uncle or nephew ends six months after the death.

Question—Please suggest a way to present gifts to the bride-elect at a miscellaneous shower, which is to be given in the dining room of a hotel. Thanks. FAYE.

Answer—If it is a linen shower the packages may be wrapped in tissue paper of the bride-elect's favorite color and tied with ribbon of the same hue. Each package may have the card of the giver attached.

Consumption of alcoholic drinks in Switzerland has taken a notable drop in the last two years.

India, Romance Land Without One Sparkle Of Love In Its Area

Refuses to Shoot at Any More, Even When Proven Male

By GORDON SINCLAIR
Bulletin's Roaming Reporter

AGRA, India, June 29.—They'll tell you in India, especially the Indians themselves, that this is a land of romance without a sparkle of love.

Gordon Sinclair

This is probably true, and yet, in this concentration camp for history and suckers, 20,000 men toiled 20 years on a work of love.

An emperor's love for his wife, who died having her eighth baby, created the Taj Mahal. When finished it was a tomb. The most beautiful tomb in the world. Strangely enough, lovers are now using it as a place of death.

So many suicide pacts have recently resulted in jumps from the highest minarets that doors are being installed to keep people from plunging to the jagged rocks of the river Jumna far below.

LOVE SUICIDES

Most of these jumpers are young Indian men or women compelled by parents to marry someone to whom they were betrothed in childhood or whom they have never seen.

The Taj, even as a lure to people bent on their own destruction, is still the most beautiful building in the world, no matter how you look at it. I rolled into town tonight in the midst of a thundering storm and the Taj seemed more beautiful than ever as lightning danced around the star and crescent of Islam on its roof.

We had spent the early morning examining the only tomb of this lacey marble type built within the past century. That was at Shivpuri and in a smaller way seemed just as gorgeous as the Taj except for a statue set up in the central lily pond which is not the sort of statue a fellow normally expects to look at.

TIGERS PROTECTED

Then we rolled away toward low, scrubby jungle. This was Gwalior state, where tigers are on the protected list, so there are lots of them. We were early enough in the morning to see one if he might be on the prowl, so kept our eyes open and saw hundreds of tiny spotted deer, but no tiger.

On a hill far away, we spied two beautiful stags. They were proud, full-antlered beasts, with the graceful, easy stride of muscular power.

I got out with the rifle and started toward the hill. The stags loped along gently, yet powerfully, then I lost them in a thick patch of jungle. I skirted this and saw them again a good 300 yards away. I've never shot anything in my life at 300 yards, but steadied myself now and uncorked a shell. The big grey animal went up in the air as if shot from a catapult, lurched drunkenly and collapsed.

SINCLAIR'S BEST SHOT

It was the best shot I'd ever made in my life, so I hurried a zig-zag course through bramble bushes, tearing my hands and clothes, and there, to my horror, lay a large doe with a bald vulture already perched on her head. I felt ashamed, like a murderer. Down the hill came the two stags we'd seen. They stopped and looked at me in a puzzled way, an easy shot, but I already felt like a rotter. This feeling grew worse in a few minutes when a fawn came along looking for her mother: the mother I'd been so proud of shooting from 300 yards away.

People began to gather from the jungle, too. They just turned up here and there. I asked the first man if he wanted the deer. He looked half-starved, but said no. "Meat dead; me Mohammedan."

I couldn't figure this out because Mohammedans are meat eaters, but this fellow stalked away. I asked two others if they wanted the animal. They shook their heads. They were Hindoos who couldn't eat meat.

Finally an untouchable man and woman came along who said they'd like it, so I went away crestfallen and ashamed.

TOY RAILWAY

We picked up the trail of a dinky toy railway about this stage and followed the tracks for 50 miles, sharing the same bridges. We couldn't both cross at the same time, but whoever got there first held possession. The engine was an odd little snorter with a four-man crew. There was a fireman and engineer, with two look-out men, one to each side. They sat perilously on boards hung out the window and sang out when there were cattle or goats or buffalo on the track in time for the engineer to stop. The railway wasn't particularly worried about damage suits from farmers who allowed their beasts to wander over the rails, but this train was so light a husky bullock could easily derail it.

The train also carried a conductress for the zenana car and a female water-seller. Women never travel in the same car with men on Indian railroads unless they are related to the men or unless they are such outlandish creatures as white women who do all sorts of silly things.

SPECIAL WOMEN'S CAR

They travel in the harem cars with shutters on the windows, and no male is allowed to set foot inside; not even the conductor. In fact, on this railroad the purda system was so stiff that there were special gates for women to go out at the stations.

In a general way, however, the business of veiling the female is passing out in Hindoo India. The Hindoo started all this nonsense in the days of the invading mongols, who decamped, always, with the choicest jewels and the choicest damsels. To protect both these treasures, the Hindoos covered them up and locked them away. Later the Mohammedans took veiling up as a good idea, and went further. From this town north you'll never see a Mohammedan girl's leg, just in case you happen to be interested in Mohammedan girls' legs. They not only cover their faces with bed sheets and mosquito nets, but the legs are encased in pantaloons which go flippety-flop through the dust.

CLUTTER RAIL LINE

We kept wace with this dinky railway right up to the capital of Gwalior state. By this time it was raining barrels, but the little lookout men had to cling to their outrigger posts just the same. The station was down the main street, which was cluttered with camels and buffaloes, sheep and dogs in about that order. The look-out boys came down from their perches then and pushed the grunting beasts out of their way while the train chuffed along.

From Gwalior on to Agra we ran through almost continual herds of spotted deer. They were beautiful lithe beasts in groups of 40 to 75, and my boys kept pleading with me to shoot one; just a small one, for their supper. They'd stop where a young buck was an easy target, laboriously explain that he was very definitely male, and ask me to blaze away. I refused, and have felt better ever since.

A friend had advised me to visit Sarah and Ann Holman, two Canadian missionaries who were doing a wonderful work among untouchables in Agra and were always glad to put strangers up, particularly people from home. By the time I found their large flower-covered bungalow it was dark, and I was sopping wet. The wind howled and the lightning danced, but the missionary ladies were not quite equal to accepting a guest who smoked cigarettes, so I had to push on further.

It's Henry Ford Back At School

The face seems familiar, but not with this costume. But it is Henry Ford, going to school and playing hookey—from his vast business affairs—at the same time. The motor mogul is shown after he had received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Colgate University. He has worn the cap and gown before, holding a doctor of engineering degree from Michigan.

COSTS MILLION FOR RAISES IN CIVIL SERVICE

OTTAWA, June 29—A vote of $1,000,000 for the civil service to re-establish statutory increases and promotions passed the house of commons last night.

Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes said $750,000 would be used for statutory increases which have been suspended three or four years and the balance for re-classification and promotions.

E. R. R. Chevrier (Lib., Ottawa) said the change would mean promotions and increases in the future would be under the treasury board and not the civil service commission, against which he protested.

Mr. Rhodes said there would be no departure over practices of the past but he believed it would add to efficiency if the treasury board had control.

Bitumen Firm To Start Work On Plant Unit

Work on the first additional unit to the proposed $2,500,000 plant at "Bitumount", 50 miles down the Athabasca river from Fort McMurray, will get under way within the next month, it was learned from a reliable source today.

R. C. Fitzsimmons, president of International Bitumen Co., Ltd., which has holdings of 10,000 acres and the patent for separating the bitumen from the sands, left the British Isles Wednesday where he was successful in lining up strong financial support for development work. The company's present plant has a capacity of 400 barrels of gasoline and oil daily.

Liberty Under Law

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Rom. 14:21—"It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth."

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

In Paul's day much meat was sacrificed to idols and afterwards sold to the public. Some Christians therefore thought that to eat meat implied endorsement of idolotry.

Paul felt free to eat or not as he wished, but he wrote advising Christians to limit this liberty out of love for those who might stumble. "Destroy not with thy meat him for whom Christ died."

Copyright, 1935, by Central Press Association, Inc.

Jesus made no laws for His disciples regarding eating and drinking. But He did emphasize "righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost." Our conduct must promote these.

The Late Jane Addams

The truest expression of liberty is the willingness to deny ourselves for the sake of the weaker neighbor who might be caused to stumble. The late Jane Addams is an example of an unselfish worker for one's fellowmen.

CURRENT TOPICS AT FIRST CHURCH

Rev. Herbert S. Mekeel will preach at both services at First Presbyterian Church on Sunday and at the morning service will speak on "The Meaning of Dominion Day." In the evening he will choose as his sermon topic, "Does God Answer Trivial Prayers?"

The choir, under the direction of the organist and choirmaster, Carman H. Milligan, will render special music at both services.

The annual Sunday School picnic of the church will be held on Saturday, July 6 at Victoria Park at 2:30 p.m. All the church is invited as well as the Sunday school and the branch Sunday schools. There will be contests, games, prizes and refreshments. Each individual is requested to bring a food basket, but all will eat together at 6 p.m.

It has been announced that at the last communion service the following were admitted to membership.

On confession of faith: Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Forman, Miss Grace Davis; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Simpson, Miss Betty Brockie, John Alister MacKenzie, D. A. Ledgerwood, Ronald Ledgerwood.

By certificate: Mr. and Mrs. A. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Wallace, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Brockie, Miss M. Reith, Miss Margaret Howatson, Mrs. McKinley, Mrs. D. A. Ledgerwood, G. H. Baites.

It has been announced that publication of the church calendar will be discontinued until the fall.

Communion At Evening Service Central United

Following the practice of recent years, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated during the evening service on Sunday at Central United Church.

At the morning service Rev. A. E. Black's sermon topic will be, "The Slaves of False Liberty."

Rev. D. C. Ramsay of Erskine United Church was guest speaker at preparatory service on Friday evening.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Christian Science" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at the local Christian Science Church, and at all Christian Science churches tomorrow. Among the citations from the Bible is (Acts 5:12, 14, 16), "And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch—And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women) . . . There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits, and they were healed everyone." One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 149): "We need to understand the affirmations of divine Science, dismiss superstition, and demonstrate truth according to Christ. Today there is hardly a city, village, or hamlet, in which are not to be found living witnesses and monuments to the virtue and power of Truth, as applied through this Christian system of healing disease."

KNOX OBSERVES DOMINION DAY

With Rev. George A. MacDonald, the minister, preaching at both services, Knox United church on Sunday will hold two most interesting sessions.

Special attention is being paid to Dominion Day and all that it stands for.

At the 11 a.m. service the subject will be, "Men of Vision." In the evening the minister will deal with "Balanced Viewpoint."

Of exceptional interest will be the appearance at this service of the Utica Jubilee Singers, from Mississippi, who will present a series of negro spirituals.

Lutherans Take Extra Balloting

CLEVELAND, June 29.—Delegates to the thirty-sixth triennial convention of the Missouri Lutheran synod resumed balloting in the election of a new president. It was the first time in twenty-four years that more than one ballot was needed to elect a president.

On two votes, the incumbent president, Dr. Frederic Pfotenhauer, Chicago, failed by seven votes to receive the necessary majority of all ballots cast.

HOLIDAY SCHOOLS OPEN NEXT WEEK

Although many children are leaving for camps, the church vacation schools will open next week to provide amusement and useful occupations for those whose camps open at a later date and those who do not plan outside vacations.

With programs lasting two and one-half hours during the forenoon, the schools in most places start at 9:15 a.m. On Tuesday the schools open at the following churches: Norwood Nazarene, Norwood United, Central United, Buchanan Institute and the South Side Cooperative school, at Knox and Metropolitan United and Strathcona Baptist.

The Forest Heights school will open Tuesday afternoon and the Calvin United on Wednesday morning.

Mary Henry To Collect Flora In North B.C.

MONTREAL, June 29—Bound for a little-known section of northern British Columbia to make collections of dried plants for the Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh, Mrs. Mary G. Henry, wife of Dr. Norman Henry, of Philadelphia, passed through Montreal Friday.

Mrs. Henry will go to Dawson Creek, the end of the rail in the Peace River block, and will travel by car to Fort St. John, the starting base of a long horseback journey. She is accompanied by her daughter. She will also visit Mount Mary Henry, named in her honor by the American Horticultural Society, contributing editor to the National Horticultural Magazine and an executive of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

Railways Expect Busy Week-End

In addition to short excursion offerings in force over the holiday week-end, considerable bookings to the east and to the coast are expected. Steamship bookings have been impressive for the past week and it is expected these will continue undiminished all summer.

A large number of Edmontonians are expected to take advantage of special excursion rates to the coast commencing July 3. Over 200 citizens took advantage of special rates prevailing for a similar excursion last year.

Excursion rates to the east will be effective later in the summer while special offerings for coast trips will be repeated.

Reporter Turns Sleuth But Prowlers Turn Out To Be Midnight Workers

The Bulletin's cub reporter turned sleuth in the grim grey dawn but no front page story and hand-shaking by the managing editor resulted, as invariably happens in Hollywood versions of newspaper life.

Returning home in the early morning, after a lengthy stint at his typewriter, the cub-sleuth was amazed to hear clanking tools and see a light flashing on and off in the front yard of one of the South Side's most respected citizens. It looked like ghoulish business.

Trying his hardest to look like Lee Tracy in the fifth reel of a newspaper thriller, the reporter crept closer to the scene of operations and was amazed to see two roughly dressed men apparently drilling a hole in the lawn.

Un-sleuth-like investigation revealed that the ghoulish figures were employees of the city waterworks department, testing water pipes for leaks. With their tests depending on soundings, the men work at night in order to escape noisy hours of the day.

The testers admitted that they have been reported to the police on more than one occasion for suspicious actions, but further stated that police desks are acquainted with their movements and are thus able to reassure frightened citizens.

So far, no weapon owning citizen has fired on them before asking questions.

6,000 Firemen Answer Firebell

NEW YORK, June 29—More than 6,000 firemen answered the alarm when Mrs. Elizabeth Monahan's cottage caught fire in the village of Roosevelt, Long Island.

The firemen, with all their equipment, were there yesterday attending a tournament of the southern New York Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Alberta Union Municipalities Votes It Down

Delegates at Calgary Meet Kill Proposal For 25 Per Cent. Tax on Interests, Dividends.

CALGARY, June 29.—Delegates at the closing session of the Union of Alberta Municipalities here Friday voted down a resolution sponsored by Edmonton city council which asked the provincial government to impose a tax of not less than 25 per cent on all "unearned increment," including all interests and dividends. The motion stated the tax should be turned over to municipalities.

A resolution, submitted by the town of Grande Prairie, which urged the Dominion government to loan money, amortized for 30 to 40 years, for public works programs of cities, towns and villages, was passed.

Mayor L. Colpitts, of Sylvan Lake, former first vice-president, was named president at election of officers. Former Mayor J. A. Code of Camrose, retiring president, was named honorary president. Delegates voted to hold the 1936 convention at Lethbridge.

Other officers elected were: Councillor A. Smeaton, M.L.A., Lethbridge, first vice-president; Mayor S. A. Fox, Innisfail, second vice-president; J. E. Fraser, Wetaskiwin city clerk, secretary-treasurer.

RESTRICTION OF TEACHERS' RIGHTS SCORED

Executive of A.T.A. Protests Action of Calgary School Board

Protesting against the action of the Calgary Public School Board which passed a resolution forbidding members of the school staffs in the southern city to discuss economics, civics, history or expressing their personal views in connection therewith, either inside or outside the school the provincial executive of the Alberta Teachers' Association has gone on record officially as taking a strong stand in the matter.

The A.T.A. executive, in a resolution covering the move made by the Calgary School Board stigmatizes the latter body for its action and calls on the provincial government to enact legislation at the earliest possible opportunity making it an offence for any publicly elected authority to restrict the rights of any body of citizens.

CHARGES MADE

The charges made against the board by the A. T. A. executive include the following:

1. Restricting or attempting to restrict the members of the teaching profession from exercising their full rights and obligations as citizens and their duties as teachers.
2. Adopting a policy of selection and discrimination against certain members of the staff whose views presumably, do not coincide with those of the majority of the members of the Calgary public school board.
3. Casting aspersions on the integrity of the members of the teaching profession by implying that they prostitute their positions as teachers to promulgate party politics in the class rooms.

THE EXECUTIVE

The members of the executive who are now in session here include President G. G. Harmon, Edmonton; vice-president H. A. Kostase, Willingdon; past president E. J. Thorlakson, Calgary; E. C. Ansley, Medicine Hat; M. G. Merkley, Coalhurst; H. C. Clarke, Edmonton; H. T. Robertson, Calgary; Raymond Shaul, Czar; J. Hayhurst, Vegreville, and J. W. Barnett, general secretary-treasurer.

Brunswick Revises Its Election Totals

SAINT JOHN, June 29—Nearly 100,000 more ballots were cast in Thursday's provincial election than in the 1930 contest. With three polls still to be completed, unofficial returns totalled 500,159, of which 320,659 were for Liberals, 228,024 for Conservatives and 1,476 for independents. A total of 451,776 ballots were counted in 1930—222,245 for Liberals, 229,348 for Conservatives and 183 for one independent.

It is stated that expansion of present quarters in this city to take care of increasing business will follow Mr. Talbot's visit.

CONTINUATION TAX INQUIRY BOARD ASKED

Union of Alberta Municipalities Request Government Action

Following up submission of recommendations to the annual convention of the Union of Alberta municipalities in Calgary, Edmonton Chamber of Commerce has despatched a copy of the resolutions to Hon. Hugh Allen, provincial minister of municipal affairs, together with a resolution seeking the government to continue existence of the Alberta Taxation Enquiry Board. The resolution was forwarded through John Blue, secretary.

Recommendations submitted to the municipalities' convention urged a conference of federal, provincial and municipal authorities at an early date to discuss remedies for financial problems.

REMEDIES SUGGESTED

Remedies suggested were:

"Control should involve financial responsibility and conversely financial responsibility predicate control.

"Therefore, such services as education and health which obviously must be controlled on at least a provincial basis, should receive their major support from provincial revenues.

"In the same way unemployment relief should be handled on a national scale and therefore paid for nationally.

"Apart from the logic of finance and control going together, the limited field of taxation allocated municipalities and the obvious failure of the real base—real estate—makes the change imperative."

EXCELLENT WORK

"Resolved that in view of the excellent work done by the Alberta Taxation Enquiry Board, as shown in its preliminary report, the council of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce urges the government of Alberta to continue the board in existence until a final solution of the problems disclosed has been reached."

Convention of municipalities at Calgary went on record as strongly favoring appointment of one or more of their members on the provincial taxation board.

Summer School To Open Tuesday

University of Alberta campus will re-awake to youth on Tuesday with commencement of 1935 summer school sessions. As in past years, special courses will be offered to school teachers studying for degrees. Courses will be offered also for Varsity students who wish to repeat standard studies.

LUCKY SCOTT REPORTS FIND

A. W. "Lucky" Scott, head of El Bonanza Mines, who won his nickname years ago in the northern Ontario mining fields, flew into Edmonton from Cameron Bay, Great Bear Lake, Friday, and told reporters over the telephone Saturday that his company had made a sensational new silver strike at Mile Lake. The rush of business prevented him from seeing newspapermen personally.

Speaking of the Mile Lake silver strike, located about five miles from Cameron Bay, "Lucky" Scott said, "It is the only new sensation from the north I know about."

The head of El Bonanza Mines has been "inside" four months and hopped off with Pilot Marlowe Kennedy in a Mackenzie Air Services plane from Cameron Bay at 6 a.m. Friday. The big machine dropped down at Cooking Lake air base shortly before 9.20 p.m. after a near record flight in the matter of time and speed.

The new silver strike, explained "Lucky" Scott, was made in the new east shaft of the mine at Mile Lake. El Bonanza is staking no new property at present.

"We have all the property we need now. Development work comes next," he said.

Police Court

Nick Yaworski, arrested in Winnipeg and brought back to face a charge of forging the name of J. K. Macdonald to a cheque for $135 on March 30, received an adjournment to Friday, July 5.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

The Technocrats claim a fabric has been produced from which clothes could be made that would last 50 years or more. They charge that the profit system is keeping the material off the market. How would you like to have a suit that would last 50 years? This was the question put to members of both sexes by the [illegible] Friday. The answers may not be what you would expect. Here they are:

NELLIE STEVENS, stenographer: "It would certainly solve the high cost of dressing problem, but then what would there be left in life for us girls? We'd have to buy so many different frocks and dresses in order to keep looking 'different' that we wouldn't save anything in the long run."

* * *

HORACE JOHNSON, barrister: "I imagine I would get tired of wearing the same suit all my life although I often wish clothes lasted a bit longer than they do."

* * *

A CLOTHING MERCHANT: "The way business has been the last couple of years, I doubt if it would make much difference to us. Most people are making suits last for several years as it is. Patches are taking the place of styles under the Bennett 'tighten your belt' plan of prosperity."

* * *

CLARENCE S. CAMPBELL, barrister and sportsman: "I don't believe it in the first place but if it is true I am very sorry indeed. Life would be very drab if we all went around in uniforms. There would be no color or variety."

* * *

SANDY MacDONALD, late of Edinburgh: "Mon, that's the gr-r-randest bit of news I've heard in years. You dinna need let the problem of changing styles worry you a bit. I'll order a suit with plenty of wide seams and every two or three year I'll get the Missus to change the style a bit by ripping one seam and sewing up another. It's a gr-r-rand idea."

Complaint that many citizens undertaking repairs and alterations to buildings had failed to take out permits to cover same, or had applied for permits after the work had been finished, was lodged with city commissioners by John Martland, city architect and building inspector, Saturday. City officials warn that there will be prosecutions in such cases, as a person is required to receive a permit from the city before construction work is undertaken.

A change in schedule on the C.P.R. Big Gully subdivision, Lloydminster to Hillmond, becomes effective July 5.

Miss Elsie Pepper, stenographer in the office of Canadian Airways Ltd., is leaving Monday for Sylvan Lake, where she will spend two weeks vacation.

T. McDonell, general manager of Canadian Pacific Express arrived in Edmonton from Calgary Saturday morning on a business visit and is registered at the Macdonald hotel.

Pilot Con Farrell, Canadian Airways Ltd., left Cooking Lake seaplane base Saturday morning for Fort McMurray, with two passengers. Friday he made a quick two-way flight to and from Wabasca.

The Communist election committee is holding a picnic on June 30 at 2 p.m. at the rear of the Royal Alexandra hospital. All workers and their families are invited to attend. Games, sports and refreshments will be at the grounds. Communist candidates will address the gathering.

Robert H. C. Harrison, well known barrister of Leduc, was married Saturday to Miss Phyllis Hunter of Cavanaugh. Mr. Harrison is a graduate of the University of Alberta and was a popular member of the younger set of this city before opening a law office in Leduc a few years ago.

Rev. Howard C. Phillips, of Drumheller, who has been called to the pastorate of Norwood Regular Baptist church, 113 avenue and 94 street, arrives over the week-end and will commence his duties with the services on July 7. J. H. Pickford of Western Baptist Bible College, Calgary, has been supplying this pulpit during June, and will preach at both services on June 30.

Preaching a tridium in honor of the Sacred Heart feast day of which was Friday, Rev. Fr. Ethelbert of the Franciscan Fathers of Montreal, will be present for solemn devotions morning and evening at St. Joseph cathedral. It is hoped that a large number of communions will be received by parishioners at masses at 6.30 a.m., 7.00 a.m., 7.30 a.m. and 8.15 a.m. Evening service commences at 7.30 o'clock.

A delegation of residents from the North Edmonton district asked city commissioners to build sidewalks on Alberta avenue between 66 and 73 streets. It was pointed out that a petition signed by residents desiring the improvement would first have to be presented to city council before any action could be taken, and Mayor J. A. Clarke said he was willing to give his support to such a petition.

Cases of measles reported to the city health department this week totalled 229 as compared to 233 last week, according to a report prepared by Dr. R. B. Jenkins, medical officer of health. Other cases recorded follow, figures for this week and last week being given in that order: Scarlet fever 1, 1; chickenpox 3, 3; mumps 0, 6; erysipelas 3, 1; pneumonia 0, 1; tuberculosis (pulmonary) 0, 1; trench mouth 0, 1; total, 236, 247.

Motorists Contributed $22.30 Of Every $100 Collected By Province

Alberta motorists contributed $22.30 out of every $100 cash receipts collected by the province in 1934, an increase of $2.40 over the previous year. Of this amount $11.40 out of every $100 represented gasoline tax, while the balance represented registration and license fees.

Comparisons in the provincial financial statements of the last few years prove that out of every $100 received by the provincial treasurer, motorists paid the following: 1930, gas tax $11.30, license and registration, $12.80, total $24.10; 1931, in the same order, $12.30, $10.80, total $23.10; 1932, $11.20, $10.90, total $22.10; 1933, $9.80, 10.10, total $19.90; 1934, $11.40, $10.90, total $22.30.

These figures show that the gasoline tax revenue remained practically stationary over this period, while the income from licenses and registration fees decreased from 12.8 per cent per $100 to 10.9 per cent per $100.

According to the latest figures 11.6 per cent of the population owned motor vehicles in Alberta in 1934 and, in that year they contributed $3,392,168 or 22.3 per cent of the cash revenue received by the province in the twelve-month period.

MOSTLY CLOUDY, COOL WEATHER

Running true to form, the weather forecast for the week-end is "mostly cloudy and somewhat cooler Saturday and Sunday, with scattered showers." It would hardly be a week-end if such a forecast as this was not made, but, undeterred, the public is setting about enjoying itself over the holiday in any case.

On Friday the mercury soared to 83, the highest mark attained in weeks while at 2 p.m. on Saturday it had sunk to 63.

The mean temperature on Friday was 71, with 60 for the corresponding day of 1934.

On Sunday the sun will rise at 4.08 a.m. and set at 9.06 p.m. while on Monday it will rise at 4.09 and set at 9.06 p.m.

At midnight the mercury stood at 62 while hourly readings from then until 9 a.m. were 60, 58, [illegible], 58, 58, 58, 58, 60, 60.

ELECTION DATE WILL BE FIXED AT U.F. CAUCUS

Believe Polling Day Will Be Between August 8 and 15

Date of the provincial general election will be set when United Farmers of Alberta members of the legislature and nominees in the election caucus here on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, a caucus called by Premier R. G. Reid. In addition to discussing the election date, the gathering will draft the general election plans of the U.F.A. party.

From information gleaned in [illegible] political circles it is believed that the favored date will be somewhere between Aug. 8 and 15.

MAIN PROBLEM

The main problem to be discussed in setting the election date will be whether to hold it before or after the harvest. If it is held before the harvest it is certain to be not later than Aug. 15. If it is held after the harvest it will be in November.

General opinion favors the earlier date as it is more advantageous for farmers to go to the polls then and the weather is more likely to be good. In addition the province is anxious to hold its election before the dominion and to hold it off until November would conflict too closely with the major election.

THREAT INEFFECTIVE

The U.F.A. members all agree that the Social Credit threat has become almost ineffective in consideration of the strength of the movement is not likely to be a determining factor in setting the date.

John D. Hunt, chief electoral officer has all his preparations for the voting complete so far as he can, so there will be no impediment so far as preparations are concerned in bringing on an early election.

The legislature will automatically dissolve on July 10, but as the election date probably will be announced before that time the present government will encounter no obstacles for the period between July 10 and the election date, as supply has been voted by the legislature until March 31 next. Irrespective of whether the present administration carries on or is superseded the appropriations are decided for the current fiscal year.

LAST CAUCUS

Several U.F.A. members will be attending their last caucus. Hon. Irene Parlby, minister without portfolio; Gordon Forster; M. J. Conner; Rudolph Hennig; Sam Carson; G. N. Johnston and others either failed to gain nomination or are retiring.

Premier Reid has stated that he expects the caucus to last two days. The election date may be released immediately, or may be withheld until the end of next week. But arising from the deliberations will be the stage-setting for the election of Alberta's eighth legislature.

Navy League Urges Defence Program

TORONTO, June 29—Dominion Council of the Navy League of Canada, in annual meeting here Friday urged the Dominion government to undertake a "reasonable defence program."

The resolution adopted at the 18th annual session asked Canadian naval forces be increased to "provide security for our sea-borne commerce as well as to preserve our neutrality in case of war between other nations, in conjunction with the naval forces of Great Britain and the other dominions."

Stabilization Furnishes Farm Money

FIFTEEN CENT PRICE RAISE SINCE 1930

Official Defends Workings Of Government Central Agency

OTTAWA, June 29—George A. McIvor, officer of the government wheat stabilization agency in Winnipeg market, stated late last night stabilization operations had increased wheat prices to farmers since 1930 well over $150,000,000. He estimated the price had been increased on an average 15 cents a bushel by government stabilization during those years.

Mr. McIvor was giving evidence before the house of commons committee on the Canada Grain Board bill. During the forenoon and night sittings of the committee he had been questioned by members of the committee as to operations of John I. McFarland, who had charge of the stabilization.

15 CENTS IN 5 YEARS

Shortly before the committee closed, E. E. Perley (Cons., Qu'Appelle) asked how much the operations had increased the price to the producer. Witness estimated it at 15 cents a bushel during the time from 1930 to the present.

Canada during that period had exported 1,076,000,000 bushels of wheat. That would mean $150,000,000, it was figured. In addition the price of wheat sold to domestic mills for flour also carried the higher price.

JUST WILD GUESS

"I think it is a wild guess," said Hon. Charles Stewart (Lib., Edmonton). "I do not mind telling you I do not think you saved the farmer anything of the kind. You only sold 50 per cent of the total sales."

"Yes, but our operations raised the price of all the sales."

"You took the world price didn't you?

QUEBEC HAS 17,000 JOBLESS ON-THE-MARCH

MONTREAL, June 29.—More than 17,000 unemployed from the province of Quebec will march on Ottawa at the same time as hunger marchers from Ontario and western Canada are approaching the capital, it was indicated Thursday at a meeting of the Quebec section of the Canadian hunger march.

Men are already on their way to Montreal from distant sections of the province, it was learned. About 12,000 will commence the march from Montreal and 5,000 from other parts of the province.

MIRACLE BEAM TO BE FEATURE AT EXHIBITION

General Electric Engineer Will Present House of Magic

A beam of light that plays, sings, and talks; colors that change, disappear, and reappear again at the wave of the hand; an electronic beam that presents an "electric picture" of any sound made into a microphone; the almost human tasks performed by the electric eye—these are some of the "headliners" of the presentation of the "House of Magic" which will be made at Edmonton Exhibition, July 15 to 20 by Dr. C. T. Plumb, engineer of the General Electric company. The "House of Magic," far from being a sleight-of-hand and rabbit-out-of-a-hat show, is in reality a demonstration of the latest developments of the General Electric research laboratory at Schenectady, highly scientific in character, but so arranged and presented by Dr. Plumb that the most startling effects are obtained in terms readily intelligible to the lay mind.

RESEARCH RESULTS

To Dr. Plumb has fallen the task of carrying the message and accomplishments of G.-E. research west of the Mississippi, and he is highly qualified for the job by many years of experience in both scientific and engineering fields. He has been a teacher of chemistry, physics and electrical engineering in several schools and colleges, first undergoing the G.-E. "test" courses while an instructor at Pratt institute. He has taught also at Milton college and the University of Wisconsin, and for seven years was in charge of the electrical laboratories at Purdue university.

WIDELY EXPERIENCED

In 1903 and 1904 he was assistant superintendent of the Railway Test commission. At Purdue he became interested in illumination and photometry, in the testing of electric railway equipment, and in high-voltage and high-frequency research. The interest which his spectacular experiments created on the campus led to several years of exchange lecture courses at Cornell, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. His headquarters are now at Salt Lake City.

Mayor Supports Scenic Driveway As Work Scheme

Likelihood of the Jasper East scenic driveway being completed this summer was expressed by Mayor J. A. Clarke, who said he was supporting the project as a part of his proposed "work-for-wages" program since the completion of the drive could be carried out with the minimum of engineering supervision and by the employment of city relief cases. City council has already ordered the grading of the incompleted drive.

He further stated that council's instructions to the commissioners to prepare a detailed and comprehensive report on the possibility of inaugurating a works program for unemployed were now being carried out. "City Engineer Haddow and Relief Manager McKee have been asked for information in this connection. With regard to the scenic driveway scheme, I believe that 400 men could be put to work on the road on a two-shift plan. It's time the city received a more adequate return for money spent on relief," he said.

Listen Inn

Failure of independent radio stations to comply with a plan of proposed assessment for every record aired, will result in the radios being deprived of records made by radio's leading artists. Net work sponsors and the "name" band leaders and vocalists complained that the [illegible] was being taken out of live talent programs by the unauthorized broadcasting of their "canned" artistry.

Now Bing Crosby, the Boswell Sisters, Wayne King, Lombardo, Glen Gray and the Casa Lomans, Ruth Etting and other names which make the NBC and CBS kilocycles favorites when programs are dialed in, agreed at a Hollywood conference this week to make no more records. Fred Waring, leader of the Pennsylvanians, has not made a platter in four years, protecting both his sponsor and the network from unauthorized airing of his music.

Should radio in September when winter program hours are lined up, stick to its promise to ban laxative and cure-all ballyhoo from the air, broadcasters will drop $5 million per year. Loss of Rudy Vallee's program which falls into the medicine show class, will mean a loss of $500,000 to the NBC-WEAF web.

For the benefit of dance addicts who like their dansapation up to the minute and maestros who like to supply it that way, WEAF, WJZ and WABC, basic stations of NBC's Red and Blue and CBS's networks list the following in order as the most popular themes of the week: "Little Gypsy Tea-room," "Flowers For Madame," "Thrilled," "In the Middle of a Kiss," "About a Quarter to Nine," "Everything's Been Done Before," "Lady in Red," "I'll Never Say Never Again" and "Footloose and Fancy Free."

Dramatization of the colorful events in the life of Lawrence of Arabia will be broadcast over the CRC's national network from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m., M.S.T., Sunday. Originating in the Montreal studios, the program will be put over with a large cast and full orchestra.

NEED WARMER WEATHER FOR PEACE CROPS

Grain Reported in Good Condition But is Little Late

Grain in the Peace River territory is in good condition but is a little late and warm weather would be beneficial, according to the crop report of the Northern Alberta Railways for the week previous to June 26, issued on Friday.

Moisture conditions are generally good.

WEATHER COOL

Dawson Creek reports cool, showery weather with grain in good shape, but late. Weather has been cool with some rain at Pouce Coupe. Moisture conditions are excellent but warm weather would be of benefit. There has been showery weather at Hythe and growth is somewhat slow, with warm weather required.

WARM WEATHER NEED

Crops are progressing rapidly at Rycroft but warmer weather is needed. There were heavy rains during the last week.

From all sections of the area somewhat similar reports have been received, all indicating good growth but a need for warmer weathe.

By Juliet Wilbor Tompkins

Joanna's "Moral Certainties" About Aunt Abby Solve the Mystery of the Old Lady's Will.

A SILENCE followed the reading of the will, one of those silences that are louder than shouts. Then the few present roused themselves to a terrible delicacy, shook Joanna's hand with a pressure that was harder to bear than the astonishment that they kept back, and melted away. Only Billy was left, huddled in a chair, his face darkly red, and Jarvis Corey, standing as he had stood while he read the will. Its final clause had left him stunned.

Joanna's wild need was to get away before they spoke, but at her movement Billy pulled himself together and stood in front of her.

"Jo, I don't understand it!" he blurted with a stammering effort. "Why, the last time I saw Aunt Abby we had a row—you remember? She said that old Mr Corey was coming in the morning to make her a new will and I wouldn't get even the five thousand she had me down for. What does this mean—leaving everything to me?"

Joanna could not be sure how her voice would sound, but launched it bravely. "Well, Billy, I urged her not to be so hard on you. She could even show her usual broad smile. And I spoke to Mr Corey in the morning, begged him to make your peace with Aunt Abby. And evidently between us we did the job a little too well." Pleased with her self-possession she glanced past Billy to Jarvis, but the look she met, the smoulder of wrath and compassion, was too much for her. She turned hastily to the door. "Not now—no more now," she murmured and slipped away.

Safe in her room, she gripped herself until the need to howl was fought down. She had to think now, this minute, to think it through until she came to a measure of understanding. Her hurt went far deeper than the loss of the money; it was the sense of betrayal that must be faced and in some fashion explained away. No one who knew Aunt Abby could level a charge of betrayal against her unrefuted. In some dark way she must have had right on her side.

And yet it had been an unwritten bargain between them. Joanna, just out of college, had been headed for the city, keen, gay, bubbling over with energy, a job promised; life in the green tranquility of the elms in these big old family houses had seemed to her deadly. But Aunt Abby was 75 and nearly blind and not in a lifetime could Joanna have earned what she was offered as Aunt Abby's heir if she would stay.

No services were asked of her, just her cheerful, headlong presence, her terrier grip on life in an old home that had grown stagnant. Not that Aunt Abby put it like that. "You're not altogether a fool," was her idea of a high compliment. But in her brusque way, she had seemed satisfied. And now, four years later, she had made this new will, leaving everything to her beloved nephew, William, without even a mention of Joanna's name.

It was only two weeks ago. That morning the heat had lain on the town a tangible weight, bending down the elms, and old Mr Corey had looked dangerously red as he came up the path. He sat in the hall a few minutes and Joanna brought him water. She had not seen him when he went away with his instructions, but not a qualm of anxiety had touched her. The new will was natural enough; securities had shrunk and several legatees had died. Aunt Abby had been talking of making it for months.

Later in the morning his secretary brought the will for signature, saying that Mr Corey was not well, but not mentioning that after he had dictated the new will and read it over he had gone down in what looked like a stroke. Lily Marshall had a cool, flippant voice, and the heat did not seem to touch her; every blonde wave was in place, her pink face kept its powder unmelted. Joanna of course stayed away, having summoned the two Phipps girls from next door as witnesses.

Aunt Abby had seemed quiet and melancholy all day, but had not volunteered any information about what she had done. That evening the news of Mr Corey's death had come as a profound shock. A week later Aunt Abby herself was gone, with no word of warning for Joanna, no sign of antagonism. It passed belief.

"Aunt Abby, what was it? Why did you?" Joanna's doubled fists beat out the question. "If you could just explain it I wouldn't care so much." No sign came back from Aunt Abby.

By night the whole town knew and Joanna had to face the sympathy and the wonder. Emily Phipps, running over from next door, openly wept and stormed.

"And to think that [illegible] and I signed it, we witnessed that outrage!" she cried, literally striking her thin breast. The Phipps sisters were nearing the fifties, but they never lost their fragile girlishness.

"Sit down, Emily, and tell me about it," Joanna commanded. "Tell me just what Aunt Abby said."

Emily subsided into a chair, but her mind still fluttered about and had to be pulled down at intervals. She and sister had come in after the secretary had read the will to Aunt Abby. The two copies were spread out on the table, one over the other, and that horrid dry pretty Lily Marshall [illegible] Aunt Abby [illegible] had signed [illegible]. There had not been much room left for their names. [illegible]

Lily had put the documents in her bag and gone off looking like pink ice cream [illegible] was simply [illegible] Miss Abby's mind was gone, the will proved that. They were ready to stand by Joanna in court if she wanted to fight it. Everybody knew the bargain that had been made with her.

Talk about breaking the will only roused Joanna's wrath. That evening Billy came back with a stricken offer to share with her, but she was too deeply hurt to consider it. All that sleepless night Joanna tried to face the future, to make some plan, but she could not focus on anything but her pain and her bewilderment.

"Aunt Abby, it wasn't fair!" she said into the dawn. And yet she had never seen Aunt Abby unfair.

Billy came again in the morning to say that Joanna must stay there for the present. The aged cook would have to be pensioned, anyway, and she might as well be looking after Joanna. There was no sense in making any move in August. She had had a rotten deal.

"Billy, all I ask is to understand it," she told him. "I want to know where I failed her."

"She was failing," Billy maintained. "Look how mad she got at me because my car skidded and tipped over! I'd had a drink or two or three, but I wasn't drunk. I had only been dancing."

"It was the girl who tipped over with you and fled into the night that upset her." Joanna had a wide smile for the scandal. "Who was she, Billy?"

"She says she saw that I was all right and that she skipped to make it easier for me. Haw haw!" Billy's scorn was boyish but deadly. "We had one grand row last night. She says I'm walking out on her because I've got some money."

"Well, perhaps you are, in a way," Joanna said. "You're in a different position, more responsible, more important. It matters a lot whom you marry—now."

"You couldn't marry before," she scorned him. "Probably this money will make a fine citizen of you, Billy. You might go into business for yourself and give me a job," she added with bitter levity.

Billy stood over her, taking her hand in both his. "I'll never have any fun out of it till I've made it up to you one way or another," he said, and looking up she saw in his open face the dawn of an idea. Billy was going to [illegible] kind easy-going Billy with his rubber stamp grin [illegible] and his 14-year-old intellect and his wide openness to almost any feminine [illegible]. She began to laugh, then found her eyes streaming.

"I'll [illegible] alone," Billy said and turned away, [illegible] pondering his great idea. "G[illegible], Joanna," he [illegible] newly tender and respectful.

Joanna went off again and had to pull herself together by main force. Jarvis was looking distant.

"I'm sorry to be such an idiot," she apologized. "Sit down, Jarvis. You haven't found a later will, have you?"

"If I only could!" Jarvis dropped heavily into a chair. "The whole thing is incredible. I am wondering if my grandfather's mind wasn't affected, so that he put in the wrong person."

Joanna had talked with him in the hall that morning. "No. His mind was all there. And so was hers, Jarvis."

He was not satisfied. "If only I hadn't been away! Lily was there, of course."

"What does she say?" Joanna asked it casually, but her mind had bristled. She had a watchful curiosity about Jarvis and Lily, spending their days in the same office. Lily had weapons.

"Nothing much. When he fell she called the ambulance and went to the hospital with him, then went up to his house. The office was alone for about an hour."

"Well?"

He brought out a battered leather cigaret case. "Do you know whose that is?"

Joanna did not recognize it. "Why?"

"It was lying on the desk when I got back yesterday afternoon. Lily had never seen it. Some man must have come in while the office was alone and the will was lying there."

"But what could anyone do about it?" she objected.

"Nothing, I suppose."

Joanna opened the case, sniffed at its contents. "It is only in crime stories that cigarets tell you anything," she said. "Did Aunt Abby say anything whatever when Lily read her the will?"

"Why don't you come down to the office and ask her? You might get some light."

Joanna shook her head. "If Aunt Abby didn't want to leave it to me, she didn't have to. Perhaps she saw that I wasn't the right person to have money."

"And that Billy was?" Jarvis asked it thoughtfully, without visible sarcasm. "But I can't see Miss Abby going back on a bargain! There is something to find out. Come down and question Lily by yourself. It's a perfectly natural thing for you to do."

"Aunt Abby didn't give herself away to any Lily," Joanna said, but she went.

Jarvis had his car outside and he drove her silently. They had been amiably fighting for years, always on the one issue: Joanna, with all her energies and ambitions bottled up inside her, could not understand his willingness to go into his grandfather's sleepy practice in a sleepy town when the big, living world was open to him. Her own staying had been at a cost that only Jarvis had known. Now life had called her bluff. She was to have the city and the fight she had wanted instead of this stagnant peace, but never had the broad arch of the elms spread over her so lovely a shelter.

Lily, pink and white and golden, received Joanna with a sympathy that was as irritating as her exaggerated prettiness, and had nothing to tell.

Lily was certain that nothing significant had been said by anyone.

"It is just too bad," she exclaimed. "But almost every will we probate leaves somebody disappointed. I could tell you cases—"

Joanna hated being told cases. She started up. "Let me borrow the copy of the will—do you mind, Lily? I didn't half listen to it."

"The copy?" was the surprised answer. "Why, two wills were signed."

"Of course. But I left one with you, [illegible]."

"I thought you took both away [illegible]. Miss Phipps said so."

"Then it is there, still in her desk."

"It must be, dear." There was a slight change in Lily's manner, an added sweetness. "I know just how you are feeling. I only wish I could help."

Joanna, looking about for an explanation, saw Jarvis at the door. He came in with an open telegram in his hand.

"Just a moment, Joanna, while I dictate an answer to this; then I'll run you home," he said.

Joanna stood by the door, watching them. The two must work together like that for hours every day. Lily, swift and sure, was the perfect implement to his hand, and her glazed beauty was wounding. She made Joanna feel young, vulnerable.

Jarvis, as executor, hunted for days, at first in Aunt Abby's papers, then all through the house, but the copy of the will was not found. And yet Aunt Abby could not have destroyed it, for there had been no fire these hot days. Emily Phipps insisted that the copy had gone with Lily. Lily repeated that it had not, and any impartial judge would have accepted Lily's cool evidence over Emily's flurried protestations. Nevertheless a blind woman, as feeble as Aunt Abby, was limited to a few rooms.

"Her hiding it is as queer as the will itself," Jarvis insisted. "I tell you, Joanna, there is something to find out."

Billy meanwhile was going right ahead with his great idea. Every evening he came in with the air of one offering chocolates or roses, [illegible] fresh flannels and sleek hair, [illegible] him as serious suitor. Billy already showed himself a person of some importance. He carried a cane hooked over his forearm and lit a cigaret with a high elbow and memorized the morning editorials. He had dramatized himself as a wealthy citizen who had put away his wild youth, and Joanna was reminded of playing lady in her mother's skirts, some years ago. The idea that she might marry Billy always gave her a secret hoot of laughter, but Jarvis seemed to be taking it seriously. He infuriated her by wandering away when Billy called. Saturday they were going to give the whole afternoon to the library shelves, but of course Billy had to come bumbling in.

"I suppose it is too soon for you to go somewhere and dance, Jo," he said regretfully. "Thought I could take you to a place where nobody'd know you."

"Jarvis and I are busy," Joanna said, keeping her back turned.

Billy wandered about the room with a proprietor's satisfaction. "I like this old house," he announced, hands behind his back. "I wouldn't ask anything better than to live right here. I believe in family homes and kids—Christmas trees and Santy Claus and all that. I'd enjoy it as much as the kiddies did."

"You ought to get married, Billy," Jarvis said with flawless geniality. "You're a born husband and father. Joanna, I'm playing tennis—I'll cut along." He turned to the door.

"Hello!" Billy picked up the battered leather cigaret case, which had been left lying on the desk. "Where did you find this? Did I leave it here?"

Jarvis came back. "O—is that yours?"

"It sure is." Billy pocketed it with satisfaction. "I've got a better one that I usually carry, but I like the old thing."

"How did you come to leave it in my office?" Jarvis asked.

Billy started. "O—did I?"

"You did. The day of my grandfather's stroke."

"O—O yes. I dropped in to see you." Billy had changed color. "But you weren't there—nobody was there. I waited a while, then left."

"What did you want to see me about?"

"You didn't know that I was off for the day," Jarvis observed. "Well, I am glad to have found the owner. I've wondered." And he was gone.

Billy lit a cigaret. "You know, Jo, Jarvis is dead right about me for a born husband," he held forth. "And it is no harm for second cousins to marry—I looked it up in the library."

"If they want to," Joanna said shortly.

Billy's single track mind was unaware of a snub. "I have had my fling," he assured her. "I'd settle down a lot harder than one of these quiet, booky fellows who never did cut loose."

"But would your lurid past stay buried?" Joanna's smile was deadly. "Wouldn't it keep bobbing up to interrupt your happy time with the kids?"

Billy found that flattering. "When I quit, I quit," he announced. "Now that girl—you know—the one that ran away; she's hounding me to come back, making no end of a fuss. 'One more dance'—all that. I turn her down cold."

"Poor girl! Don't you really owe her something?"

That also was swallowed complacently. "She tries to put it over that I do. By jinks, she almost threatens me."

"Does everybody but me know who she is?"

"Nobody knows. I keep my affairs to myself." Billy crossed his knees at a lordly angle. "Besides, we've been pretty cagey—went a long way off when we wanted to dance. Most we just—O, you know, parked. But now I'm in a different position, more responsible, all that. It matters a lot who I marry."

Billy fixed her with a questioning eye. "Jo, if I could tell her that I was engaged—that would clinch matters, wouldn't it?"

"No doubt. But you are not," was the strong answer.

"But Jo—"

Her exasperation surged out. "Oh, Billy, do grow up! If you are done with the girl, tell her so—don't try to get behind an engagement. Nobody is going to marry you till you show some sense."

Billy rose in hurt dignity. That was no way to talk to a leading citizen. "I am sorry I bothered you, Joanna," he said, and stalked away.

The long, hot afternoon dragged past and Jarvis did not come back. The house was haunted by Aunt Abby; Joanna heard the tap of her cane on the stairs, saw the shadow of her militant shoulder in her favorite chair, listened for her bell. She uncovered the typewriter, which Aunt Abby had learned to use with a dashing inaccuracy, and was startled to find in it an unfinished letter. Her heart trembled as she pulled it out. Here, at last, might lie some clew to what Aunt Abby had done.

The letter was to a cousin, short, bald sentences stating facts and so like her that Joanna found her eyes wet. Home news was covered, Billy's wildness referred to. "Curious that he and Joanna should come of the same stock. Joanna—" There the letter ended.

Joanna looked up as though to someone standing over her. "Why, Aunt Abby, you didn't change about me and you didn't go back on me!" she said aloud. "You couldn't!" That came to her like a revelation. Why hadn't she seen it before? If the facts denied it, the facts were wrong. The task was simply to get past the apparent facts to the truth.

Joanna called up Jarvis: "I want to see the will, myself," she told him, a new urgence in her voice.

Jarvis said dryly that he would bring it up that evening, but he did not hurry himself. It was half past eight before Joanna's impatience heard the smooth stopping of his car. He came in with the document in his hand, entirely a man of business.

The will was brief, taking only one typed sheet. Joanna read it several times, then put it down with her finger on a word.

"'Beloved.' 'My beloved nephew,'" she repeated. "Jarvis, that was not like Aunt Abby. She never in her life said 'beloved' of anybody, and certainly not of Billy!"

"I don't care. It was as improbable for her as 'adored' would have been." Joanna said hotly. "Aunt Abby never in this world dictated that line!"

He was startled. "If we can prove that the signatures were forgeries—"

They studied the signatures and had to accept them as genuine. Jarvis showed an absorbed interest in a minute blurring of the top loops of Aunt Abby's name.

"That proves that this was the under will—do you see? The top one came down so far that it touched the signature. If we had it we'd find tiny ink marks on its lower edge. She signed two, and this was the under one."

"Well?"

He brought it out triumphantly. "How do we know that they were the same will? We certainly haven't found any copy. Suppose she signed two different wills—the one that was read to her and the one that was slipped under?"

Joanna still held back. "Lily or your grandfather would have had to do it. Why would they risk state's prison to—" She stopped short, as though a hand had gripped her. "Billy!" she breathed.

He was watching her closely. "Of course that is nonsense. But go over the evidence."

"Billy was alone in the office that day," she faltered. "Was the will lying in plain sight?"

"It was. And Billy has told me a lie. And he knew that I was off for the day. And he knew that the new will was being made. But would he be such a fool—"

"Billy is fool enough for anything," she cut in. "Only—how could he do it?"

Jarvis laughed out, a sudden relieved crow of laughter. "I didn't really believe that you were taking Billy seriously—"

"Yes, you did," said Joanna curtly. "But suppose Billy read the will? What could he do?"

"Plenty!" Jarvis was keen on the scent. "O, don't you see? My grandfather was ill, perhaps dying. Billy can typewrite—he wrote another will, putting himself in your place and gambling on the chance that grandfather would not get well. Lily could be squared—she would have to be. He couldn't have done it without Lily."

Joanna was shocked. "But how could he square Lily?"

"And I thought you and Billy," he returned. They laughed uproariously. "They could produce either will, as they had to," he added. "It fits, my dear, it fits!"

"O Jarvis, how smart you are!" Joanna cried.

"I'll say I am," he said solemnly.

Joanna was tramping wildly about the room. "Have they destroyed the other will now?"

Jarvis thought they must have. "But we can make Billy confess if we have a straight story," he pointed out. "Give him the third degree. The signed copy that can't be found—that is our starting point." He buttoned his coat for action, then paused. "You know, Joanna, this may be crazy. These moral certainties—often they just aren't so."

"But we have a clew, a perfect clew—the word 'beloved,'" she reminded him. "It's from Aunt Abby! Go on, Jarvis, go to it."

He looked back from the doorway. "Come on with me," he said suddenly, boyish.

Billy lived with his mother in a fine old home that was visibly crumbling. Joanna, waiting in the car, heard a weary voice explain that Billy was off dancing. He might be at the Bowl of Cherries or any of those places, perhaps even at the Black Hawk; he certainly would not be in till all hours.

They drove about in the warm moonlight, Jarvis silently developing his line of attack, Joanna richly content to be there. Billy was not at the better places, and it was late when they reached the Black Hawk, a gaudy roadhouse streaming with light and jazz. Long windows opened on a dark veranda and they peered in together.

Joanna saw him first, and her shock went though Jarvis where their shoulders touched, for, melted, blotted into Billy's happy embrace, was Lily. It was an exalted Billy, lit by several drinks, all his new civic responsibility joyously cast off. Lily's shining waves were unruffled, but a disheveled spirit showed in the clasp of her forearms and the lift of her scantily clad body.

They stole away. Billy's flamboyant roadster was out in front and Joanna paused there, hooking an arm over its door, limp with emotion.

"My suitor!" she cried. "The husband and father and leading citizen—and Lily! O, Jarvis, I didn't suppose she was quite such a fool as that!"

"I didn't suppose Lily was!" Jarvis said. They hung on the car door, foolish with laughter, but the Black Hawk was used to such sounds and no one noticed.

"Lily didn't need any squaring," she cried. "I'll bet it was her idea! Of course—Lily is the girl he tipped over with, the girl who has been hounding and threatening him." Joanna had an inspiration. "Lily wouldn't let the other will be destroyed. She might pretend to destroy it, but she'd keep it, secretly, for a club over Billy."

Jarvis thought it over, agreed with her. "Then somewhere there is still that other will, signed and dated and just what was read to Miss Abby," he said.

"It would be destroyed in a minute if Lily suspected that we knew," Joanna went on. "Now, where would she keep it?"

"With her." Jarvis was certain of that. "She would never risk it out of her reach."

"Could we grab her and search?"

He thought not. "Suppose we didn't find it? She would be bringing suits—"

A squeal interrupted. Joanna scrambled into the roadster and motioned him to follow. Billy, in the trustfulness of his mood, had left the key in the car. Joanna started the engine and they went flying down the road, away from home. Just beyond, the woods showed a dark lane, and they reeled into it, coming to a stop around the first curve. The headlights were changed to parking lights.

"My dear Joanna!" The legal mind was ruffled. "Will you tell me what you think you are doing?"

"It came to me, all in a second." Joanna said earnestly. "Why don't we get that place raided? There's every reason to raid it, isn't there? With the car gone, Lily can't get away and we can have her searched. Now—am I smart?"

Jarvis was looking down amusedly on her excitement. "No. You're plumb crazy. They wouldn't search Lily, or even arrest her."

Joanna clung to her inspiration. "Haven't you a friend on the force who could put it though for you? You're so unresourceful, Jarvis. I bet I could—" she broke off, swallowing a shriek, for two glaring lights had struck their rear window. A fierce honking followed.

"There is only one thing to do," Jarvis muttered. "We've got to look as though we were here for the usual reason. Do you mind?"

She complied at once, leaning against his shoulder and lifting mocking eyes to his face. Jarvis put his arm conspicuously about her. The parking lights showed that there was room for the car to pass. As it came on, Jarvis' other arm reached over to draw her still closer.

"Aren't you overacting the part?" Joanna murmured.

A surge of feeling rose from secret depths, sweeping them closer. Their palms came together, their cheeks; for a blinding moment they forgot why they were playing this game. Then, as the car stopped alongside, it was over; the revelation was hidden from each other, even from themselves. They straightened up to face a volley of abuse.

An aged nasal voice was saying loudly just what its owner thought of parkers in his woods and of all frequenters of the Black Hawk. Under his fierce chiding Jarvis had to take the wheel and back out of the lane, into the highroad again. Their ears were burning from the plain Biblical terms that had battered them.

"Scarlet woman of Babylon," Joanna repeated admiringly. "He had a fancy line of pet names!"

Jarvis' gaze was concentrated on the Black Hawk, just ahead. A shrill clamor had burst out there. Dancers were pouring from its open doors and in the stream of light, white and golden and shouting like a maniac, was Lily. Billy, a little stupid and unsteady, was trying to calm her; the management was rushing up and down the line of cars.

"It's stolen! Some dirty thief has stolen our car! You get it back this minute or you'll—" A rush of threats followed and Lily's voice rose hysterically. "Telephone the police, you fools! Get busy! Find that car!"

"It's in the car—the will is in the car!" she cried into his ear. "Step on it, Jarvis—step on it!"

Jarvis tried strategem, doubling on his tracks, and for exultant moments they thought that they had shaken off the hunt, but as they slid over the next hill top they saw the yellow eyes of pursuit close behind them now.

"Now!" they cried. They did not dare turn on lights, but they found a torch in a pocket and they went through every crack and cranny with shaking fingers.

"When I think how sorry Lily was for me," Joanna said victoriously, "and how Billy was going to marry

STOCK MARKET IS CHEERFUL

NEW YORK, June 29.—The stock market ended its second quarter today in a fairly cheerful frame of mind although the usual Saturday profit taking prevented a resumption of yesterday's advance.

Legislative influences view with business hopes and some confused traders stood aside pending more definite developments. The close was a bit irregular. Transfers approximated 300,000 shares.

MacCosham Storage & Dist. Co., Ltd.,
Edmonton, Alta.

Dear Sirs:

I want to advise you that the carload of furniture and household effects arrived in Montreal in excellent condition. As a matter of fact there was not a scratch on any piece of furniture nor was there any breakage of any kind. The packing was all extremely well done, and I want to thank you personally for the trouble you took on my behalf.

Any recommendation I can give to you in this connection, I will be happy to do so.

Yours very truly,

Family Man, Too!

"I was thinking of the wife and kids" said Jimmy Braddock, new heavyweight champion, after his stunning victory over Max Baer. While "the kids" slept, Mrs Braddock rushed to join him in New York, to add her praises to paeans sung by the admirers he won in his battle against long odds. Even for her, that powerful arm seems to have taken on marvelous new qualities.

EDMONTON STOCKYARDS, June 29—Report for week ending June 29:

Receipts—	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Today	462	47	1618	34

Trading has been slow this past week, particularly on grass cattle with buyers bearish in their attitude and slow in bidding. Salesmen are quoting lower values for the week. Grass cattle are selling a full $1 or more lower than grain-fed cattle. The following are the quotations on grain-fed.

BUTCHER CATTLE—
Good-choice fed calves	$5.00 to $5.50
Mediums	4.50 down
Good-choice steers	5.00 to 5.50
Fair to medium	4.00 to 4.50
Common to fair	2.50 to 3.00
Good-choice heifers	4.50 to 5.00
Mediums	3.50 to 4.00
Common to fair	2.50 to 3.50
Good choice cows	3.00 to 4.00
Common to fair	1.50 to 2.50
Canners and cutters	75 to 1.25
Bulls	1.00 to 2.00
STOCKERS & FEEDERS—
Good steers and heifers	3.00 to 3.50
Common to medium	1.50 to 2.50
VEAL CALVES—
Good-choice light	3.50 to 4.00
Common-medium	2.00 to 3.00
SHEEP—
Good kinds	5.00 to 5.50
Others	4.50 down
Yearlings	3.50 to 4.50
Ewes	1.00 to 2.50
Spring lambs	5.50 to 6.00

Calves are showing a lower tendency. There are too many arriving for the good of the trade and farmers would be well advised to hold their calves back until the demand improves.

Hog market somewhat lower. Today, Friday, trucked-in hogs sold at $8.70 for the bacons, selects bringing a premium of 50c per cwt. and butchers discounted 50c per cwt.

Broomhall

CHICAGO, June 29—A slight increase in world shipments is expected for this week, but the clearances from Vancouver and the St. Lawrence river are not likely to show any betterment. Europe is not likely to buy at these new prices. The advance of yesterday is considered entirely unwarranted. Harvesting in China is spreading and it is now quite certain that the wheat yield will be below a year ago, perhaps by 15 per cent. Broomhall's agent recently placed it at 20 per cent. A large crop is expected in Russia this summer and Petrograd may export wheat from the Volga region and from the Ukraine district. However, last year's crop was substantial, being officially placed at 1,120,000,000 bushels, of which only 2,000,000 bushels came for export. If Canada should continue to hold back wheat supplies by pegging prices, then it is quite possible that Russia and Balkan countries will endeavor to dispose of some wheat. The cost of producing wheat in Canada, according to the experimental station at Brandon, Man., is around 75c a bushel, oats 34c and barley 40c. On top of this must be added charges to terminal elevators and profit on investment. Stocks of wheat at Albany are now 2,600,000 Canadian and 1,444,000 Argentine. Stocks of Canadian wheat in the eastern seaboard total 14,300,000 compared to only 9,800,000 a year ago. The visible supply in Canada is now 196,800,000 compared to only 193,000,000 a year ago, which included the quantities in bond in the U. S. There is plenty of wheat in sight and importers have no need to fear, irrespective of the early rust scares in the U. S., which in many cases is only a local condition and may dissipate itself or cut a few million bushels off a crorp of good promise. The rains in Kansas, although lowering the quality, can hardly reduce the yields.

British Columbia was once a far-off land

WHEN our first Vancouver office was opened in 1895 British Columbia seemed hardly a part of Canada it was so far beyond the vision of most Easterners. Canada's westernmost province now produces the bulk of our lumber, one-third of the minerals and one-half the fish, while the City of Vancouver in point of population has grown to third place in the Dominion.

Merchants and manufacturers doing business in British Columbia will find this bank well established and strategically located to facilitate business on the Coast and in the interior.

RESTORE NORTH TRAIN SERVICE

Train service on the Northern Alberta Railway line to Peace River has been completely restored, said M. E. Collins, assistant to General Manager Callaghan at offices of the railroad company here Saturday morning.

It is believed that repair crews, hastily recruited Monday, will be kept at dangerous locations in the road in case of further trouble from devastating flood tides of the Lesser Slave.

Thursday's train to the Peace River country is scheduled to return to the city Saturday evening and it was reported "on time" Saturday noon.

FLYING PICTURE GIVEN SHOWING

Under the distinguished patronage of Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, and the Col. French Chapter of the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, a fine British flying picture, titled "Contact," was given showing at the Capitol theatre Saturday morning.

The film graphically depicts the [illegible] is vividly descriptive of the stages a student aviator goes through in learning the art of flying.

Mrs. T. H. Thomas Peter was convener.

EDMONTON YACHT RACES ON SUNDAY

On Sunday June 30, the Edmonton Yacht Club will open the racing season at South Cooking Lake at 11 a.m. The larger boats will race for the Kelly Matthews Memorial Cup. The 14-foot dinghy class, in which there is considerable interest this year, and eight additional boats to this fleet will race for the Macdonald's Consolidated cup. The course will be with the starting line at the main beach, with a buoy off Scott's Bay and one off Lakeview.

On Monday, July 1, there will be a skippers' race in the [illegible] class, when it is expected that at least 12 to 14 skippers will take part.

Pound Of Flesh Not Demand Of All Businessmen

The "pound of flesh" as represented in modern interest charges is not demanded by all business men, it was shown in district court Friday, during the hearing of an action involving purchase of a [illegible] a suit aga[illegible] His Honor Judge Crawford observed that interest charges for the period in which the debt was in default [illegible] will not press for the interest, C. S. Campbell, counsel for Stirling Finance Corp., stated.

Evidence was that the machine was purchased in May, 1929 for $175 on a time-payment basis. Only $10 was paid by defendant who then requested the company to take back the washer.

Savage claimed that later the machine was missing from his basement. He [illegible] had repossessed it, but officials of the company denied this had been [illegible]

THE GUMPS

The Worm Has Turned

—By Smith

I'VE PLAYED THE PART OF CINDERELLA LONG ENOUGH, BIM GUMP— JUST YOU PUT ON AN APRON AND TAKE CARE OF THOSE DISHES — SEE HOW A LITTLE WORK FEELS—
JUST A MINUTE— YOU'RE PICKING ON THE WRONG MAN IF YOU THINK I'M GOING TO PLAY NURSE MAID TO A LOT OF DIRTY DISHES—
WHAM!
THERE— TRY TO BOSS ME AROUND! JUST LET THEM ASK ME TO TAKE CARE OF DISHES AGAIN — THERE'S A MAN LIVING AROUND THIS HOUSE NOW—

NO VOTE FOR ALIENS URGED

CALGARY, June 29.—Aliens should not be allowed to vote in town or village elections, the delegates to the annual convention of the Union of Alberta Municipalities decided today. A resolution affirming this stand was given almost unanimous adoption.

In some sections of the province, delegates declared, Aliens could outvote citizens and taxpayers.

Other resolutions adopted urged one year's continuous residence should apply to all Alberta statutes governing old age pensions, mothers' allowances, hospitalization and all other relief aids, that taxes for social services should be removed from real estate and raised by taxes borne by all citizens.

The convention also approved a motion that there be an amendment to the Town and Village act to permit municipalities to tax mineral rights. In default of a taxpayer, the mineral rights would revert to the municipality along with the land.

Giants' Mell Ott Cross the Plate After Homer Off Phil Collins

D'ATS and PANS by —BILL LEWIS—

Edmontonians face a heavy week-end of sport the next few days; that is, those who are not bound for the watering places of the province to spend the big holiday. . . . Not in a long time has there been such an array of sportive activities to delight local patrons of athletics as there is over the week-end, starting today.

Of prime interest, of course, is the City Amateur golf championships, which continue over Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Highlands Club . . .

Naturally, on account of his blazing 76 over the tough Highlands' layout in the qualifying round last Sunday, Henry Martell will stride into the second round of match play a favorite to capture the honors. . . He will, however, encounter a lot of tough opposition in the field of 16 that starts the second round today.

Then, too, there will be a lot of interest for golfers in the final rounds of the Alberta Seniors' championships at Mayfair Golf and Country Club this afternoon . . . By virtue of his fine showing yesterday, Hugh Graham, of Calgary, looks like a probable winner to succeed Walter Ripley of the same city, who held the title last season.

Baseball interest will centre around the exhibition game Sunday between Edmonton Bushers and Vegreville . . . Though losing to Ponoka's powerful Panthers the other evening, Bushers demonstrated they have a lot of power, and, with Pete McCready back in the lineup to strengthen the outer-gardens, should turn in a good exhibition.

The Vegreville aggregation, with Lefty Mydanski to do their hurling, are no mean obstacle and have high hopes of upsetting Edmonton's entry in the strong Northern League.

Ike Davis, the former big-league shortstop who performed with the champion Shastas last season and returned just this week to manage Wetaskiwin, came up to say "Hello" yesterday and he looks in the pink after wintering

Calgary Veteran Has Score of 82 In Opening Play

T. S. Thompson is Close to Lead With Card of 84 For 18 Holes

Shooting consistent golf throughout, and particularly shining on the home nine, Hugh Graham, of Calgary, turned in the low gross score of the opening round in the Alberta Seniors' championship tournament which got underway over the course of Mayfair Golf and Country Club yesterday.

Turning in a sparkling 39 coming in, after shooting a 43 on the out-going nine, Graham led the field with the excellent mark of 82 for the 18-hole route.

Although experiencing a little trouble on the first nine, when he took a seven on the third, Graham rounded into grand form for the rest of the round and had no difficulty thereafter.

The leader's card:

Graham—Out: 547 465 435—43
In: 445 553 355—39—82

Close on the heels of the southern leader came T. S. Thompson, Mayfair Club entrant, who had a card of 84 for the 18 hole distance. Like his rival, Thompson chalked up a 43 for the out-going nine, but took 41 for the home route to finish with his total [illegible]

In third place was W. McNeill, who carded 90 for the first round of play in the tourney.

Walter Ripley of Calgary, who held the Alberta Seniors' crown in 1934 and came here hoping to retain his laurels, found the going anything but to his liking and needed 96 strokes to negotiate the 18-hole distance. He had a 49 going out and was back in 47.

Adam Esch, W. Brankley, D. N. McLean, J. K. Lowes and Trenholme Dickson were bunched in fourth place with cards of 91.

One of the features of the day's performance was supplied by Adam Esch, who holed out in two on the par three third. It was the only deuce to be scored all day.

MRS. ROY HORNE LOSES GOLF TITLE

CALGARY, June 29—Displaying a marked superiority on the greens, Mrs. J. Train Gray of Calgary yesterday won the Alberta Ladies' Golf crown by defeating the defending champion, Mrs. Roy Horne of Calgary, in a thrilling final.

Mrs. Gray, Western Canada and Alberta Titlist in 1925, edged out her long-driving opponent on the 17th when Mrs. Horne topped a brassie shot and took three putts. Defeated three times previously in the final by Mrs. Horne, the new champion scored a birdie three on the 18th to end the morning round one up.

JUNIORS PLAY TWO GAMES AT BOYLE STREET

All Four Clubs to Be Seen In Action in Twin Bill Sunday Afternoon

Having had their schedule disrupted by adverse weather conditions, Edmonton Junior Baseball League will hold a double header at the Boyle street diamond Sunday afternoon starting at 1.30 in order to catch up on postponed games.

In the first clash the Arrow Busses and North Edmonton juniors will meet, while the second half of the two-games program will bring Army & Navy and Safeways together. The first game will start at 1:30.

All four clubs have been waging a blanket fight for the league honors and as all are closely contested in the drive for first place, they should put up quite a battle for winning honors in Sunday's games.

HICKS-DIDRIKSON ARE ELIMINATED

CHICAGO, June 29.—A pair of seasoned amateurs, in a startling upset, abruptly ended the championship aspirations of two leading United States women golf professionals, Miss Helen Hicks and Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, in the Women's Western Open Golf Championship yesterday.

Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt, Winnetka, Ill., runner-up, as a girl of 15, in the United States championship, 20 years ago, conquered the 21-year-old Miss Didrikson, famous all-around athlete of Beaumont, Texas, 5 and 4. Tumbling out of the semi-finals with her was Miss Hicks, Hewlett, L.I., United States champion in 1931, who fell before Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, 2 and 1.

Miss Didrikson, unable to cope with Mrs. Reinhardt's brilliant iron game, blew up completely, but the match between Miss Hicks and Mrs. Hill was close all the way.

Girls' Teams Play Scheduled Clash At Boyle Tonight

Second place berth in the City Girls' Baseball League will be at stake this evening when the Army and Navy girls and the E.C.D. nine come to grips in a scheduled encounter at the Boyle street sandlot commencing at 6.30.

In their last two meetings the Army & Navy club have come out of the conflict with the winning verdict and they are anxious to make it three in a row over their bitter opponents.

The milk merchants feel certain however that they will be able to score revenge for the [illegible] and will be out there fighting to do so. Both clubs are well balanced and a real battle is looked forward to.

WALLACE WINS

VANCOUVER, June 29.—Gordon Wallace, Canadian welterweight champion, last night won a 10 round decision from Jimmy Best, negro welterweight of Oakland, Calif., in the feature bout of a fistic card here. Wallace weighed 142½ and Best 145.

ASTRA YACHT WINS

FALMOUTH, Eng., June 29.—In the Cornwall Yacht Club's Class J race Hugh Paul's speedy Astra led the fleet of six home in four hours, 34 minutes, 37 seconds.

T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, unsuccessful challenger for the America's Cup, was second in four hours 37 minutes [illegible] seconds, and the [illegible]

EATON'S ENTRIES RACE ONE AND TWO IN HANDICAP RACE

Guilder and Palasa Win In St. James At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, June 29. — Captain Frank Eaton's entry of Guilder and Palasa ran one-two in the St. James Handicap at Polo Park yesterday afternoon. The race brought out some of the fleetest sprinters on the grounds and provided one of the best contests seen here this spring. No less than four horses were in front at some time or other during the five furlongs. Dorsays was the first to try the task of pacemaking. Monk's Dude supplanted him on the back stretch only to be outrun by Georgia Lily as they approached the last turn.

Here Molter sent Guilder up with a rush on the outside and the ultimate winner soon drew clear and was two and a half lengths in front entering the stretch. Through the last furlong his stablemate, Palasa, moved up with a determined bid and finished a neck back of Guilder. It was easy to see that Molter had no idea that it was Palasa that was pressing his mount in the last seventy yards for he was riding his hardest.

Chattahoochee came strongly to take the show.

German-Canadian Association Will Have Annual Event

The German-Canadian National Association will hold its annual picnic on Sunday, June 30 at 101 street and 67th avenue. The sports and many other fine picnic entertainments will begin at 2:00 o'clock sharp. Five baseball games, horseshoe tournaments and a band will be some of the highlights.

Gibbons Planning Ball Tournament

GIBBONS, June 29. — Gibbons Sports Association will present all four clubs of the Big Four Baseball League as their feature entry in the baseball tournament which is to be held here on Monday afternoon, July 1. Other ball clubs from neighboring districts and outside points are also expected to compete.

Other sporting events will be held during the afternoon, and a successful holiday program is anticipated.

Approximately 80,000 bees must visit at least 3,360,000 flowers in the course of a day to produce one pound of honey, according to estimates of apiarists.

BOBBY PROCTOR

One of this city's leading stars on the links, Bobby Proctor will be seeking honors in the city championship tournament which opens over the Highlands Club course on Saturday. Bobby is right with the favorables to win.

VEGREVILLE PLAYS HERE SUNDAY TILT

Visitors to Meet Up With Edmonton Bushers at Diamond Park

Vegreville ball tossing squad will invade Edmonton Bushers' home grounds on Sunday and will clash with the locals at Diamond Park for an afternoon game starting at 3.00 o'clock.

It will be the first time Vegreville has performed on the local diamond, but they have been doing right well in country games, meeting Wetaskiwin, Ponoka and other teams during the early season.

Vegreville has, and still has, so reports state, provided a fast team of ball tossers and they should be sturdy enough opposition for the local crew.

North Edmonton routed the Junior Baseball League fixture at Boyle Street last night into nothing short of a fun-fest and their erratic fielding sent Army and Navy Grits into league leadership with a 9-2 triumph. Neither teams displayed anything like their best brand of baseball with the Northenders being the worst offenders in one of the poorest fixtures played in the junior loop to date.

It may have been the long lay-off owing to inclement weather, or the many changes to the team, causing the poor showing North Edmonton made. Certainly they looked nothing like the smart fielding squad which had been performing in the red and white livery these past few weeks.

TOTAL 11 ERRORS.

Seven of the most simple fumbles and no limited amount of poorly executed plays were registered against the losers, while the Grits did their bit by adding a quartet of errors to total the count at 11.

While the Grits thumped two North Edmonton moundsmen for a total of eight hits, six of them off Lucey Tougas, Rusty Wynn turned in a fairly favorable four-hit assignment. Wynn, without a doubt, was one of the very few players anywhere near heads-up baseball.

There was little "fight" in the losers. They took their drubbing without attempting to shoot at a winning performance. With a few more of their "regulars" in uniform they should show up better. Missing on the North Edmonton club was their sturdy first baseman, Harry Robertson, and Bob Hawkey behind the batter. They were greatly missed.

Two runs, one each by Smith and Fenton in the first inning and another by Wynn in the second, started the Grits off to a good lead. In the fourth Aldridge and Wynn scored one run each, bringing the total to five. They followed up with a tally in the fifth and two more in the sixth and with them took an eight-run lead. North Edmonton got a single run in the seventh as Oakes scored, only to have the Grits get their ninth run in the eighth, which the losers matched as Yoachim scored in the latter half of the eigth.

Charlie Wener, Don Smith and Norman Stanners hit best for the Grits with two singles each, while the four North Edmonton bingles were well scattered. Wynn and Yoachim got the only extra base blows with a double sacker each.

RADIALS PLAY CALLIE SQUAD IN CUP CLASH

Open Competition Slated For Connaught Cup Diamond Tonight

Radials and Callies have been drawn in the opening bracket of the local Connaught Cup competition and will play their fixture at Diamond Park this evening. The kick-off is timed for 6:45 o'clock.

The rivalry between these two teams has been of a bitter nature throughout the season, with Radials taking an edge in the soccer warfare. Callies have, however, always been sturdy opposition for the league-leading Radial aggregation.

The teams will lineup as follows:

Radials—Mann; Hoyle, Barson, Ness, Ross, McLean, Pither, Convey, Bannon, J. Graham, Johnson, R. Graham and Anderson. All Radial players are to meet at the Queen's Hotel at 6:15 o'clock.

Bantam Soccer

On Thursday night the Alberta Avenue Bantams defeated the King Edward Bantams 3-1 at the Sacred Heart school grounds. King Edward, playing only seven men, put up a very creditable showing.

King Edward Bantams tied the Alberta Avenue Bantams 1-1. The Kings put up a great game, and had it not been for the fine playing of the Avenue goalie the score would have been much higher. Fred Smitten got King Edward's goal on an exceptionally fine combination play. The game was capably handled by Mr. Elsy.

In England, only about 11 per cent of homes are wired for electricity, a total of 1,400,000. There are, however, more than 4,000,000 consumers, including commercial users, and 500 generating plants in the country. These produce 9,050,000,000 kilowatts of power annually.

CANUCK TEAM LEADS SERIES WINNING TWO

Lally Trophy Destined to Return as B.C. Beats Americans

NEW WESTMINSTER, June 29—The Lally Trophy, symbolic of international lacrosse supremacy appeared destined to return to Canada last night as a picked team of British Columbians drove through for six goals in a last quarter drive to defeat the all-American intercollegiate squad 14-9 here in the second of the best of five series.

The Canadians won the opening game at Vancouver Wednesday night 15-7.

The [illegible] Americans, playing their second game of the abbreviated style, showed a tremendous improvement over their initial appearance of the series and until the last [illegible] minutes of the final quarter appeared headed for victory.

They saw their 3-1 lead, piled up in the first quarter, tied up in the second. The lead fluctuated back and forth in the third quarter [illegible] ended all square.

GOT FIRST GOAL

The British Columbians snared the opening goal of the final session but the visitors came back [illegible] to take the lead [illegible] that was their last effort [illegible] rattled past the giant American goalie to give [illegible] Columbian squad their [illegible] victory.

The teams meet at Vancouver in [illegible] third game Monday night. If [illegible] games are necessary the [illegible] be set after Monday [illegible].

Comments

The South Side Athletics won the only game of softball played last night. The Kent Miners after an uphill battle tied the game up in the seventh inning but lost a run to the S. Side in the eighth and then blew the game in the ninth by making three bad errors that let in three runs. The loss of this game left the Miners definitely out of the playoffs.

The Junior game scheduled to be played between the All Peoples and Calder was postponed so that these same two teams could play their game on Monday at Kapasiwin Beach.

Teams playing in the Intermediate leagues at Rossdale, Golf Links and Exhibition Grounds should note that postponed games must be picked up next week according to the following schedule.

C.N.R. Police Wins Further Pistol Honors

WINNIPEG, June 29.—Further pistol shooting honors have been gained by C.N.R. Constable R. G. Pickrell of Winnipeg, who is Canada's revolver and pistol shooting representative at the Bisley empire meet. A cable received from London, announced that Pickrell had won the Scottish pistol match at St. Andrews with a score of 97 points of a possible 100.

Constable Pickrell already held almost every United States and Canadian pistol and revolver trophy and is going to Bisley as the first Canadian pistol and revolver marksman to attend the meet.

Finance Return Of Thibet Lama

SHANGHAI, China, June 29—An appropriation of $400,000 has been decided upon to finance the proposed return to Thibet of the Pan Chen Lama, who has been exiled from Thibet for 11 years. The Pan Chen Lama, a refugee in China, receives an annual salary and expense allowance of $400,000 and the $400,000 will be a present in addition. His return to Lhassa would greatly strengthen China's hold upon distant Thibet, it is stated.

Canada School Essay Planned For Australia

OTTAWA, June 29.—Australian school children will be encouraged to learn about Canada. In the supplementary estimates approved in the House of Commons last night was a vote for $2,000 under the heading of publicity in Canada and abroad.

Hon. R. B. Hanson, minister of trade and commerce, explained it would be used to conduct an essay competition in Australia among secondary school pupils. A prize of a trip to Canada would be the reward of the pupil who wrote the best essay on Canada.

A similar competition had been conducted in Canada by Australia, Mr. Hanson said.

Visiting Lawyer Impressed With Court Procedure

Keen interest was taken Friday in the proceedings of supreme civil court by F. L. Glebe, barrister of Scotts Bluff, Nebraska, a visitor to the district.

Mr. Glebe, who has been practicing at the bar of Nebraska for 14 years, came to Picardville a few weeks ago, because of the serious illness of his father, a farmer in that district. A brother, Fred Glebe, also lives near Picardville.

The Nebraska lawyer was deeply impressed with the procedure of a British court, of which he was a witness for the first time.

EONITE- THAT'S A GREAT NAME, OLIVER-
AND I PROPOSE WE NAME THE TOWN WE HAVE BUILT HERE, "EON"-
BUT, "DADDY"- YOU SAY THIS STUFF IS CLEAR AS GLASS AND YET A THIN PIECE OF IT IS BULLET PROOF?
THAT'S RIGHT, ANNIE- A SHEET OF EONITE AS THIN AS PAPER WILL STOP MACHINE GUN BULLETS-
GET OUT- YOU CAN'T KID ME, "DADDY"- I'VE GOT TO BE SHOWN-
HA! HA! WELL, WE HAVE THE PROOF, ANNIE- SHOW HER THAT VEST, PUNJAB-
I KNOW- PUNJAB LET THOSE KILLERS THAT SLUGG SENT SHOOT AT HIM, AND IT DIDN'T HURT HIM- BUT THAT WAS A STEEL VEST-
ON THE CONTRARY, LITTLE PRINCESS- IT WAS A GARMENT MADE OF EONITE-
HE! HE! HE! PUNJAB AND I WERE TESTIN' OUT THIS STUFF TO SEE IF IT WAS REALLY BULLET PROOF- WE KNEW THEM FELLERS WERE COMIN' A WEEK AGO, SO I MADE HIM THAT VEST O' EONITE-
GEE! SUPPOSIN' THAT VEST HADN'T WORKED?
YES- HOW ABOUT THAT, ELI? WHAT IF YOUR EONITE HADN'T STOPPED THOSE MACHINE GUN BULLETS?
HE! HE! HE! AFTER ALL THE BRAGGIN' I'D DONE, IF THOSE BULLETS HAD GONE THROUGH THAT VEST I SURE WOULD HAVE FELT SILLY-
AH- YOU WOULD HAVE FELT SILLY- I WAS WEARING THE VEST- HOW DO YOU THINK I SHOULD HAVE FELT?

SAY, WHY DON'T YOU TAKE SOME OF THOSE THINGS UPSTAIRS, WHILE YOU'RE GOING UP?
I WILL—THE NEXT TIME.
NEXT TIME—THAT'S AT LEAST TEN TIMES SHE'S CLIMBED OVER THOSE THINGS, SINCE SHE PUT THEM THERE.
SHE NEARLY BROKE HER NECK! I HOPE, NOW, SHE WILL PICK HER THINGS UP, AT LEAST.
NO—OH, NO! I WAS FOOLISH TO THINK SHE WOULD.
I'VE GOT TO TEACH THIS FAMILY A LESSON—AND I HAVE AN IDEA—
WHOOH—THAT WAS A LOT OF WORK! BUT THEY HAVE TO DO A LITTLE, TO GET UP THOSE STAIRS, NOW.
THERE'S WILLIS, NOW-THIS SHOULD BE GOOD! PERHAPS HE'LL, AT LEAST, TAKE SOME OF HIS OWN THINGS UP.
THEY CAN RUN THIS HOME THEMSELVES—I'M THRU! THEY'VE GOT ME LICKED.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD
IS FOUND IN BOTH WILD AND DOMESTICATED FORMS, AND INHABITS THE "ROOF OF THE WORLD,". . . THE LOFTY MOUNTAINS OF TIBET! IT IS TO BE FOUND AS HIGH AS 19,000 FEET ABOVE SEA-LEVEL.
A YAK CAN OUT-BALK THE MOST STUBBORN MULE! HE WILL ALLOW HIS RUBBERY NOSE TO BE STRETCHED SIX INCHES, WITHOUT MOVING FROM HIS TRACKS!
ONE ANIMAL WAS KNOWN TO REMAIN IN A BALK FOR THREE DAYS.
THE NATIVES OF TIBET DEPEND ON THE YAK FOR EXISTENCE! IT FURNISHES THEM WITH MEAT, MILK BUTTER, CLOTHES, FUEL, HOUSING MATERIAL, BOATS, AND TRANSPORTATION.

WILLIAM FERGUSON
DUE TO THE PECULIAR SHAGGY COAT, YAKS CAN STAND BITTER COLD, BUT THEY SUFFER INTENSELY FROM HEAT! THEY EAT SNOW, FOR MOISTURE, AND GRAZE ON THE SCANTY GRASSES THAT GROW ON THE WIND-SWEPT MOUNTAIN SIDES.

I MADE MY BOY, OSCAR, A BIG KITE... I HAD TO DO SOMETHING TO KEEP HIM HOME.... HE ALWAYS SHOWS ME UP, WHEN I TAKE HIM FISHING!
T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
AIN'T THIS SOME KITE? I'M USING MY FISHIN' POLE AND LINE TO FLY IT!!
I THINK IT'LL NEED A TAIL, OSSIE! IT WON'T FLY, THE WAY IT IS!
I HAVEN'T ANY CLOTH... I'LL JUST USE THIS SMALL PIECE OF LINE AND THIS FISHIN' JIG, TO KEEP IT BALANCED!
. AND LOOK AT THAT TAIL WHIP AROUND! GEE, IF THAT JIG HITS ANYBODY, IT'LL BE TOO BAD!
THAT'S IT, ALL RIGHT!!
THANK GOODNESS, THE KITE IS RISING AGAIN... IF OSCAR HAD COME OVER HERE, HE'D HAVE SEEN THE FEW SMALL MINNOWS I'VE CAUGHT!
